TRACTION HISTORY AS RYAN VIEWED IT

Told Grand Jury That $500,000 May Have Gone for Politics in 1899-1900.

BRADY'S GRIP ON TRACTION

First Step in Manhattan, Mr. Ryan Said, Was Purchase of Wall Street Ferry Paper Route.

Thomas F. Ryan's own story of how Anthony N. Brady came into the Manhattan Traction "clover patch" was obtained yesterday from the minutes of the Grand Jury, which on Monday rendered its report to Justice Victor J. Dowling, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. Mr. Ryan's version of the events which led up to the Wall & Cortlandt Street Ferries Railway transaction of 1902 contained also the personal theory of the traction financier that the $500,000 eventually taken from the Metropolitan Securities Company in connection with the sale of the non-existent railway went to refund an amount originally spent in the preliminaries of the McKinley-Bryan campaign.

That, however, Mr. Ryan said, was merely his theory. Mr. Vreeland, who was President of the Metropolitan Street Railway in the first stages of the transaction, told the Grand Jury that the sums making up the $500,000 had been paid by him on behalf of the company to William C. Whitney on the latter's demand, without explanation, at different times prior to the year 1900, and Mr. Vreeland declared that he did not know for what purposes the money went.

District Attorney Jerome, when Mr. Ryan went before the Grand Jury, asked him to tell how he came to buy with Mr. Brady the Wall & Cortlandt Street Ferries Company. This was some time prior to the acquisition of the road by William C. Whitney, as a preliminary to turning it over to the Metropolitan Securities Company.

"Brady," said Mr. Ryan, "was operating in Brooklyn and in the Bronx. This looked like a pretty fertile 'clover patch' down here, and it was pretty hard for him to keep his hands off, although he was in other things with me. It was pretty hard to keep a man that owned the street railways of Brooklyn and the Bronx out of New York. The clover was pretty green, and every now and then he talked about buying these roads, and I dissuaded him. One day he came to me and said either that he was going to buy from Lauterbach or had bought.

"'Well,' I said, 'Brady, you ought not to do that. We are not going into Brooklyn. You want to keep away from here.'

"Mr. Vreeland had said two or three times to me that if we allowed the Wall & Cortlandt Street Ferries Railroad Company to go into the hands of outside people it would ruin the Broadway surface railroad. I did not think anybody would come along, but Lauterbach started to sell it, and he had been successful in selling the Thirty-fourth Street and Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Street lines, and we gave him a big price for it, and he was all the time trying to sell this.

Brady Entry Into Manhattan.

"Finally Brady had committed himself so that he could not get out of it. I said: 'What did you pay for it?' He said, '$225,000.' He bought all the stock and bonds, and Lauterbach turned it over to him.

"I complained about it, and he said: 'Now, if you feel so badly about this, you had better take some responsibility about it.' I said, 'All right; I will take half of it.' I went down to the Central Trust Company and put my name on the back of a note he had there for the stock and bonds.

"Well, every time he got a good chance at me he would tell me what he could sell the railroad for or how we were losing money not to build. I kept putting him off, and finally he came to me and said he could sell the road for a very large amount of money, and that I ought to let him do it. I said, 'I will talk to you about it later,' and finally he stopped talking to me. Then he must have taken it up with Mr. Whitney.

"Then I made up my mind that somebody was negotiating. I said, 'Who is this?' He did not tell me, but he got to talking to Whitney about it. This was, I should say, in 1899. I never intended to allow him to build that railroad; he had no business to come in here. He deserved to have his money tied up as long as I was doing the same thing. I was not going to have him come in. I felt my first duty was to this corporation over here. I was very tired and I took my family and went to California."

Got Brady's Check for $111,000.

Mr. Ryan said that he did not get back until the first part of April, and then went down to Virginia and stayed a week. On his return from this trip his secretary, Mr. Francis, told him that he had received $111,000 from Mr. Brady, and had placed it in Mr. Ryan's account.

"Mr. Brady and I," said Mr. Ryan, "were dealing in all sorts of things. Sometimes I was sending him a check and sometimes he was sending me profits or losses, whatever it might be, but I began to inquire. I think I inquired of Cravath and located that money as being a repayment of $100,000 that Mr. Whitney had requested me to give him in 1899 or 1900 for expenditures that they had made on behalf of the Metropolitan."

"Did he tell you what these disbursements were?" asked District Attorney Jerome.

"No," said Mr. Ryan, "he did not say. I did not ask him." And then he added a moment later, "I suppose it was political campaign funds, Mr. Jerome."

"Was it to be a contribution by the Metropolitan Street Railway in the second Bryan campaign?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Well," said Mr. Ryan, "that was the year of the campaign, but if you will notice the check I give you here, I think it was dated early in 1900. You know there had been a great—there had been a campaign, Mr. Jerome—they were dated in January or February, 1900, so that it may not have been for the election of 1900.

May Have Been for Politics.

"What I was going to say is this: During the Fall or Winter of 1899 there had been a preliminary campaign, political campaign, going on. It was thought perhaps Bryan could be defeated in Kansas City, but it was a foregone conclusion that Mr. McKinley would be renominated, and part of this money may have gone for that; I don't know."

Mr. Jerome called Mr. Ryan's attention

SAGAN SAYS HE IS HUNTED.

Vainly Tries to Make a Journey to Naples in Secret.

GENOA, April 21.—Prince Helle Sagan arrived here this evening on his way from Paris to Naples, where he intends to meet Mme. Anna Gould. She sailed for that city from Gibraltar to-day on board the steamer Kaiser Friedrich der Grosse. She intends to travel through Italy after leaving the ship at Naples.

Prince Helle endeavored to keep his movements secret, and it was not until the express tran out of Paris reached Turin that it was learned that there was on board a passenger corresponding to his description. He refused, however, to give his name or to be interviewed.

The train passed Pisa about midnight. The Prince did not appear, but the conductor took a dispatch to a telegraph office addressed "Annette Chapin, aboard the Friedrich der Grosse," to be forwarded by wireless.

When the Prince arrived at Genoa this evening several newspaper men tried to approach him while he was at dinner. He appeared irritated and exclaimed:

"I never saw such a chase; I am being hunted like a fox."

Re-entering the car he ordered the conductor to see that he was not disturbed for any reason.

Prince Helle gave an interview at the house of a friend last night in which he admitted that he was going to Italy to meet Mme. Anna Gould, but he refused to give any intimation as to when and where the marriage would take place, saying:

"The future is in the hands of God."

He described his experiences in America as "torture." He said he was everywhere besieged by a legion of reporters and a horde of photographers, and that the most odious and most ridiculous things were printed about him and Mme. Gould.

THIEF SENDS BACK $1,200.

Returns Negotiable Notes Stolen Last Saturday at Glen Ridge Golf Club.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., April 21.—Part of the loot taken by the thief who invaded the Glen Ridge Golf Club and robbed the locker of Wardwell G. Thomas while he and other club members were on the links has been returned. Last night Mr. Thomas received by mail an envelope containing the $1,200 worth of negotiable notes that were taken.

The envelope was sent from Newark, and contained nothing that would give a clue to the identity of the thief. The $18 in cash and the valuable gold watch that were stolen were not returned. The thief evidently was afraid to negotiate the notes. The robbery caused consternation in the golf club, which is composed of New York business and professional men. It occurred on Saturday afternoon.

When Mr. Thomas discovered the theft President Thomas G. Smith was about to open a meeting of the Board of Trustees. It was suggested that every one in the house reveal what he had in his pockets. President Smith and two of the Trustees formed an investigating committee. Everybody filed past the three and displayed the contents of their pockets, and, of course, all were guiltless of the theft.

FOUND $7,000 IN DOOR PANEL.

Aged Man Was Afraid of Banks—Daughter Discovered Money by Chance

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Horton of Whitestone, Queens Borough, while testifying yesterday before Surrogate Daniel Noble as executrix of her father's estate, related how she had found $7,000 in a secret slide in his bedroom door. The hiding place had been constructed with great skill.

William H. Wilkins, an aged resident of Whitestone, died Jan. 1, 1907. After his death Mrs. Horton, his eldest daughter, who is a widow, chancing to knock upon his bedroom door, found it had a hollow sound in one place. She repeated the knocking, and after a time found a secret panel set into the edge of the door.

Inside she found an envelope containing $7,000 in cash. Her father had but little faith in banks.

All the real estate left by Mr. Wilkins, amounting to many thousands of dollars in value, has been divided in friendly partition. But Mrs. Van Siclen and Mrs. Kent, sisters of Mrs. Horton, the executrix, engaged lawyers to examine Mrs. Horton to ascertain if she had accounted for all of the personal property.

THAW SIGNS FOR A FIGHT.

Family Surprised—Didn't Know He Had Money to Hire Another Lawyer.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., April 21.—James G. Graham of 76 William Street, New York, this afternoon presented an order from Justice James Morschauser of Poughkeepsie directing Dr. Amos T. Baker, Acting Superintendent of the Matteawan State Hospital, to permit Harry K. Thaw to sign a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to produce him in court. Mr. Baker readily acquiesced, and Mr. Graham was ushered to Thaw's ward, where the signature was obtained. Before leaving for New York Mr. Graham said:

"This order will be presented to a Judge in New York State to-morrow or Thursday, and he can make it returnable where and when he sees fit. Thaw seemed happy at the privilege. I did not question him about his condition, but Dr. Baker says it is as good as at any time since he has been at Matteawan."

It is believed that Thaw will appear in court at Newburg on Saturday morning.

PITTSBURG, April 21.—Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry K. Thaw, is prostrated at her home here over the news that her son has hired a new attorney, and will try to fight his way out of Matteawan. The move is a surprise to his family, which had not thought that Harry had any money with which to go outside the family's choice of attorneys for help. It is said, however, that some time before his second trial he secreted a large sum to be used in just such an emergency.

STUDENT CHORUS ON STRIKE NOW

New York University Show in Danger of "Fizzling" Unless Somebody Backs Down.

NAMES NOT ON PROGRAMME

Choristers Refuse to be Crowded Out by an "Ad" and, Besides, Want Free Tickets.

Heedless of the awful fiasco their action may cause, the members of the chorus of "Cap'n Kidd and Company," the 'Varsity show of New York University, which has been billed to open at Carnegie Lyceum on Friday night, have gone on strike because their names were left off the programme to make room for a belated advertisement. When Deems Taylor, '06, the composer of the operetta, sat down at the piano at rehearsal yesterday and struck the chords of the opening chorus, there was not even a hum from the bass and tenor pirates.

They leaned silently and sullenly on their cutlasses, choking back the harmony which long practice almost compelled them to utter to the cue note of the opening chord, while Chief Pirate A. J. Magrath, '09, spoke in bitter words of the wrongs of the chorus man. Village maidens and high-born dames held prisoners for ransom by the pirates—most of them members of the junior class—crossed their legs and puffed cigarettes, while Magrath pictured their wrongs in burning terms.

Who were the managers of the 'Varsity show, he demanded, that they should sink the identity of the chorus behind a paltry advertisement? Behind him the chorus unanimously demanded, "Who?"

Encouraged by his support, Magrath called attention to another grievance. So unexpectedly heavy has been the sale of seats for the Saturday matinée that the management has felt itself forced to curtail the complimentary seats which usually have been given liberally to the chorus in partial repayment for their work. No free tickets, no chorus, announced Magrath, and his followers resolutely echoed, "No chorus!"

The members of the Executive Committee of the 'Varsity Dramatic Club were present to watch the rehearsal. They went into executive session at once. A. H. Sherin, '08, manager of the show, and also President of the Student Organization, advised immediate surrender of all demands.

"We must save the show at any cost," he argued.

But President Van Bomel insisted that the matter be voted upon by the Executive Committee, and expressed himself as unalterably opposed to anything that looked like surrender or compromise.

A vote will be taken this morning, and in the meantime the chorus stuck to its resolution not to rehearse. They assert that they will not back down, and declare that they can and will wreck the show unless their demands are granted.

The strike is the culmination of trouble that has been brewing for weeks. Where the principals have been compelled to rehearse only once a day, the chorus has danced and sung, marched and countermarched, twice on each rehearsing day, until more than one pirate has felt that it would be easier to play football.

The straw that broke the camel's back, however, came on Monday night, when early arrivals of the chorus eagerly grabbed up proof sheets of the programme which had been supplied to the management. Where their names should have appeared was a big "ad." An indignation meeting was called in an adjoining room and the decision to strike was reached.

Magrath, who had assumed a prominent position in the strike of students that grew out of the hazing of young Mr. Bloch recently, was chosen leader, and he promised last night to make the strike a lively one.

Much to the regret of the students Chancellor MacCracken, who returned on Monday from a trip of three months through Sicily, Italy, and Denmark, failed to mention the present strike or the recent hazing of Freshman Bloch when he addressed the students in chapel yesterday morning. Instead he talked of his trip and mentioned particularly the universities he had visited.

"I have a formal message for students here," he said.

"A month ago I received a letter from the student body of the University of Copenhagen inviting me to spend an evening with them. I brought away a special message sent by the student body, which is to assure university students in America of their fraternal regard and cordial desire that American and Scandinavian students may become better acquainted and mutually helpful.

"University students in Scandinavia are not in bondage like students in Germany to the code of dueling or the code of the beerstein, nor like students in English Oxford and Cambridge to caste or extravagance, nor like American students, of undue devotion to athletics."

SHERIFF'S MEN IN A RIOT.

Deputies Pelted and Mauled by Pushcart Men Until Reserves Came.

Two of Sheriff Foley's deputies went to the grocery store of Samuel Konwasky at 162 Orchard Street, last night, to replevin some goods. Konwasky's friends among the pushcart men outside gathered and began to throw vegetables. Pretty soon there was a small riot in progress.

The deputies were pelted with vegetables and fruit as well as dress goods, which the spectators grabbed up from the peddler's carts. One of them ran the gauntlet to a telephone and called up the Eldridge Street Police Station. One policeman came at first, but he couldn't stop the riot and called for help.

Then Sergt. Thompson and the reserves came and extricated the deputies and arrested seven men. Four were bailed out at the station house and the other three were taken to the Night Court, where Magistrate Walsh fined two of them $1 each.

Samuel Lemaire of 208 First Avenue was charged with having turned loose the deputies' horse, and the Magistrate fined him $2.

MILLIONS MORE GOLD GOING.

We May Ship $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 To-day—Exchange Up 35 Points.

Gold to the amount of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 will probably be shipped to Paris by to-day's steamer. One lot of $1,500,000 was reserved at the Assay Office yesterday afternoon, and other engagements which were under consideration yesterday would increase the total to within the amounts stated.

Despite yesterday's preparations for further gold exports, foreign exchange rates ruled strong. Demand sterling, rising to the highest rate quoted on this movement, sold at the close at 4.8750, an advance of 35 points for the day.

In National bank circles a further call for Government deposits is expected. Some difference of opinion exists in banking quarters regarding the probable effect upon gold exports of a further withdrawal of Government funds from the banks. Some think gold exports would continue despite such withdrawals.

Another matter which was discussed yesterday as having an important prospective influence on the gold movement was the reported placing abroad of a large part of the bond issue which the Pennsylvania Railroad was preparing yesterday to announce. The placing of a large block of American securities in Europe would naturally tend to check the outflow of gold.

LADEW'S YACHT SAVES CREW.

Schooner Caught in Storm at Sea and Men Rescued Just in Time.

When the steam schooner yacht Columbia, owned by J. Harvey Ladew, arrived in port yesterday from Florida, Capt. Bond reported that he had the crew of the Charleston fishing schooner Star on board, whom he had rescued at sea. The Columbia was on her voyage from Fernandina, where she had left the owner with a party of friends, when the schooner was sighted last Friday morning about two miles to windward, with all her canvas blown away and flying distress signals. The little vessel was then waterlogged and sinking.

On seeing the Columbia heave to the schooner's crew attempted to launch their dinghy, but a big sea swept the boat away. Capt. Bond got a line on board, which was made fast to the mainmast of the schooner, and, after being plunged under water several times, the three men managed to clamber, hand over hand, on to the deck of the Columbia.

Robert Galmier, the skipper of the Star, said that they had been caught in the storm and lost all their sails before they could reef her down.

GIRL KILLED BY SHOCK.

Explosion Threw Telephone Operator Into Chronic Nervous Prostration.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., April 21.—Miss Daisy Martin, 20 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Martin of Metuchen, died this morning of nervous prostration of long standing caused by shock. She was night telephone operator of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company at Metuchen.

When on duty on March 11, 1907, she was reclining on a couch in the telephone room, when a locomotive boiler blew up at the Metuchen Station, 200 feet away. Three of the engine crew were killed, and a heavy piece of iron was hurled through the window of the telephone office, burying itself in the wall just above Miss Martin's head.

The girl was terribly frightened, but answered all the calls of frightened Metuchen people aroused by the explosion before she collapsed, and had to be carried home.

She had been ill ever since. The funeral will be held on Friday.

DOG TO HAVE A FUNERAL.

"Tootsie" Lost Life in Saving Master and Mistress from Burning Building.

The children who live in Dumont Avenue, East New York, will bury "Tootsie," a little fox terrier, which has been a favorite with all of them, in the back yard of his master's home to-day. Early yesterday morning Tootsie gave her life to save those of her master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Dubeslitter, who live on the second floor of the house at 927 Dumont Avenue. There was a fire in the store below their flat at 2 o'clock yesterday morning and the flames ate up into the apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Dubeslitter were in great danger of being overcome by the smoke, when Tootsie, by scratching and barking furiously, awakened them. They escaped by a rear fire escape, forgetting the dog in their haste. On the street Mrs. Dubeslitter recalled her rescuer, and Battalion Chief Donohue ran into the smoke-filled house after Tootsie. He found the dog suffocated.

Mr. and Mrs. Dubeslitter will provide a coffin and the children who played with Tootsie will officiate at the funeral.

WHERE DOGS MUST BE MUM.

Nor May Roosters Crow in South Orange if This Ordinance Passes.

If an ordinance introduced at a meeting of the Board of Trustees of South Orange at its last meeting should pass the slumbers of the residents of that village will no longer be disturbed by barking dogs or crowing roosters between the hours of 10 at night and 6 in the morning.

The ordinance is in part as follows:

> The maintaining of lowing animals, crowing cocks, barking dogs, or fowls or animals which disturb the rest, sleep, and quiet of the neighborhood within the aforesaid hours are hereby prohibited.

The ordinance provides a fine of $5 for each offense, but does not clearly specify whether the obnoxious noisemaker or its owner shall be arrested.

The ordinance was introduced by a Trustee whose term expires on May 4 next.

12 GALLANT FIREMEN UPSET.

Two Hurt and a Pail of Water or Two Puts the Fire Out.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, April 21.—While on the way to a fire on the premises of the New Rochelle Coal and Lumber Company, the Union Hose Company's wagon, manned by twelve gallant volunteers, overturned at Main Street and Franklin Avenue tonight, burying the majority of the firemen beneath it. After they had been rescued it was found that George Matern and Henry March were badly bruised. Meantime the fire was put out with a few buckets of water.

$40,000,000 LOAN BY THE PENNSYLVANIA

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Head Bond Underwriting Syndicate; Paris Taking Half the Issue.

FUNDS FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Four Per Cent. Bonds, Secured by a Lien on the New York Terminal and Sold at About 96.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, it became known in Wall Street yesterday, has completed arrangements for the financing which it has had in contemplation for some time. To-day the railroad will probably announce a long-term bond issue amounting, it is said, to $40,000,000. The issue has already been underwritten by a firm of bankers, and a large part of it will probably be placed abroad.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., it is understood, head the underwriting syndicate, which will guarantee the success of the issue, but at the offices of that firm it was said yesterday that no definite information regarding the issue would be forthcoming until to-day.

The regular monthly meeting of the Pennsylvania Directors is scheduled for to-day, and the formal announcement of the bond issue will probably follow this meeting.

What was definitely understood in banking circles was that the issue of bonds would be long-term securities, and that the proceeds of this issue will provide for all the road's requirements for this year. It was suggested that the bonds will be secured by a lien on the New York terminal property and that the rate of interest will be 4 per cent. The price which the Pennsylvania was reported to have obtained for the bonds was 96, making the cost of the money to the road a little over 4¼ per cent. But of these rumored details no confirmation was had, the company itself and its bankers refusing to discuss the matter in advance of the official announcement of the loan, which is looked for to-day.

In reference to the prospect that a large part of the issue would be taken abroad, it was suggested in Wall Street that probably half of the total, or about $20,000,000, had practically been placed in Paris, where the Pennsylvania Railroad two years ago placed another large issue.

The flotation of these bonds, it is expected, will enable it to hurry forward some improvement work which otherwise would not be pushed at this time. In the recently published annual report reference was made to the fact that, owing to the scarcity of funds seeking investment in railroad enterprises and the general business outlook, it had been decided to limit new construction practically to the New York Terminal work and to other important undertakings. How far this policy may be changed as a result of the placing of the loan upon terms described yesterday in banking circles as very favorable could not be learned.

It was suggested yesterday, now that the favorable turn in the money market has made possible an advantageous loan, the road may decide to pursue more actively some improvement work other than the New York Terminal line.

The last important financing by the Pennsylvania Railroad was arranged a little over a year ago, when $60,000,000 of three-year notes were placed. This issue was secured by the deposit of $45,000,000 Pennsylvania equipmenet trust obligations, $10,000,000 of waterworks bonds, and $8,800,000 of Pennsylvania Company stock.

LINCOLN ONCE BEARDLESS.

Omaha's Dispute Settled by a Letter President Wrote a Little Girl.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., April 21.—The dispute which has raged in Omaha for a month as to whether or not Abraham Lincoln had whiskers when he was inaugurated the first time has been settled in the affirmative by a letter written by Lincoln himself to a little girl, Grace Bedell, who is now Mrs. Billings of Delphos, Kan., a copy of which has just reached this city to settle the dispute.

The letter is an answer to one the little girl wrote Lincoln, advising him to grow a beard, just before the election. Mr. Lincoln answered her and told her he had never worn whiskers, but while he was en route to Washington he passed through the town in which the little girl then lived and she called upon him. He told her he had decided to follow her advice and thereupon stroked the beard which he had raised at her suggestion.

The question of the beard arose here because of a statue of Lincoln which has just been erected by contributions from the public school children. The statue shows no beard and caused a hot controversy on the subject.

RICH MAN'S SON A BURGLAR.

De Witt Thompson, Black Sheep of the Family, Found Guilty.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, April 21.—A jury this morning brought in a verdict of guilty of burglary in the third degree against De Witt Thompson, who is a black sheep of a rich family owning many houses and apartments in New York and the Bedford Avenue section of Brooklyn.

The defendant was accused of robbing the store of Adams & Smith at Bedford, where the Thompsons have a country home. In the trial an effort was also made to connect him with a half dozen incendiary fires in Bedford last year, causing damages aggregating about $100,000.

One of the houses burned was the home of John R. Livermore, a Wall Street lawyer, whose son married Miss Fanny Iselin, daughter of C. Oliver Iselin. After the Livermore fire the family missed about $30,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry. Thompson is also wanted in Brooklyn, where he is accused of having shot a man.

PENSACOLA RIOTS RENEWED.

Strikers' Mob Attacks Street Car and Fatally Wounds Conductor.

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 21.—After a week of quiet, with the State troops present to preserve order, Pensacola was again thrown into a turmoil this afternoon when a mob of twenty-five men attacked a street car and probably fatally wounded the conductor, G. Hoffman. Following this attack W. L. Wittich, Jr., a stenographer, was fired upon as he was getting on a car to ride to his home. The city is quiet to-night.

The car that was attacked had just started on a trip from a suburb for the city. The mob suddenly appeared and attempted to board the car, but was started ahead at full speed. The mob then opened fire, three bullets striking the conductor. An alarm was turned in and a company of mounted troops went to the scene. The crowd had dispersed, however, when the troops arrived, and no arrests were made.

THE "PERFECT COP" IS DEAD.

Sergt. Cornelius P. Tubbs, Who Was 6 Feet 3, a Victim of Heart Disease.

Sergt. Cornelius F. Tubbs, 45 years old, who stood 6 feet 3 inches and weighed 255 pounds, and was known as the "Perfect Cop," died suddenly last night from an attack of heart disease at Witchel's Hotel, East Fifteenth Street and Neck Road, Sheepshead Bay. The Sergeant went to the Sheepshead Bay Police Station at 6 o'clock, and, reporting sick, went to bed. Shortly after he had retired he was seized with a severe attack of heart disease, and died before Dr. John W. Poole, who was sent for immediately, arrived. The Sergeant was one of the most popular police officers on the island, and was the son of John Tubbs, who has the cab privilege at the White Star Line piers.

RUSSIAN ACTRESS ROBBED.

Sneak Thief Takes Jewels from Dressing Room While She Is on the Stage.

When Mme. Komisarzhevsky, the Russian actress, was on the stage of Webster Hall, 119 East Eleventh Street, last night, where a benefit for the Russian poor was in progress, some thief slipped into the actress's dressing room and stole two brooches, the gifts to Mme. Komisarzhevsky of the Czar. The actress discovered her loss when she had finished her act and immediately notified Police Headquarters.

One brooch, according to her description, was set with two large and twelve small diamonds. The other was set with two large pearls.

FIRE ENGINE AND CAR CRASH.

Engine Totally Wrecked and Its Crew Hurled Into the Street.

Fireman Charles Fisher was driving Engine 11 to a fire at Madison and Scammel Streets early last evening, and at Jackson and Grand Streets Lieut. De Size, on the rear of the engine, whistled for the right of way.

Motorman Charles McEnery either didn't hear or misunderstood, for he did not stop the Grand Street trolley car he was running, and the fire engine and car collided. The engine was thrown against a telegraph pole and totally wrecked.

Fisher and the Lieutenant, as well as Engineer Thomas Mahoney, were thrown into the street, but escaped with bruises. The horses were not hurt.

McEnery was arrested and held by Magistrate Walsh in the Night Court in $500 bail.

MERRY WIDOW HAT LIFE BUOY

Prevents Despondent Young Woman Wearer from Drowning Herself.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 21.—Acting as a life preserver a big "Merry Widow" hat to-day balked the efforts of Miss Zelma Davis, 20 years old, to drown herself in Wade Park Lake. Try as she might, the young woman could not pull her head beneath the surface of the water, the big hat resisting all efforts to be submerged.

Just as the young woman was jerking out the hatpins, to rid herself of her life buoy, William Davidson of 8,106 Cory Avenue reached her side. He had seen her plunge from the boat dock and had leaped after her. He held the struggling girl till a park employe arrived in a boat. In St. Clair Hospital, where physicians say the young woman will recover, she gave her address as 929 Fruit Avenue, and said lack of employment had driven her frantic.

PATERSON, N. J., April 21.—Residents of the west side of the city living in the vicinity of the Barbour Pond woke up this morning to find that a thick coating of ice had formed during the night on the sheet of water. Ice, too, had formed on the Morris Canal and other places where there is still water. The oldest inhabitant hereabout does not remember anything like this for April 21. Farmers in this section with some reputation as weather prophets say that there will not be mild weather until we have had a snowstorm.

CHILD FALLS IN THE SEWER.

Is Rescued by a Truckman After Its Ten-Foot Tumble.

Little Joseph Hess, the 5-year-old son of Joseph Hess of 327 East Twenty-fourth Street, fell through a manhole into the sewer at the corner of Twenty-fourth Street and First Avenue last evening, and was rescued a few minutes later by William Hayes, a truck driver of 338 East Thirty-eighth Street, who descended into the sewer in search of the child.

A number of boys and young men were playing ball in the street when their ball rolled into an opening into the manhole. Little Joseph toddled to the brink of the opening and was either jostled or fell into the sewer which was ten feet deep. The child landed upon a layer of mud.

Hayes, who was passing with his truck, tied a rope about his waist and descended, and found the child lying near the opening, and tied the rope around him.

Patrolman Leonard of the East Twenty-second Street Station, who came along just then, pulled the child up by the rope, and Hayes was then pulled up.

A surgeon from Bellevue Hospital said that the child did not appear to be much the worse for his fall.

ELUDES CHAPERON AND WEDS SECRETLY

MARRIED BY DR. BURRELL

Florence Farwell, Banker's Daughter, Returns to School After Her Marriage to Roy McGibbon.

Miss Florence Farwell, the daughter of a wealthy Canadian banker and a boarder in a school in this city, was married to Roy Hosmer McGibbon, a young medical student of Montreal, in romantic fashion yesterday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Burrell in the Marble Collegiate Church, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, outwitting the chaperon of the boarding school.

After the ceremony the bride returned to the school, which is within a stone's throw of Fifth Avenue. Her grandparents in Sherbrooke, Canada, have been sent for and will arrive to-day.

Mrs. McGibbon is 19 years old. Her husband has just attained his majority. The courtship was pursued in Montreal, Atlantic City, and New York. The girl was to have been graduated next June. Six weeks ago Miss Farwell returned to Sherbrooke to visit her grandfather, William Farwell, who controls a string of banks in the Dominion. Miss Farwell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farwell, are now cruising on the Nile. The young girl was ill when she visited in Sherbrooke, but she recovered sufficiently to attend a dance in Montreal. There she met young McGibbon, and it was a case of love at first sight.

Miss Farwell recovered her health and returned to her school. Last Friday her grandparents arrived in New York and took her to Atlantic City for the Easter holiday. When the trio arrived on the boardwalk, Mr. McGibbon appeared. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Farwell and their granddaughter returned to the Waldorf-Astoria, with the student in their train, and as it was looked upon as a mere boy-and-girl attachment, the older folk did not object.

Monday afternoon the Farwells departed, and Miss Farwell went to the Grand Central Station to say good-bye. After the Canadian express pulled out she found McGibbon by her side, in accordance with a previous arrangement. They went to the Hotel Belmont and telephoned to Clerk Scully of the License Bureau to remain until they could come to the City Hall. Then they went down to the clerk, and, swearing that they were of age, received a permit to marry. With this document in the inside pocket of his coat McGibbon escorted Miss Farwell to her school and vanished.

On Monday evening McGibbon was allowed to call on the girl, and during his brief moments with her the plan was made to elude the chaperon and be married. Yesterday the girl obtained permission to go shopping. She and a chaperon left the school yesterday afternoon and went to a shop in Fifth Avenue, near Thirty-fourth Street. There she eluded the chaperon, and dashed to the Thirty-fourth Street entrance, where McGibbon, accompanied by his brother Philip, was waiting. The trio hastened to the Little Church Around the Corner in Twenty-ninth Street. Here the marriage license failed to help them, and their request to be married was refused. Then they went to the Marble Collegiate Church, and the boarding school girl and her suitor were married.

"I am going back to school now, Roy," said the bride simply, and after shaking hands with the young man amid the Fifth Avenue throng, she hurried away and returned to school. The McGibbon boys went to the Hotel Manhattan. Young Mrs. McGibbon had a plausible explanation on her lips, but she was intercepted by the story of the lost chaperon and various advices from the License Bureau. Finally she admitted that the marriage had taken place.

"I married Roy," she announced, "because I love him and because I was afraid that I should change. I have known and loved him for six weeks, and I defy any one to part us." Notwithstanding her new dignity Mrs. McGibbon was sent to her room and messages were sent to her grandfather. Mr. McGibbon was also summoned to the school. After a conference with the school officials he departed looking very sad.

AUTO WRECKED; WOMAN HURT

Four Others Slightly Injured When Car Crashed Into Telegraph Pole.

The wreck of an automobile was found by a policeman about 11 o'Clock last night on the Richmond Terrace, near Sailors' Snug Harbor, Richmond. The auto had hit a telegraph pole on the right hand side of the terrace, and was in débris. By means of the number it was found that the machine belonged to C. W. Hunt, an iron manufacturer, living on Grymes's Hill, Richmond, and from Mr. Hunt it was learned that five persons were in the machine when it was wrecked, but only one was severely hurt.

Mr. Hunt's son, William, Miss Hunt, a man whose name Mr. Hunt did not give, Miss Beatrice Voorhis of Livingston, and the Hunt chauffeur, a negro, made up the five. They had been to a dance at the Staten Island Academy. Not long before the officer found the machine they started to take Miss Voorhis home. Near Sailors' Snug Harbor the steering gear broke or the chauffeur lost control of the car and it dashed into the pole.

All five were thrown out and suffered from bruises, shock, and lacerations, and an unused arm on the telegraph pole falling struck Miss Voorhis. Her right knee was badly injured, two of her teeth were knocked out, and she was cut about the face. She was assisted to her home, not very far away, and there attended by Dr. Woods. The others were treated and also went to their homes.

Jury Breaks Horseman Haight's Will.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., April 21.—A jury in the Supreme Court, after all-night consideration of evidence, returned this morning a verdict breaking the will of William H. Haight, horseman of this city, who died in 1906, leaving the bulk of his $100,000 estate to his daughter, Meda, now the wife of Dr. N. P. Pennock of this city. Mr. Haight was married four times. Robert G. Haight, a son by the first Mrs. Haight, contested the will on the ground that his father's mind was weakened.

SMALL CHANCE FOR STATE WIRE CONTROL

Senate Passes Bill Extending Work of Utilities Commission, but Assembly Is Hostile.

GRADY ATTACKS MEASURE

Senator Page Says That Final Passage of the Bill Would Stop Poolroom Evil.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—The Senate to-day suspended its rules and, with the aid of an emergency message, passed the Page amendments to the Public Service Commission act, placing telephone and telegraph companies under State supervision and generally strengthening the existing law.

While the vote on the final passage was 30 to 15, a day was consumed by the opposition which will keep it from the Assembly until Thursday, the last day of the session.

It was apparent that the Republican machine leaders decided to send the bill to its grave in the Assembly. Gov. Hughes had strongly urged the passage of such a bill in his annual message, but just before the Rules Committee took charge of the Assembly business, the companion bill in the Assembly was cut in two, the extension of jurisdiction being placed in a separate bill. Talk of Assembly leaders to-day left no doubt that this part of the Governor's plan of reform is also doomed to slaughter.

Speaking of the bill to-night Senator Page said:

"It seems to me important to point out one feature involved in the conferring of jurisdiction on the commissions over the telegraph and telephone companies. This is the power that the commission will have to put an end to the poolroom business. In view of the very large vote by which the Assembly passed the anti-race track bills, I assume that it will be equally desirous to pass these amendments in order to end the poolroom evil.

"With the control over the telegraph and telephone business delegated to them by this bill, the Public Service Commission would be enabled to prevent the use of telephone and telegraph service in the poolroom business. Without such service poolrooms would be unable to exist.

"The reason telegraph and telephone companies can and do serve the poolrooms under cover, or by devices, is that their secret contracts and memoranda and the information in their possession are not subject to the supervision of any public officials.

Must File Schedules.

By this bill, however, the companies are required to file with the commissions schedules showing the rates and charges for all classes of service in the form to be prescribed by the commissions. They must also file copies of every contract, agreement, and arrangement in writing relating in any way to the maintenance or use of a telegraph or telephone line or a service by or over such lines."

Early to-day Senator Page called up his motion for a suspension of the rules to pass the bill out of its order. The Senate adopted the motion by a vote of 28. Senators Emerson, Gilchrist, Knapp, and Wilcox, (Republicans,) who voted against the Race Track bills, also voted to-day against the Page motion.

Senators Fuller, Cohalan, and Taylor (Democrats) voted with the Republicans in favor of the motion. By practically the same vote the Judiciary Committee was discharged from further consideration of the bill.

Senator Grady made a six-hour fight against the bill, and was the only Senator who talked on the measure. Early in the fight Senator Grady urged the Senate to let the matter die this session. He said there was no doubt that the Governor intended to call an extra session, and he believed there would be more time in an extraordinary session to give the bill the careful study the subject demanded.

He offered nine amendments, many of them being changes suggested by corporation representatives before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Minority Attacks Commission.

All the amendments were voted down and then the minority leader made an attack on the Public Service Commissions.

"They are not to be charged with reckless haste or brilliant talent," he remarked. "The most conspicuous thing about the up-State commission is that it has established the most elaborate and expensive department in Albany. It is a personal rather than a political commission."

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Senators Agnew, Armstrong, Allds, Burr, Carpenter, Cassidy, Cobb, Cohalan, Cordts, Davis, Dunn, Fancher, Foelker, Fuller, Gates, Heacock, Hill, Hinman, Hooker, O'Neil, Page, Raines, Saxe, Smith, Taylor, Travis, Tully, Wemple, White, and Wilcox—30.

Nays—Senators Boyce, Cullen, Frawley, Grady, Hasenflug, Knapp, McCall, McManus, Mullaney, Owens, Ramsperger, Sohmer, Sullivan, and Thompson—15.

The bill must now go to the Assembly Rules Committee, which will not meet until to-morrow afternoon to make up the last calendar for Thursday's session, which must close at noon. If Senator Grady had not talked against time, it would have been possible to place it on to-morrow's calendar in the Assembly.

Speaker Wadsworth would make no positive statement as to the fate of the bill when it does reach the Assembly. It will be subject to amendments, and unless it goes through in its present form there is no hope of sending the bill to the Governor at the regular session.

NEEDN'T OPEN BALLOT BOXES.

Defeated Candidate Cannot Compel Election Board to Scan Ballots.

ALBANY, April 21.—The court of Appeals has decided that a Board of Election Canvassers cannot be compelled by mandamus to delve into a ballot box and go behind ballots which were marked on election night. Patrick H. McDonald, Democrat, was elected Alderman of the Eighth Ward of this city by a majority of 9. Patrick White, Republican, contested McDonald's election.

CHARTER COMMISSION NAMED.

New Body Will Make Report on New York Instrument to Next Legislature.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Gov. Hughes to-day named the new New York City Charter Revision Commission of fifteen members provided for under the Page bill. The new commission is to continue the work of a commission of nine, which was established under an act passed at the last session, and which went out of existence after rendering a preliminary report to the Governor on Dec. 1 last year. The new commission, in its discretion, may either amend the existing New York City charter or draft a new charter.

The following were members of the old commission, reappointed by the Governor on the new commission: President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen, Controller Metz, William M. Ivins, Dr. E. R. L. Gould, Nathaniel A. Elsberg, J. Hampden Dougherty, Charles H. Strong, George L. Duval, and Alderman James Cowden Meyers. In addition, the following new members were appointed: George McAneeny of Manhattan, Almet R. Latson, and Alfred J. Boulton of Brooklyn, William W. Niles of the Bronx, Harrison S. Moore of Queens, and Borough President George Cromwell of Richmond.

Borough President McGowan was appointed at the request of Mayor McClellan, who declined to accept a place on the commission. Under the Page bill the commission will render its report with legislation to carry out its recommendations to the next session of the Legislature.

FOR BUILDING OF SUBWAYS.

Bill Passes Assembly Providing for Use of Private Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—The bill introduced by Beverley R. Robinson of the Twenty-seventh New York District, and providing for amendments to the Elsberg rapid transit law, which would permit construction of subways in New York City by private capital, was passed in the Assembly to-day by a vote of 99 to 16. The negative votes in the Assembly were cast by Democratic members of the House.

The bill provides two methods to facilitate the building of subways. The first method involves the construction of subways by private corporations under franchises for a period of not more than fifty years, when the city at its own discretion may take over the system at a price not to exceed the actual cost of construction and equipment.

The other method contemplates the construction of subways by the city, and their lease to private corporations for a period of not more than thirty-five years, when the city may take them over by paying the cost of the equipment, put in by the lessee corporation.

BLOCKS LEGISLATION.

Senator Grady Takes Advantage of Six-Hour Speech Rule.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Almost the entire legislative calendar was held up last night and to-day by a fight brought about by Senator Grady, who sought to have stricken from the Senate calendar a bill amending the insurance law in reference to reinsurance. It was a department measure, and it upset the provisions of the law which Senator Grady was instrumental in advancing two years ago.

In the parliamentary tangle that followed his motion, Lieut. Gov. Chanler ruled against the Democratic leader, and he appealed from the decision of the Chair. The Senate sustained the Lieutenant Governor, and following this action last night Senator Grady forced an adjournment.

To-day he resumed the fight, making it clear that he would take the six hours allowed by the Senate rules to debate every bill on final passage.

SUSTAIN GOVERNOR'S VETO.

Only 55 of the 95 Republicans of the Assembly Voted with Him.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—There are 95 Republican members of the Assembly, but only 55 votes could be found to sustain a veto of an escheat bill by Gov. Hughes at to-day's session. This was in despite of the warm plea by Majority Leader Merritt that the Assembly refuse to pursue the unusual course of reversing the Governor's action.

The measure vetoed by the Governor was a bill providing for the release to Christine Zons of "all right, title, and interest of the people of the State of New York" in certain property acquired by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company under condemnation proceedings in the Borough of Queens.

Gov. Hughes, in vetoing the bill, followed earlier practice, pointing out in his veto message that the applicant could find redress under the general law.

MORE PAY FOR SURROGATES.

McCarren's Bill Provides Increase from Inheritance Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—The Senate at its night session passed the McCarren bill by which increases in the salary of Surrogates in New York, Kings, Queens, Richmond, Nassau, and Suffolk Counties are being provided from the collateral inheritance tax.

The Surrogate of Kings gets the largest increase, or $7,500, in addition to his present salary of $10,000. The other increases are $2,500 for the Surrogates of New York and Queens, $600 for Richmond, $1,600 for Nassau, and $1,800 for Suffolk.

Senators Armstrong and Hinman, Republicans, and Fuller, Democrat, bitterly opposed the bill.

STOCK TIPSTERS CONVICTED.

Husband Sentenced to Clinton Prison, Sentence Suspended on Wife.

Thomas O'Connor and his wife, Frances O'Connor, indicted under the name of Frances McLain, were convicted before Judge Holt, in the Criminal Branch of the United States Circuit Court, yesterday morning, of using the mails to defraud. Judge Holt sentenced O'Connor to fifteen months in Clinton Prison and suspended sentence on the woman.

The O'Connors were charged with sending circulars through the mails saying that they had inside information on the stock market. In the circulars they suggested certain so-called stock brokerage firms as best to handle the business of clients, and these were shown to be conducted by O'Connor under various names.

Judge Holt, in suspending sentence on Mrs. O'Connor, told her that if hereafter she engaged in schemes similar to those of which she had been found guilty she would be sent to prison without delay.

Mrs. O'Connor wept when her husband was sentenced.

GLACIA CALLA TESTIFIES.

She Appears Before Grand Jury in Murder Case Against Husband.

EXETER, N. H., April 21.—Mrs. Paul E. Roy, otherwise known as Glacia Calla, who a few weeks ago publicly accused her husband, Paul E. Roy, of having murdered her brother, George A. Carkins, at Newington, early in the Winter, came here to-day and appeared as a witness before the Rockingham County Grand Jury.

She was in the courtroom for about two hours this forenoon and returned there immediately after luncheon. She declined to make any statement, and took an early train for Boston.

Olga Stein Starts Back to Russia.

Olga Stein, known as the "Russian Cassie Chadwick," who is accused in Russia of stealing property worth 10,790 rubles and of raising a check from 700 rubles to 100,000 rubles, will this morning be put on board the steamship Kherson, lying at the Bush Docks, Brooklyn, for extradition to Russia, in accordance with the mandate of a warrant received by Marshal Henkel yesterday from Assistant Secretary of State Robert E. Bacon.

RACING AUTO DIVES OFF BRIDGE; 4 HURT

James B. Ryall's Car Plunges Into Stream While Speeding Over Briarcliff Course.

RESCUERS JUST IN TIME

Another Racer Close Behind and Occupants Drag One Man Out of the Water.

The most serious accident that has occurred through the speeding of racing cars over the Briarcliff course happened yesterday morning just after dawn to James B. Ryall in his Matheson racer. Though not a competitor in the stock car race which will be run on Friday, Ryall, with three companions, was driving over the thirty-mile circuit in an effort to see what time could be made on the course by a racing car.

After leaving the bad stretch of road between Valhalla and East View, having circled three-quarters of the course, Ryall was attempting to speed on the final distance to the finish at Briarcliff.

Just before reaching Hawthorne the road dips slightly and swings rather abruptly to the right to cross a narrow bridge over Saw Mill River that flows west of Hawthorne. On the other side of the bridge is a wide curve to the left and the beginning of a short ascent which the racers like to take with a good momentum to carry them to the top.

Ryall swung around the abrupt right, turning without calculating correctly the width of the bridge, and struck the light pipe rail that guards either side. The rail gave way before the heavy car, and the machine and its occupants were hurled eight feet into the water below, the car turning turtle and falling upside down into the bed of the stream.

Of the four men thrown out by the impact, two of them landed on the bank on the other side. The other two fell clear of the car in the stream, and all four of them were badly shaken up and stunned by the fall.

Riding in the front seat with Ryall was C. W. Weed, an agent of the Matheson car, in the employ of A. G. Southworth of this city. Weed was thrown on the bank and escaped with a slight contusion of the shoulder and head. In the rear seat were W. L. Robertson, a brother of George Robertson, who will drive the Panhard racer in the stock car contest, and Edward Murray, a skater, employed at the Metropolitan Rink.

One Man in the River.

Robertson also fell on the bank and sustained only slight bruises, but Murray landed in the stream and hit his head on a root protruding from the bank. Ryall landed on his left leg and suffered a compound fracture of his ankle and many painful bruises.

Following the Matheson car around the circuit was the Allen-Kingston racer, a competitor in Friday's contest, in charge of A. L. Campbell and his mechanician. Campbell did not see the car plunge off the bridge, but came upon it only a few seconds after the accident. They stopped the racing machine and hurried to the aid of the unfortunate men.

Ryall and Murray were taken in the Allen-Kingston car and the machine made fast speed back toward East View to the County Almshouse. There the injured men were left in charge of the house physician while the racer sped on to Tarrytown and summoned Dr. C. W. Fairchild to their assistance.

When Dr. Fairchild arrived the men were examined and the compound fracture of the ankle proved the only serious injury sustained by Ryall, but Murray complained of great pain in his side and in his head. He was dazed and flighty, and appeared to have suffered a slight concussion of the brain.

Dr. Fairchild was uncertain whether or not there was an internal injury and feared that three ribs had been broken. It is believed, however, that he is in no danger. Ryall later in the day was removed in a touring car to his home in New York, but Murray remained at the hospital.

Both Weed and Robertson came to New York in the afternoon by train. Neither could say just how the accident had occurred, and did not think until the car plunged over the side of the bridge that they were traveling at a dangerous pace. Weed, though occupying the mechanician's seat, was not looking ahead when the car struck the rail and the plunge came without warning. Robertson saw the turn in the road, but expected to make it easily.

Only Once Around the Course.

Both men said they were making their first round of the course, denying reports that they had been riding around the circuit since 2 o'clock. They started out to see the racing cars practice, and, being the first on the ground, thought they would make the trial themselves before the others appeared. The roads were in bad shape, but Ryall drove carefully over both the northern and southern ends of the circuit and anticipated no danger on either the eastern or western stretches.

The fact that Ryall was not a driver in the race and the car not a contestant called forth some severe condemnation from the racing men at Briarcliff. They were unanimous in saying that the dangers of the course were great enough without being increased by outside cars driving about in practice hours, risking not only the lives of the operators, but of other drivers as well.

Ryall has the reputation of being a reckless driver. Three times previously he has sustained injuries in similar accidents, twice breaking his leg. He only recently took a plaster cast off the knee, and he had not regained full power of the limb. He raced in the twenty-four-hour event at Morris Park with his leg in a cast. He was eager to drive in the Briarcliff race, and was mentioned at one time as the probable pilot of the second Fiat entry. Later he was mentioned as likely to handle the Bianchi car. He is an automobile dealer, having the Matheson agency in Newark.

Robertson, Weed, and Murray are all close friends of Ryall, and live at the Lincoln Hotel, Broadway and Fifty-second Street.

Runaway Auto Wrecks Runabout.

An electric cab, in which was seated Mrs. Wheelock, its owner, of the Hotel Wellington, Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, became unruly in the East Drive in Central Park yesterday afternoon, opposite Sixty-seventh Street. The chauffeur, Harry Breen, a negro, of 145 West Thirty-sixth Street, shouted a warning when he lost control of the machine. Marvin Kamm of 110 West 125th Street, who was driving a pony runabout just ahead, jumped from the rig just in time to escape injury. The auto smashed the runabout. Mrs. Wheelock was uninjured.

to the fact that some of the checks bore the indorsement of a brokerage concern in Philadelphia. Mr. Ryan remembered that the firm was George H. Huhn & Son, who dealt extensively in electric storage battery stock. Mr. Ryan then testified:

"There was an account of electric storage battery stock probably in that office; speculations had to be made in Philadelphia. It was a Philadelphia corporation and was not listed here. Part of this money probably went to that account. It is only a surmise."

Q.—Do you know the details of the matters in connection with the electric storage battery account? A.—I never did, and I do not now.

Q.—Was that a matter Whitney had exclusive knowledge of? A.—Absolutely.

Q.—Was it your understanding that those electric storage battery accounts were really in their nature for the substantial benefit of certain people supposed to be influential in political life? A.—I don't know anything about it. At that time I supposed it was storage battery stock that the Metropolitan Street Railway Company owned and owns to-day, and was bought in open market.

Q.—You weren't cognizant of those accounts Mr. Whitney was carrying at Moore & Schley's? A.—No, Sir.

Ryan Made No Profit, He Says.

A juror demanded to know how much Mr. Ryan actually got out of the sale of this road.

"Only $111,000. That is all I received," said Mr. Ryan.

"What profit did Mr. Ryan get?" asked a juror.

"There was no profit," said Mr. Jerome. "He got for it just what he paid for it."

In other words Mr. Whitney took the purchase price of the road, $237,000, and added to it certain sums of money which had been disbursed for political purposes. And then sold the road to the Metropolitan Securities at that enhanced price; but Mr. Whitney at that time was not a Director in any of the roads.

"Is that correct, Mr. Ryan, as he stated?" asked a juror.

"Yes," said Mr. Ryan.

"Now, if Mr. Whitney had died before the purchase of this Wall & Cortlandt Street Ferry Railroad, was there any record by which these gentlemen could have got anything?"

"No," said Mr. Ryan. "I don't think we could have got a cent."

SECRET JURY FIXING HEARING.

Mr. Jerome Has Preferred Charges Against Court Officer Smith.

It was learned yesterday that Justice Scott of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has begun a secret hearing on charges preferred by District Attorney Jerome against Aleck Smith, the court officer named by William H. Tillinghast as the man who negotiated with him to become a professional juror. Smith at that time was an officer in ex-Justice Fursman's court. As the charges are heard in secret, only Justice Scott's decision will be made public.

Up to yesterday no one knew even that charges had been preferred, but it came out that District Attorney Jerome took action in the matter soon after Tillinghast and Julian, the former jury fixer of the Metropolitan Street Railway, testified in the hearing on the charges against the District Attorney. The original testimony of Tillinghast and Julian was given in the Fall of 1905 and in the Winter of 1906, when the Metropolitan jury-fixing investigation was on before Justice Seabury. The result of this hearing may have a more or less important bearing upon the effort to have Mr. Jerome ousted from office, which is being made by the Stockholders' Committee of the Metropolitan Street Railway, of which William F. King is Chairman.

The counsel for this committee, Franklin Pierce, has in his possession important evidence bearing on the Smith charges. Recently Mr. Pierce came into possession of a trunkful of old vouchers of the Metropolitan Street Railway signed by officials of the company's legal department as formerly organized, showing many payments to jurors, witnesses, and physicians. There are three vouchers showing payments to Aleck Smith by way of corroborating the testimony of Tillinghast.

The trunk and its contents have had a peculiar history. According to the story of Stanley Bagg, a fellow-investigator of Julian, it was taken out of the Metropolitan Street Railway offices some years ago and given into his custody to be destroyed, along with its contents. He did not, however, destroy it, and it is learned that at the time that Mr. Bagg and a former friend of his were telling District Attorney Jerome what they knew about the jury-fixing scandals the trunk was not far away.

Subsequently Bagg lost track of the trunk, and it turned up by accident not long ago, and came into possession of Mr. Pierce for such use as he may care to make of it in the Jerome investigation.

DINSER TO BE TRIED AGAIN.

Sentence of Man Convicted of Murdering Baby Set Aside.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 21.—The conviction of murder in the second degree against Gustav Dinser in New York was set aside by the Court of Appeals to-day. He killed his two-year-old baby. Dinser will be tried again.

Inter-Met Pays Franchise Tax.

ALBANY, April 21.—The Interborough-Metropolitan Street Railway Company to-day paid into the State Treasury $105,000, the amount of its franchise tax. The company was assessed for $139,000,000. The tax was due Jan. 15 last.

TO LIMIT BANK LOANS.

Senate Refuses to Reconsider Its Vote and Bill Goes to Hughes.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—The Senate to-day released the bill which restricts the loans of State banks and trust companies, which had been held up by Senator Grady's motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed two weeks ago.

Since its passage the bill had been upon the table, with the Grady motion, and Senator Hooker placed the Senate on record for it to-day by moving to take from the table the Grady motion. The motion to reconsider was lost by a vote of 28 to 15, and the bill now goes to the Governor.

The bill limits to 15 per cent. of the capital stock actually paid in the amount which a bank in the Borough of Manhattan may loan to any person, firm, or corporation. In the other boroughs of New York and in other parts of the State the limit on loans is 25 per cent.

ABANDONS BUCKET SHOP BILL

Cassidy's Desertion of the Measure Practically Defeats It.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Senator Cassidy, who introduced a bill to wipe out bucket shops in this State and advanced the measure to the order of final passage, practically abandoned the bill to-day when he permitted Senator Fuller of Brooklyn to move to substitute the O'Brien bill, which the Assembly passed last night, for the Cassidy measure on the Senate calendar.

Senator McCarren objected to the substitution, and the question whether or not the bills were identical was raised. After comparison by the Clerk of the Senate, it was decided that the bills were not identical, although the difference was slight, and the O'Brien bill was referred to the Codes Committee.

This action practically defeats the bill.

PAID $500 TO HUNT FOR GOLD.

"Col." Boynton Got One Investor, at Least, to Swallow His Bait.

When "Col." George Melville Boynton was arraigned in the Tombs Court yesterday morning, charged with "beating" the Hotel Hermitage out of an $80 bill, William Nutting of 1,402 Broadway made a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses against the prisoner. Mr. Nutting said he had been unable to recover $500 which he had given to Boynton to become a member of the "Colonel's" proposed exploring expedition into South America to search for gold.

Magistrate Finn held Boynton in $500 for examination to-day. Four other complainants appeared against him, two being negroes, whom he had employed as valets, who said that they had never received any wages, and were now unable to get their trunks from the Hotel Hermitage.

SHOT NEAR POLICE STATION.

Italian Arrested Near Fallen Man Had Threatening Letters in Pocket.

Policemen in the Hamilton Avenue Station, Brooklyn, heard two pistol shots just outside of the station house at 7 o'clock last night, and Policeman O'Reilly ran out and found one man lying on the ground and saw another man walking away.

O'Reilly caught the latter and took him to the station. The fallen man had been shot twice in the back and was unconscious. He was taken to the Long Island College Hospital, where it was said he would probably die. He was identified as Salvatore De Motto of 175 Sackett Street.

The prisoner said he was Ernest Cozza of 163 Sackett Street. He was charged with having shot De Motto, but denied it. No revolver was found on him, nor was any found in the street. In his pockets were three sealed letters which the police broke open and said were threatening letters demanding money, but were not addressed.

Cozza refused to explain his possession of these.

NEGRO KILLED IN SUBWAY.

Body Run Over by Three Trains—Road Blocked Half an Hour.

Leo A. Moore, 22 years old, a negro elevator man who was employed in the Lombard Apartment House, at West End Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, was killed last night at the Brooklyn Bridge Station of the Subway. Three southbound trains—a local and two expresses—are said to have struck him before his body was found underneath the second express train. The motormen of two of the trains were locked up on technical charges of homicide.

Charles Young, motorman of the local train, told the police that his train struck the man first about thirty feet south of the northerly end of the island platform. He said the man jumped in front of the train.

The body was found about fifteen feet south of the end of the platform on the express tracks, and the theory is that the man after being struck by the first train was crawling toward the platform when struck by the next train.

While the employes were at work getting the body from underneath the train, traffic on the express and local tracks was blocked for about half an hour.

500 SCOW TRIMMERS OUT.

They Strike Against a Proposed Wage Cut of $2 a Week.

Five hundred of the scow trimmers employed at the various dumps throughout the city went on strike yesterday against a proposed reduction of $2 a week in wages, and the others, about 300 in number, are expected to quit to-day.

Ralph Delli Paoli, who has the contract for trimming the scows, pays the city $1,800 a week for the privilege, employing and paying the scow trimmers and taking his profit in the sale of what is found at the dumps after paying everything.

The contractor has sublet part of the work to ten sub-contractors, who, he says as well as himself, have been steadily losing money since February on the contract. The strike affects the dumps at the foot of Clinton, Stanton, Delancey, East Twenty-ninth, East Forty-sixth, East Sixtieth, East Eightieth, East 107th, East 109th, and East 139th, Canal Street and North River, and the foot of West Thirtieth, West Forty-seventh, and West 134th Streets.

No attempts were made yesterday to put strike breakers to work, but men will be brought from Brooklyn to-day, and as trouble is feared when they are put to work Supt. De Wille of the Street Cleaning Department asked the Police Department to have reserves in readiness in case there is trouble.

ACTOR DIXEY GOES INTO IRON.

The Comedian Elected Vice President of a Jersey Foundry Company.

It became known yesterday that Henry E. Dixey, the comedian, has been chosen First Vice President of the Lackawanna Foundries, a two-hundred-thousand-dollar corporation. Mr. Dixey will take an active share in the management.

The Lackawanna Foundries has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey for the purpose of manufacturing iron castings and brass work at Dover, N. J. About 100 men will be employed. The President of the company is George Pierson, Mayor of Dover. Others interested in the project are Haverley B. Swart and Leslie G. Hillard, formerly connected with the Delaware and Lackawanna Steel Company.

BRIDGE SERVICE IMPROVED.

More Cars in Use and Fewer Delays, Service Board Report Shows.

Public Service Commissioner Bassett presented a report to the commission yesterday on the improvement of the service on the surface lines crossing Brooklyn Bridge since the commission took the matter up. The report set forth that a great improvement had been wrought by the activity of the commission.

The report holds that the cars of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Road were largely responsible for the delays that held up traffic.

The delays of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines were comparatively low, but they, too, have been reduced. The time of delays has been reduced from 1,060 minutes in September to 385 minutes in March. During March 133,000 surface cars crossed the bridge, an increase of 11,000 over the preceding September.

At this time one year ago the largest daily number of surface cars that crossed the bridge was approximately 4,000. To-day it is approximately 4,700. At this time a year ago the average number of surface cars crossing the bridge between 5 and 6 P. M. was 236. To-day it is 310.

The report was approved, and a resolution adopted for an investigation of the grade crossing accident at Eighty-sixth Street and Thirteenth Avenue, Brooklyn, on Monday night.

MISSIONARIES HONORED.

Evangelistic Committee Entertains Messrs. Chapman and Alexander.

An informal luncheon given to the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and the Rev. Charles M. Alexander at the Hotel Astor yesterday was attended by about 100 members of the Evangelistic Committee. Several hours were spent in an interchange of experiences and listening to the singing of sacred songs composed by Mr. Alexander.

The Rev. J. G. Fagg, who acted as toastmaster; Mr. Alexander, Dr. Arthur J. Smith, Dr. Chapman, and others told of the missionary work throughout the world, and particularly the good done by the open-air services it is proposed to resume in this city in the Summer.

A reception was given for Mrs. Alexander yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Seth Low.

Reform Club Anxious About the Bridge

The Reform Club, through its Municipal Affairs Committee, of which Calvin Tomkins is Chairman, has sent a communication to the Public Service Commission suggesting that that body inquire of at least three expert bridge engineers whether it will be safe to change schedules for Brooklyn Bridge trains as contemplated. The communication suggests that the bridge is already carrying greater loads than it was intended to carry, and that there is a possibility of something happening if the loads are increased.

NEW RARITAN BRIDGE OPENS FOR TRAVEL

No Ceremony, but a Sigh of Relief Goes Up from Railroad Men and Commuters.

A HOODOO PUT TO SLEEP

Gales and Dynamite Prolonged It, but the Million-Dollar Giant Is Working at Last—Cuts Time to Resorts.

Special to The New York Times.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., April 21.—The million-dollar steel and masonry double-track drawbridge of the New York & Long Branch Railroad spanning the Raritan River at this place was opened to regular travel to the North Jersey coast resorts, Lakewood and Atlantic City, late this morning. The old wooden bridge, which has been a matter of grave concern to the railroad management and to travelers for more than a year, was at once abandoned, and to-night the dismantling of the structure is well under way.

Work on the new bridge began in February, 1896, and of late has been pushed with feverish haste. It was almost ready for service three weeks ago when somebody dynamited the north end of the draw, seriously damaging the locking mechanism.

No fireworks or ceremonies of any kind marked the actual opening. The last spike on the approaches was driven at 9:45 o'clock this morning, and the next train, a north-bound Jersey Central, went over it. The bridge means freedom from aggravating delays caused when trains in opposite direction had to wait for one or the other to clear the old single-track span. It will also mean a schedule nearly five minutes faster for express trains, as it eliminates the sharp curve at South Amboy. The new bridge will also carry heavier locomotives, and, therefore, longer trains than have ever been known on the Long Branch Road.

It consists of thirty steel spans resting on stone piers, the foundations of some of which were carried to a depth of 160 feet. The bridge is eight feet higher than the old one. The swing draw truss is 331 feet long or seventy feet shorter than the old one, which, for years after its opening in 1875, possessed the distinction of being the longest in the world. Travel then was limited to three or four trains a day; now the whole travel of the Pennsylvania and Central Railroad of New Jersey south and east of the former's main line focusses upon this point.

A hoodoo on the old bridge began to be talked about late last Summer when the swing pier sank, rendering it impossible to operate the bridge. For days no vessel passed. Vessel men grew angry and the Government asked questions. Long after the close of their season the three big twin-screw steamers of the Sandy Hook route lay at their Communipaw docks with fires banked, ready for instant service should the bridge fall. A temporary cut thirty-two feet wide was made, and through this tugs stationed close by guided the trade of the river.

There was no danger. The General Manager himself said so. But all through the Winter the regular travelers dropped their newspapers as the trains crept gingerly out on the groaning woodwork and stopped at the makeshift draw. Once over, they talked without the formality of an introduction, very often about feats of swimming. In all weathers ex-United States Senator Rufus Blodgett, the venerable General Superintendent, could be seen on the turn table of the wooden derrick which swung the temporary span, whittling a stick and saying nothing.

The troubles reached their climax on the night of April 8, when the derrick broke in a northwest gale, allowing the span to fall into the river, holding up all traffic for four hours.

Ex-Mayor John H. Gregory, proprietor of the marine graveyard here, is removing the old structure, which will soon be floated to his beach, where for years train passengers have witnessed the slow demolition of the Drew, the General Slocum of gruesome memory, and other steamers as well known in the annals of river and harbor travel of the Port of New York, and where the big sidewheel boats Fairfield and City of Key West have just found their last resting place.

WINS SUIT AGAINST GARAGE.

Miss Rothschild, Alleging Neglect of Auto in Storage, Recovers $113.

A decision of interest to automobile owners was announced yesterday by Justice Weil, in the Municipal Court for the Fifth District.

Miss Gertrude G. Rothschild of 4 East Sixty-seventh Street, through Page, Crawford & Tuska sued the Empire State Garage to recover damages for loss of parts of a battery and deterioration to tires of her electric victoria. In her complaint she asserted that she left her car at the garage on dead storage in December, 1906, and that when she sent for it the next Summer she found the tires in poor condition from not having been "jacked up" and because the machine had not been kept in a dry, light place; besides, rubber fittings to the battery had disappeared.

She recovered judgment for $113 and costs.

EVANGELISTS WANT $40,000.

Will Try to Raise That Sum for Tent Religious Meetings.

Five thousand persons gathered in the Metropolitan Opera House last night at the invitation of the Evangelistic Committee of New York City, for the purpose of starting a campaign to raise funds for conducting the tent religious meetings throughout the city during the coming Summer.

For half an hour Charles M. Alexander, the singing evangelist, who has been conducting services with the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman throughout this country and Canada, led a song service, with a choir of 300 voices.

The services proper were opened with prayer by the Rev. George Alexander, who was followed by Right Rev. Frederick Courtenay reading a chapter from the Bible. The Rev. J. Arthur Smith, who is to be Superintendent of the tent work, said it was hoped to conduct the same tents as last Summer and add two or three at least, and that it would take $40,000 for the season's work.

The Rev. Dr. Chapman preached a sermon. Other speakers were the Rev. A. F. Schauffler and the Rev. G. W. Gordon.

Church Indorses Hughes Racing Bills.

The congregation of the First Presbyterian Church, Yonkers, yesterday unanimously adopted a minute proposed by the Men's Association, commending the stand of Gov. Hughes on race track betting. Hope is expressed that a Senator who will vote for the Governor's bills to abolish betting will be elected.

CITY BREVITIES.

A public hearing on all forms of advertising signs, in their relationship to the Building Code and its revision, will be held next Wednesday, April 29, at 2 o'clock, in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall, by a committee of the Building Code Revision Commission.

At the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Society of New York, last night, Col. A. C. Bakewell was re-elected President. Afterward Prof. William H. Burr of Columbia gave an illustrated address on the Panama Canal project.

Approval of the Fowler bill for a currency commission, now before the House of Representatives, was expressed at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Committee of the Merchants' Association, which took an active part in opposition to the Aldrich bill.

Among the marriage licenses issued at the City Hall yesterday were: Graham Blandy of 26 East Thirty-eighth Street, to wed Georgette H. Borland of 116 East Thirty-seventh Street; Herbert W. Gittens of 158 East Seventy-ninth Street, to wed Helen May Lawrence of 252 West Ninety-first Street, and Josiah H. Smith of 45 West Ninety-third Street, to wed Amy Chase of the same address.

HIS HEART OUT OF PLACE.

Surgeons Can't Understand How Patient Lived with Organs Topsy-Turvy.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 21.—With his internal organs so mixed as to baffle the experienced surgeons at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Judge John E. McKeighan of St. Louis has succumbed after an operation.

The Judge became suddenly ill several months ago. His medical advisers diagnosed the case as a stomach trouble. When the incision was made strange conditions were discovered, but it was thought best not to explore further, the surgeon removing part of a diseased kidney. The Judge lived twenty hours.

His family consented to an autopsy, and then the surgeons found that the heart was turned to the right instead of to the left. The liver was upside down, with other organs on top of it and near the heart.

What puzzled the surgeons is how the Judge managed to live to be 66 years old. He never complained of his stomach until two months before he died.

PROBATE OF BAKER WILL.

Case Will Be Appealed to the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 21.—Judge Flint of the Probate Court allowed to-day the will of Walter F. Baker, which gave $100,000 to Nathalie Hurd, a child. Baker died in the home of her parents. The child died recently.

The case will now be taken to the Supreme Court on an appeal of Edward Baker, contestant.

SNOW COST CITY $551,304.

Saving of $1,919,195 on the Season, According to Commissioner Crowell.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Crowell made known yesterday the cost of the snow removal for the Winter. The total snowfall was 32.2 inches, and to clear it away cost the city $551,304.55. During 1906-1907 52.4 inches of snow fell and to remove it cost $2,470,499.90.

The Commissioner figures that the city saved, this season, $1,919,195.44, on its snow bills. The cost was 23 per cent. of last year, while the snowfall was 62 per cent. of that season.

To Inspect Books for Haffen Deals.

Commissioner of Accounts Mitchel, who has been after the books of the Geiszler-Haas Realty Company for some weeks, in connection with the Haffen inquiry, obtained the consent of the Directors of the concern yesterday to an examination of the books providing nothing was made public except that which affected President Haffen. Mr. Haffen's counsel reiterated that his client had nothing to do with the firm and was not responsible for the withholding of the books.

BRYAN QUESTIONED BY BIG AUDIENCE

He Says He Would Have the Government Give Work to the Unemployed.

TALK IN COOPER UNION

Champions Individualism as Against Socialism—The Negro Must Win His Right to Vote in the South.

After spending the greater part of yesterday in Trenton, N. J., escaping a speech in Jersey City last night, William J. Bryan, before attending a supper of the Missouri Society, delivered a long and optimistic address in Cooper Union about the spread of education and democracy all over the world, and then delivered himself into the hands of the young army of questioners that always crowd the big auditorium

He said that he had such a good time answering the questions that he was sorry that he had not cut out his speech at first and given up his whole time there to talking back and forth with the audience that filled Cooper Union to its limit.

"If elected, what would you do with the unemployed?" was one of the first questions that was sent up on a slip of paper.

"We will cut out the phrase about 'if elected,'" said Mr. Bryan, a smile that was almost a grin spreading over his now broad countenance. "That is a hypothetical question, and I have been prejudiced against hypothetical questions for some time.

"In 1896 The New York World [an uproar of hisses and boos] put together a hypothetical question embodying its idea of what sort of a man I was. The World submitted this hypothetical question to an expert on insanity, and he answered that the hypothetical man there pictured was certainly a lunatic. [Laughter.]

"I shall then tell what I think ought to be done about the unemployed. There are two sorts of relief in a case of this kind—temporary and permanent. It is the duty of the Government to see to it that no man suffers without his fault. No humane Government will allow a human being to die if it can possibly prevent it. It should itself provide work as long as there is any to give, and if the people are suffering for lack of work it should give aid directly.

"There is a permanent solution of the problem of the unemployed. We need a more equitable distribution of the proceeds of human toil. [Great applause.] The Government can help do this by correcting those faults, removing those abuses, that work against the principle of a man getting a just reward for his contribution to the welfare of his kind."

The same questioner had put upon his slip a request that Mr. Bryan tell the difference between Democracy and Socialism.

Bryan's Answer to Socialism.

"I am not averse to telling what I think about Socialism," went on the speaker. "The Socialist is seeking relief for present conditions. There are two kinds of Socialists—those who are seeking it in government because their hearts yearn to help those who need help, and those who, not finding the reward they think they are entitled to in individualism, seek it in Socialism. The Socialist must be met fairly and squarely and answered.

"A man once wrote to me asking me if I subscribed to Socialism. I asked him what he meant by it and he answered: The ownership and operation by the Government of all the means of production and distribution of wealth. No, I do not subscribe to Socialism. I believe that individualism is better than Socialism if you will cut away the abuses that have grown up around individualism.

"I believe that competition is good. I believe that Socialism grades mankind down and that individualism grades man up. Man needs the stimulus, the spur of competition. I believe that instead of destroying competition we should encourage it. Let every man be placed fairly and squarely before one another, and let every man have as his reward of wealth whatever measure his intelligence and industry entitle him.

"But there are two great principles that must be recognized in talking about this matter. The economic principle requires that the Government should see to it that every man's reward is commensurate with his service. If the Government doesn't do that the man comes more and more to see that he is not being dealt with fairly and his energies are paralyzed.

"But even when the Government guarantees to every man a compensation commensurate with his service, there is a religious principle that enters in. The man who can earn more than another man is held accountable at a high tribunal for the stewardship of his larger earning. Unselfish contributions are one of man's greatest delights, and you should think a long time before you rob him of them.

"Moreover, Socialism does not take into account any large idea of justice. It is no high ideal of brotherhood that does not tolerate the idea of justice. The man who contributes more to the welfare of human kind than another is entitled to more reward than that other."

Mr. Bryan read out this question from a slip of paper:

> You said in your speech that the people rule in this country. Do you mean that they rule or that they ought to rule?

Mr. Bryan coughed, smiled, and took a long drink of water. "I needed a drink of water on that one," he went on. "When I say that the people rule I am speaking generally. The wise man gets the idea in his head; the foolish man gets it in the neck.

Sleepers Get Their Pockets Picked.

"I do not mean that the people get what they want the first time they try. But they can get it—they will get it, I am sure. If people go to sleep their pockets will be picked—until they wake up."

Another slip of paper was handed to Mr. Bryan by Charles Sprague Smith, Director of the People's Institute, who took pains to explain that the speaker had only fifteen minutes to give to answering questions, since he had to hurry off to fill another engagement. This question read:

> Would not the abolition of the tariff bring nearer the brotherhood of man?

"I have spent some twenty-eight years talking about that," said Mr. Bryan. "Let the questioner come to some other meeting where I am to speak, and I will try to answer him."

"Is the policy of disfranchising the negroes advocated by the Democrats of the South in accordance with the brotherhood of man?" was the next question read out. Mr. Bryan had talked about this brotherhood.

"Is this question asked by a colored man or by a Republican?" Mr. Bryan wanted to know. "They are not always synonymous, these two terms."

No one rose immediately, but in a few moments a young man got up and acknowledged the question.

"Are you a Republican?" asked Mr. Bryan.

"I am not a Republican, because I am not of age."

Negro Voting in the South.

"Well, that's a fairly good reason for not being one," said Mr. Bryan. "It's as good as some of the reasons I have heard for being one. I can't go into that question very largely, because I haven't time. Where the qualification is educational every man down there can fit himself to claim a vote. The limit on suffrage is to be justified only when self-protection demands it. The white man of the South puts on a suffrage qualification for that reason. The white man, as it is, gives the black man a better government than the black man would give the white. The Republicans of the North have put upon the Filipinos a government that robs them of the hope of ever getting a vote under it; let the colored Republicans think of that. The negro of the South may fit himself to claim his vote."

In answer to another question Mr. Bryan said he believed in direct nominations. He then looked at his watch, finding that he had spent nearly thirty minutes answering questions, instead of fifteen. He rushed away, followed by generous applause.

In his speech the Nebraskan talked about the spread of education and the ideal of democracy all over the world. He said that on his trip around the earth he had found a never-ending line of schools, whose teachers were American and whose supporting treasuries were contributed to by American philanthropists.

"I have often thought that we could say that the sun never sets upon American philanthropy," said the speaker. "Before the sun goes down upon a college or school, upheld by American money by brains, it rises upon another."

Young Bryan Unsubsidized.

In the course of his address Mr. Bryan said that he had a son in college about whose career there was yet some doubt. "But I think he leans toward journalism—not subsidized," he declared, whereat the Cooper Union audience howled itself almost hoarse.

He sorrowed for the naïve foreign assumption that an American politician of the republican order necessarily had anything to do with a republican form of Government; said that the United States Senate did not deserve a great deal of respect because it had five times voted down the proposition, already approved in the popular body of the Congress, to elect United States Senators by direct vote of the people, and had this to say about what this Nation has done in the world:

"For ten decades this Nation has been the greatest power in the world. For a century this Nation has done more than all the other nations of the world in shaping the world. And that without a large standing army and navy. Because our forefathers fought for liberty others fought for it, and 20) Constitutions all over the world are copied after ours.

"The awakening has just begun."

BRYAN SPEAKS AT 2 A. M.

Lauds Farmer and Attacks Corporations at Missouri Society Dinner.

William Jennings Bryan, the guest of Honor of the Missouri Society at its dinner at the New Grand Hotel last evening, came near having no opportunity to speak. As it was it was well-nigh 2 o'clock this morning before the candidate was called upon. The speakers were introduced by Judge S. Crosby, President of the society. Judge O. H. Deans of Kansas City and Augustus Thomas spoke before Mr. Bryan's talk began. It was so late when Mr. Thomas began, that he said:

"When I was page in the Senate there was a phrase in vogue, 'leave to print,' which was used at late hours. I beg to sit down to give the next President of the United States 'leave to print.'"

He sat down amid a thunder of applause, and Mr. Bryan arose to pay Missouri some pretty compliments and to talk about the worth of the farmer and the destroying power of the corporation.

"If one-eighth of the country is capital and seven-eighths labor," said Mr. Bryan, "is it fair that the smaller fraction should control the larger? The farmer works all day. He works all Summer. He is the man who produces, and he is the man who makes the rich man possible. He should be considered as more important than the corporation.

"God made man, but man made the corporation. God made man to die, but man evidently thinks he has made the corporation to last forever. This man-made giant will die, too.

"It is said that the investigations which have been going on lately are harmful to business. Any business which suffers from investigation deserves to die."

The other speakers at the meeting were Dr. John A. Wyeth, President of the Southern Society; Judge Charles F. Morse, President of the Virginia Society; Dr. Neil Masphatter, President of the Canadian Society, and Samuel A. Gordenauer, a former President of the Missouri Society. A theatre party at Daly's Theatre preceded the supper.

BRYAN SPEAKS IN TRENTON.

Gold Democrats Shy at Reception—Sneer at Cleveland in Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, April 21.—William Jennings Bryan was the guest of Gov. Fort at luncheon to-day, afterward making a speech at Taylor's Opera House. Although his coming to the State House had been widely heralded there were less than a score of Democrats at the reception. Of the twenty members of the Democratic Reception Committee, appointed from the Democratic Club, but two voted for him in 1896 and 1900, and the out-and-out gold Democrats on the committee dodged entirely.

Taylor's Opera House was but sparsely filled, the gallery being empty. Republican State Senators and Assemblymen, who were here for Governor's Day, and their friends were among the auditors.

Mr. Bryan began by declaring the Republican Party to be the aristocratic party, which did not believe in or trust the people, while the Democratic Party believed in and trusted the people.

Continuing, he referred to the control held by Republicans over all branches of the Government, and added that the result had been a condition of affairs which prompted the Republican leaders to appeal to Roosevelt to break a precedent and run for the third term to save the party, not the country.

Then he said, "But they always blame a Democratic President for a panic. They blamed a Democratic President for what they term our panic, although that President was helping them to elect their ticket."

This reference to ex-President Grover Cleveland made the Jersey Democrats gasp.

Turning to the Republican Party, he declared that it was badly divided, with the "reform" element ringing a bell and telling the people to wake up, while the "stand-patter" follows with a bottle of chloroform and says, "Sleep on."

MRS. BRYAN BACK FROM EUROPE

Bryan Meets Her and Their Married Daughter at the Pier.

W. J. Bryan and his daughter Grace were waiting on the Atlantic Transport pier early yesterday to meet Mrs. Bryan, who was returning from Europe on the liner Minnehaha with her married daughter, Mrs. Ruth B. Leavitt and her two children, Bryan and Ruth Leavitt. The wind blew through the shed very keenly, and observing that his daughter shivered, Mr. Bryan took off his overcoat and put it around her. Supt. W. E. Jones, who has had charge of the Atlantic Transport pier for over twenty years, observed this, and offered his coat to Mr. Bryan, putting on an oilskin jacket in its place.

While Mr. Bryan was exchanging greetings with his family on the upper deck his grandson, Bryan Leavitt, 4 years old, ran away and hid himself. After a search had been made by Mr. Bryan, assisted by six Stewards, two deck officers and the Stewardess, the youngster was discovered hiding under the bunk in his grandmother's stateroom.

On Sunday a wireless message was received on board the Minnehaha from New York which read: "Bryan boom shut off. New York Convention flatly refuse to instruct delegates for him."

Another message received on Monday read: "Bryan boom smashed by New York Democratic Convention. Absolutely refused to send instructed delegates for him."

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and Mrs. Leavitt dined last night with ex-United States Senator Charles A. Towne and Mrs. Towne at the Hotel Victoria, Mr. Bryan going from there to Cooper Union.

Preston Perry Library Fetches $8,000.

A total of $8,000 was realized by the sale yesterday at Anderson's of the library of Preston A. Perry. The highest prices were: For a manuscript Bible of the fifteenth century, $415; $140 for the Nuremberg Chronicle of 1492, $150 for a Venice, 1506, copy of Boccaccio's works; $200 for a Carmelite Breviary of the fifteenth century, $210 for the Kelmscott Press Chaucer, $125 for a copy of Edgar Allan Poe's poems, with a letter of Poe inserted; $140 for a copy of Thackeray's "Pendennis," $100 for a Latin manuscript of the twelfth century, and $100 for a copy Browning' "Men and Women."

BRYAN FLIRTING WITH TAMMANY

Rumor Says He Has Made Dicker with the Tiger; Chanler to be Running Mate.

NEW CONVENTION FIZZLES

Leaders Here Refuse to Regard the Gathering at Utica as a Serious Affair.

Charles F. Murphy and his lieutenants in Tammany Hall are not worried over the prospect of a second State Convention being called, as a result of the conference of up-State Democratic leaders, which is to be held at Utica on Saturday. On their behalf it was asserted last night that they did not believe there would be any second convention, and that, if one was held, it would be a waste of time and oratory.

Outside of hotel corridor gossip, the possibility of another convention being held has ceased to be a live issue here. None of the better informed political leaders believes that one will be held. They assert that the discontented leaders will meet at Utica, as arranged, and make a formal protest against the manner of electing State Committeemen at the recent State Convention. This will get wide publicity, with the purpose of using it at the Fall primaries, when the up-State leaders will try to get back the power they lost through what they term the "double cross" play of Murphy and Conners.

"What is there to be gained by calling another convention," said one Democrat last night at the Hoffman House. "A bolting delegation would stand no chance whatever at Denver. What the State Convention did was legal; there can be no question of that, or the point would have been raised the very next day. Tammany and Conners are ready to swing over to Bryan if such a move seems to them to mean success for the State ticket. A bolting delegation would never get nearer the convention hall than Pike's Peak."

This seemed to be the general opinion among such of the politicians as remained in town. There were not many of them. Some had gone to Trenton with William J. Bryan and others had gone back up State. Among the latter were Samuel A. Beardsley and Charles F. Rattigan. Norman E. Mack of Buffalo remained, but he did not appear very much interested in the second convention talk, though he said that the up-State leaders were mad clean through.

As an indication that Mr. Bryan had been using his influence to patch up the differences in the party in this State and had made some sort of dicker with the Tammany forces, a report gained currency yesterday afternoon to the effect that Lieut. Gov. Chanler was to be Mr. Bryan's running mate on the National ticket.

Mr. Chanler is an organization man, and is "available" for many reasons. He could contribute handsomely to a campaign fund, for one thing, and he has the record behind him of having polled a large vote two years ago this Fall. It was also recalled in this connection that Mr. Chanler had a Presidential boom of his own at one time, but that the boom burst about the time Mr. Bryan visited Albany a few months ago.

On top of the Chanler talk came rumors of a Tammany slate for the municipal election a year hence. Lewis Nixon, now one of Murphy's chief advisers, was talked of for Mayor, and Bird S. Coler was slated for the Controllership. Of course, all this, in reality, was pure guesswork, though the Chanler rumor had every earmark of having been inspired. Democrats seemed to think that with the Lieutenant Governor as a running mate Mr. Bryan would have a good chance of carrying New York State.

Daniel J. Campau, the Democratic National Committeeman from Michigan, came to town yesterday for a talk with the Peerless One. He predicted that the trouble in the party ranks would blow over long before the National Convention, and he went on to say that while Gov. Johnson of Minnesota would undoubtedly get a big vote at Denver, Mr. Bryan would be nominated on the first ballot.

"I have found that thousands of Democrats who voted against Mr. Bryan when he ran before are seemingly willing and even anxious to vote for him now," he said. "In my opinion it would be practically party suicide for the Democrats to nominate any one else for the Presidency. In the coming campaign the platforms of the two parties will surely be much alike. The fight will narrow down to a choice between two men rather than a choice between principles contained in the platforms."

McCARREN AGAINST A BOLT.

Doesn't Favor Plan for Second Democratic State Convention.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Senator McCarren announced to-day that he would take no part in any effort for a second convention to protest against the manner in which Chairman Conners and Tammany Leader Murphy conducted the Carnegie Hall Convention, and with a view of sending a contesting delegation to Denver.

"I shall go to Denver and call attention to the high-handed manner in which the convention was run and the injustice perpetrated, and then leave my own and my delegates' cases in the hands of the National gathering," said the Brooklyn leader, "but I am no believer in the effectiveness of a second convention."

There was an interesting report abroad here to-day to the effect that Mr. Bryan had been approached by friends of Chairman Conners and Tammany Leader Murphy with a request that he use his influence to have Lieut. Gov. Chanler placed on the National ticket as Vice Presidential nominee in an effort to restore Democratic harmony in this State, and that the Nebraskan was taking a favorable view of the proposition.

Neither the Lieutenant Governor nor his friends would affirm or deny the rumor. It is known that Mr. Conners and Mr. Murphy kept the Lieutenant Governor off the delegation at large from this State with a view of avoiding any entanglements between him and the Bryan sympathizers which possibly might mar his prospects as a candidate for Governor in this State next Fall.

Louisiana Elects Democratic Ticket.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—Early returns from to-day's State elections indicate that the Democratic ticket, headed by J. Y. Sanders for Governor, had been elected throughout. Returns of the Prohibition election in Acadia and St. Landry Parishes are coming in slowly. Early in the night, however, the Prohibitionists were leading in Acadia.

BRYAN BEATEN IN NEWARK.

Essex County Elects 210 Anti-Bryan Delegates to State Convention.

In the Democratic primaries in Newark and Essex County, N. J., last night 210 anti-Bryan delegates were elected to the State Convention on April 28. Two Bryan delegates, Julian A. Gregory of East Orange and William P. O'Rourke of the First Ward, Newark, were elected, while three places in the Essex delegation, one from the Fifth Ward, Newark; one from West Orange, and one from Belleville, are doubtful. There are 215 delegates.

The defeat of the Bryan candidates makes Judge Gray Essex's first choice, with Gov. John A. Johnson second choice in the event of Judge Gray's final declination.

The primary fights in Essex County were characterized by much bitterness.

There was no contest in the Democratic primaries in Hudson County last night. Robert Davis will head his county delegation to Trenton, and will seek to be one of the "big four" at Denver. The delegation will make a fight on the floor for an indorsement of Bryan. Besides Mr. Davis the delegation will contain State Chairman Robert Hudspeth, Congressman James A. Hammill, ex-Congressman Allan Benny, Mayor Wittpenn of Jersey City, Assemblyman Tumulty, and Mark Sullivan.

CORTELYOU STATES PLATFORM

Shows What Government Can Do to Build Up Business.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 21.—Secretary Cortelyou spoke before the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce at the annual banquet to-night on "Government and Commerce." He said in part:

"Our people to-day appear to be well satisfied with the policy that is pursued by our State and National Governments in fostering by legislation interests of a general character. A conspicuous example of this type of legislation is to be found in the recently enacted pure food laws of Federal and State Governments, which regulate the preparation of food for popular consumption.

"Along the line of its fostering care over business interests, Government can at the moment do several things that will be of large benefit to the country. It can give us such legislation as will fortify us against financial disturbance and furnish us with a supply of currency adequate for the needs of our business community in all sections and at all seasons of the year. I believe this will be done.

"It can give us, also, such legislation, through the simple measure now before the Congress, as will encourage the upbuilding of our merchant marine, so especially essential to our commercial interests in Central and South America and on the Pacific Coast.

"It can amend the Sherman Anti-Trust act so as to make certain of its provisions a help rather than a hindrance to honest business.

"It can provide for an investigation of our tariff with a view to making its schedules more equitable for the people of all interests and all sections.

"It can at the moment do another thing, in many respects more important than any I have mentioned. It can meet the wishes, as I believe, of an overwhelming majority of our people by making the adequate provision that has been recommended by the President for the needs of the navy."

CLARK MORE OPTIMISTIC.

West to Save the Country, but Unwise Legislation Is Feared.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—Ex-Senator William A. Clark of Montana declared this morning that he was not taking any interest in politics.

"I'm more interested in business conditions and the crops," he said. "Things have picked up a little back East, and a good crop year will help a great deal. I hear everything out this way is in fine shape. The West will save the country with its crops.

"Ill-advised, radical policies, hurtful legislation, and unhealthy business conditions combined to bring about the feeling of unrest in financial circles, and caused the stringency. Radical legislation has hurt the railroads. Capital is afraid of more to come, and for that reason no new railroads are being built. There hasn't been a new railroad project for a year. It's too much of a risk for capital. Unwise legislation has left no margin of safety between earnings and operating expenses.

"Maybe when we have placed in office men in whom the people can have confidence things will be bettered."

WRECK VICTIMS RECOVERING.

All but One of Those Injured in Bath Beach Crash Out of Danger.

Twelve of the thirteen persons who were hurt in the collision between a trolley car of the Thirty-ninth Street ferry line and a Bath Beach elevated train at the crossing at Eighty-sixth Street and Eighteenth Avenue, Bath Beach, on Monday night, were well on the way to recovery yesterday. Mrs. Alice Hughes of 867 Fifty-second Street was still unable to leave the Norwegian Hospital. Her collar bone was broken, and she was badly hurt otherwise, but the surgeons think that she will recover.

Magistrate Voorhees in the Coney Island Court held a sort of an investigation yesterday when the two motormen of the train and trolley, as well as George Cordier, the flagman, were arraigned before him. John Kealey, who ran the trolley car and had only been a motorman for three days, said he could not see the train because of some shrubs beside the track. He said also that he thought the lantern on his track was not lighted and believed he had the right of way.

Cordier and Motorman Patrick O'Donnell of the train said that the lantern was lighted, and both testified that the train had the right of way. Magistrate Voorhees discharged them, but held Kealey in $500 bail for examination on Friday on a charge of criminal negligence.

Saloon Men Win in Illinois.

TARIFF REVISION FAVORED

Minister Gives the Delegates a Chance to Express Their Preferences for the Presidency.

CONCORD, N. H., April 21.—Six of the eight members of the New Hampshire delegation to the Republican National Convention at Chicago were chosen here to-day at the State and Second District Conventions. Despite efforts of the Taft men, including Winston Churchill, the platforms contained a resolution to the effect that "the real interests of the party and of the Presidential candidate to be nominated at Chicago will best be served by the omission of instructions, specific or implied, in the form of resolutions of preference." The platform also favored an early revision of the tariff and indorsed President Roosevelt.

The delegates at large are Senator Jacob H. Gallinger, ex-Gov. Chester B. Jordan, Attorney General Edwin G. Eastman, and Edwin F. Jones. The Second District delegates are Seth M. Richards of Newport and Lester F. Thurber of Nashua.

At the State Convention an amendment to the effect that it was the "earnest belief that the man embodying every element of a triumphant candidate was William H. Taft" was tabled by a large majority, 25 out of a total of 763 delegates voting in favor of the resolution.

The convention, however, had a somewhat unexpected opportunity of expressing its sentiment toward five candidates for President. In speaking in opposition to the Taft amendment, the Rev. Thomas Chalmers of Manchester asked for a voice vote of preference for La Follette, Cannon, Fairbanks, Hughes, and Taft in succession. No one voted for La Follette; two voices were heard for Cannon, one for Fairbanks, a fair-sized shout for Hughes, and a much louder demonstration for Taft, lasting between five and ten seconds.

The tariff plank in the platform reads:

"We recognize the approaching day when the existing tariff schedules should be carefully examined with a view of making such changes as may be necessary to adjust them to current conditions, having always in mind the fundamental Republican principle of ample protection to American industry and labor. In the meantime we record our emphatic opposition to tariff-tinkering by piecemeal."

PREFERENCE FOR TAFT.

But Massachusetts Districts Refuse to Instruct Their Delegates.

BOSTON, April 21.—Unpledged delegates and alternates to the Republican National Convention at Chicago were elected by the Twelfth Massachusetts District Republican Convention here to-day. A resolution adopted declared a decided preference for Taft, though the delegates are not instructed.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., April 21.—An uninstructed Republican delegation to the Chicago Convention was elected to-day in the Thirteenth Massachusetts District.

Florida Delegates for Taft and Foraker

PENSACOLA, Fla., April 21.—The Republicans of the Third Congressional District held two conventions here to-day, and each faction selected delegates to the Chicago Convention instructed to vote for Senator Foraker of Ohio and Secretary Taft respectively.

CHURCHMEN TALK POLITICS.

Congregationalists Laud Taft and Bryan and Decry "Merry Widow" Hats.

The fortieth annual meeting of the Congregational Association of New Jersey, which covers all of New Jersey, Maryland, the District of Columbia, and Virginia, convened in Trinity Congregational Church, East Orange, yesterday afternoon.

The Rev. Ferdinand Q. Blanchard of East Orange, in speaking on "Apportionment in Benevolence," took a fling at the "Merry Widow" hat when he declared that the problem of fixing the amounts to be assessed on churches throughout the country was about as complex as reducing the "far-reaching hat of 1908 to the turban fashion of 1907."

About fifty women who were present immediately turned their eyes toward the only one of their number present who wore a hat of that description. She laughed and blushed.

The Rev. C. C. Creegan of New York City, who spoke on the "Challenge of the Open Doors," was responsible for the injection of politics into the assemblage. Referring to Secretary Taft's speech on Monday night, he said:

"I wasn't a Taft man until he was through with his stirring address last night, but when that man came down with a tread like an elephant and lifted up his voice in behalf of the missionaries you have sent out, I changed my views. I don't care if the whole world knows it, from this time on I am a Taft man.

"But it is certainly glorious that such a magnificent man is to run against him. Out in Japan, in China, and all over India when I was there the question was asked: 'What did Mr. Bryan talk about?' The reply was: 'Generally he talked about the Prince of Peace.' There was a man who went out carrying his Christian manhood with him, and let us be thankful that no man can be seriously talked of for President of the United States except men like Gov. Hughes, Secretary Taft, or William Jennings Bryan."

MAY AFFECT SMITH LEGACY.

Deed Shows Bank and Not St. Luke's Hospital Owns Eagle Building.

A transaction which may to some extent affect the benefits to be received by St. Luke's Hospital under the will of W. Wheeler Smith was revealed yesterday by the recording of a deed by which Mr. Smith conveyed to the Bank of the Metropolis the Eagle Building, at 71 Wall Street, southwest corner of Pearl Street. The transfer was made for a nominal consideration over a mortgage of $300,000.

Corcellus H. Hackett, President of the Bank of the Metropolis, said last evening that the conveyance was without special significance and that it was in the nature of a mortgage.

George Macculloch Miller, President of St. Luke's Hospital, said that he had not heard of the transfer and knew nothing of the facts behind it.

A few years before Mr. Smith's death he decided to bequeath the revenue from 71 Wall Street to the Association for the Relief of Respectable Aged and Indigent Women. He made such provision in his will, but revoked it by a later codicil. In estimates as to the value of Mr. Smith's realty holdings the Wall Street parcel has been placed at $550,000.

$27,000 for Death of Husband.

After a trial lasting five days, a jury before Supreme Court Justice Fitzgerald awarded $25,000 damages and $2,000 interest to Mrs. Fanny Brauer, against the New York City Railway Company for the loss of her husband, Paul F. Brauer, a wholesale provision merchant, killed on Dec. 3, 1908. Joseph Beihilf, counsel for the widow, declared that a motorman deliberately bumped his car into Brauer's wagon.

MINISTER WU SPEAKS ON MODERN CHINA

Nation Is Awakening, He Says, to Western Ideas of Business and Patriotism.

ALWAYS AMERICA'S FRIEND

Grateful to This Country for Spirit of Justice Shown and the Old Prejudice Is Gone.

Wu Ting-Fang, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of China, was the guest of honor last night of the American-Asiatic Association at its tenth annual dinner at Delmonico's, and was welcomed back by the association members with a zest that kept the genial Mr. Wu smiling during most of the evening. He told them that it was his first appearance in public since his return to this country several months ago as Chinese Minister, and that he had saved up the occasion for the members of the American-Asiatic Association as a mark of his appreciation of the good work of that body. He also talked at some length upon conditions in China, and this country's interests there.

Mr. Wu steered clear, however, of all reference to the Chinese boycott against Japan, or, in fact, war talk of any kind. He was the same convivial Mr. Wu who bade good-bye to the association five years ago when recalled to China. He spoke last night with the same deliberation and choice of words as at the farewell dinner five years ago, and, if some of the compliments he framed were the same, he clothed them in different words.

Minister Wu wore his customary robe of yellow silk, girdled with purple. During the dinner he left his seat beside the President and walked along the tables, chatting with old friends. He also visited the press table and incidentally posed for a pencil sketch, insisting afterward that the artist should alter the lines to make him appear better looking.

"And please make me smile," he said, illustrating the way he wanted to look.

"I like to look happy in my pictures," he said, "for I am happy, and why shouldn't I be?"

Minister Wu evaded all efforts to interview him upon any subject which involved the policy of his Government.

W. S. Ho, the Chinese Consul in New York, and Lee Wing, Chinese Vice Consul, sat near Minister Wu at the speakers' table. Kwang Wing Lin, First Secretary of the Chinese Legation, and Huntington Wilson, Third Assistant Secretary of State, accompanied Minister Wu to New York, and were also guests at the dinner. K. Midrunno, the Japanese Consul General in New York, was likewise a guest, and others at the speakers' table were Seth Low, John Barrett, Director of the International Bureau of American Republics; S. D. Webb, President of the association; John Foord, Secretary of the association; Lowell Lincoln, the Rev. Dr. Charles F. J. Wrigley, and Judge Lebbeus Redman Wilfley of the United States Court in China.

James R. Morse, President of the American Asiatic Association, was the toastmaster. In proposing the toast to President Roosevelt, which was responded to by Seth Low, the toastmaster said that the President would live in history because of his earnest, unselfish, and successful efforts for the restoration of peace in the Orient, even if he had no other claim to statesmanship.

Mr. Low evoked laughter by saying that the toast to Mr. Roosevelt might well be drunk in silence, because, as he expressed it, "both the man and the office speak for themselves better than any one could speak for them." Mr. Low said that in his opinion the President when he sent the American fleet to Asiatic waters did something which will prove helpful in establishing friendly relationship between this country and the Far East, especially in future generations.

Minister Wu's Speech.

Wu Ting-Fang was introduced by the toastmaster as "one who knows better perhaps than any other what are the requisites of good understanding between China and the United States."

Minister Wu was greeted with vociferous applause. He began by complimentary allusions to the association, and then told of his return to China five years ago for family reasons and of his being again called upon by his Government to represent China here.

"China is not now what she was a few years ago," he said. "It is worth while for merchants who wish to have dealings with China to study the progress she is now making. China has become more modernized. That being the case, her people will necessarily learn more from the Western countries, and they will acquire some of the Western habits and tastes. This will increase the trade with foreign countries still more, and greater demand will cause increased supply.

"I quite agree with your Chairman when he says that in the history of the intercourse between China and America there has been no time when there were so few matters of controversy requiring treatment. There are now no matters of great controversy between the two nations which cannot be amicably settled, and the political horizon is smooth and clear. There is no mist or cloud such as I am sorry to say existed some years ago, and which happily has been dispersed.

False Report About Boycott.

"In this connection I am referring to the incident which is well known to you all—I mean the boycott on American goods. It was alleged that I started the boycott, or if not, that I inspired it. I cannot understand how this absurd rumor originated, but once it was given out, it was copied in many newspapers, and even some of my friends in America wrote to me suspecting that I had something to do with it. I can say that it was one of the most malicious libels that could be invented against a person, as it had not the least foundation.

"After years of slumber the most intelligent portion of our people have had a feeling of nationalism stir within their breasts. Whatever you may dub it—patriotism, unrest, or what not—it is there, and the people are very sensitive about it, which we know from experience is natural both with individuals and nations. Now there are some people who would poke fun at this feeling, disparage it, or even suggest its suppression by forcible measures or by demonstration. It is needless to say that this narrow-minded and shortsighted view, when voiced in the foreign press, does not tend to produce feelings which oleaginous liquids are supposed to do when poured on troubled waters. The effect is just the opposite. It may be likened to the pouring of oil on a fire.

"When you study the foreign relations of my country for the past half century or so I feel sure you will make some allowance for the feeling of resentment and indignation on the part of my people, and the feeling of utter helplessness against violence and wrong only increases the bitterness of the soul.

"The American people, appreciating with their greatness of mind and soul all the weaknesses and exaggerations of a new-born spirit, have treated it with consideration and have adopted the proper view, that this spirit marks the true awakening of China and that whatever taint of anti-foreign feeling with which it is imbibed will rapidly disappear as soon as it is understood that the nation against which hostility is exhibited is really a friend in disguise.

China Friendly to America.

"China's relations with America will always remain friendly. It is natural that they should be so when you consider on your side that your policy is justice and fair play, and on our side honesty and straightforwardness. You may be sure acts of kindness and fairness, such as return or waiver of over ten millions of dollars to China, will certainly create a most favorable impression in China and strengthen the bond of friendship between the two countries, and the existence of an important and influential association like this I consider a safety valve of the two Nations. No more misunderstandings, I feel sure, can occur in the future, and the relationship between the two countries will yet become closer day by day."

Secretary Foord responded to the toast "China in Regeneration," and said that the evolution of the new China constitutes no menace to the world and that "a China that invites dismemberment is a standing menace to the world's peace, but a China that can render a good account of itself against all comers would extinguish the possibility of war over half the surface of the globe."

Judge Wilfley told of "American Influence in China," and said that China would have to imitate the policy of Japan in adopting the forms and principles of administration found in operation in the nations of the West.

John Barrett responded to the toast "The Far East by Way of the Panama Canal," and told of the immense amount of shipping which would pass through that narrow strip of water when the canal became a reality. He said that the cost of the canal is not the issue, but that the real issue is whether it will perform the function of bringing the East and West coasts of the United States into closer relation, and of putting this country into intimate touch with the great west coast of South and Central America and providing a new means of access to Japan, China, and Australia.

FOOD.

It's a mistake to call Grape-Nuts simply a "breakfast food."

It is more. All the nourishing elements of wheat and barley, so prepared as to be promptly absorbed by the system for rebuilding brain and nerve cells, and for storing up energy—the capacity to think and act—that's Grape-Nuts.

The flavour of this world famed food adds to its value by promoting the appetite.

"There's a Reason."

PERSIAN BRIGANDS ROUTED.

Tiflis Hears of a New Rising on an Important Caravan Route.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 21.—News was received here this afternoon to the effect that the Persian brigands, who yesterday advanced to attack the Russian forces in Persian territory, were driven back with heavy losses, and retired to the mountains. The Russian detachment from Belesuvar has again advanced a short distance into Persian territory, where it awaits reinforcements.

There is no sign as yet of the heralded Persian expedition to aid the Russians. It seems that the Persian troops quartered at Tabriz are barely adequate even to preserve order in that city, and they are said to be so ill-disciplined that the Governor of Tabriz is afraid to send them out against the mountaineers.

TIFLIS, April 21.—On account of the threatening situation on the Persian frontier, and the urgent demand for reinforcements received from the commanders of the Russian forces in that district, 2,000 men have been sent from here into the disturbed territory. They will take several days to reach the scene of hostility, which is sixty miles from the nearest railroad point through a difficult country.

Information has come in that communication along an important trade route running southward to the Caspian Sea into Persia has been interrupted by an uprising of the bandit population. As a result caravans are afraid to venture out of Lenkoran.

HAITIAN LAWMAKERS MEET.

Large Force of Troops on Guard—Alexis Warns Against Revolt.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, April 21.—The Legislature was opened with imposing ceremonies in the Senate Chamber here today in the presence of the members of the Diplomatic Corps, American and British naval officers, and officers of the Haitian army and navy. Thousands of troops occupied the adjacent streets.

M. Marcelin, the Minister of Commerce and Finance, read the message of President Nord Alexis, in which he declared his determination sternly to repress any symptoms of insurrection. He invited the co-operation of the Legislature in maintaining order in the island, re-establishing the prosperity of the people and protecting equally the interests of citizens and foreigners.

STUDENTS SHOT AT CABRERA.

Military Control Guatemala After Attempt to Kill the President.

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, April 21.—An unsuccessful attempt was made on the life of President Estrada Cabrera in this city yesterday. The President was on his way fram his private residence to the National Palace to give an audience to the recently appointed American Minister, William Heimke when some students fired at him.

The students were immediately surrounded by troops and made prisoners. The situation at present is under the control of the military element.

NO SACRILEGE INTENDED.

Dr. Feilbogen Willing to Embrace Catholicism to Show His Sincerity.

ROME, April 21.—The Viennese professor, Dr. Feilbogen, who with his wife and a woman friend committed sacrilege in the Pope's private chapel on April 19 during the celebration of the Easter mass, in that they removed the consecrated wafers from their mouths after they had been administered by the Pope, declared to-day that no insult was intended.

Wishing to demonstrate his sincerity, the professor now says he is ready to embrace Catholicism.

Fear Cholera in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 21.—The Prefect of Police has placarded the city with stringent regulations forewarning the residents of an expected epidemic of cholera.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

THE HAGUE, April 21.—David Jayne Hill, the American Ambassador designated to Berlin in succession to Charlemagne Tower, is clearing up his affairs here and making his arrangements to leave The Hague in time to assume his duties at Berlin on June 1.

BERLIN, April 21.—Heavy snowfalls are reported to-day from many parts of the Empire. Snow fell for several hours this morning in Schleswig-Holstein, where the temperature was below the freezing point. There is one foot of snow in the mountains south of Eisenach, and the snow lies three feet deep at one point in the Rhoen Mountains, where the mercury registers 22 degrees Fahrenheit. Berlin this morning was visited by a series of violent snow gusts. Everywhere Spring is unusually late.

DUBLIN, April 21.—The Nationalists are satisfied with the assurances given by Winston Spencer Churchill at Manchester last night with regard to the attitude of the Liberal Party in the matter of Irish self-government, and John T. Redmond announced at a meeting of the United Irish League this afternoon that it had been decided to support Mr. Churchill and that recommendations to this effect would be sent to the Irish voters at Manchester.

COPENHAGEN, April 21.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra arrived here to-day from London on a visit to the Danish royal family. They were welcomed by King Frederick and Queen Louise, the Diplomatic Corps, and the civil and military dignitaries. The streets through which their Majesties drove to the palace were gaily decorated and crowded with people.

TOKIO, April 21.—A most interesting banquet was held Monday in commemoration of the meritorious services rendered Japan by the late David Murray, the American who from 1873 to 1877 served the Government as adviser in educational matters and practically laid the foundation of the modern system now used in Japan's education. The banquet was attended by one hundred scholars, professors, and pioneer educators.

THOMAS CAR LEAVES SEATTLE FOR JAPAN

Steamer Shawmut Starts with the Delayed American Crew Across the Pacific.

FEEL CERTAIN OF VICTORY

Think They Will Lead the Foreign Cars Into Paris, Despite the Troubles They Have Met.

71ST DAY OF THE RACE.

Car.	Reported.	Distance.
*Thomas.	Valdez	6036
†Zust	Seattle	4836
†De Dion	Seattle	4836
‡Protos	Pocatello, Ida.	2966

*Found Alaskan trails impassable and returned from Valdez to Seattle, arriving there Friday. Sailed yesterday for Yokohama, en route to Vladivostok.

†Sailed for Yokohama last Tuesday en route to Paris via Vladivostok. Due Yokohama April 29.

‡Shipped to Seattle. Took steamer from there April 20 for Vladivostok.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Washington, April 21.—The American Thomas car's four-day halt in the dash to Paris, ended to-day, when the steamship Shawmut went out of the harbor and set her nose for Japan. The Thomas car was loaded aboard the ship at 12 o'clock, but the members of her crew stood around on the docks for nearly an hour longer, telling the crowd that had gathered to see them off, that there was nothing to the race but America, even if the three foreign cars had preceded them across the Pacific. Finally they followed their machine aboard, and at 1 o'clock the lines were cast off and the Shawmut pulled out into the stream.

F. L. Thomas of the Thomas Motor Company, who came to Seattle to see the last of his machine on American soil, stood on the wharf watching the ship down the harbor, long after the others who had gathered to bid the racers good-bye had gone. The American party was delayed three days because there was no Russian Consul in Seattle. Had their been he could had vised their passports and the car and its crew could have sailed on the Glen Logan last Saturday directly for Vladivostok.

The nearest representative of the Czar was at San Francisco, however, and it would have been a still greater loss of time to have taken the car back to the Golden Gate and sailed from there. The passports will be vised at Yokohama and the car will sail immediately for Vladivostok, where the race will begin all over again.

The race across Siberia will be fraught with excitement and a spice of danger. Bandits infest the way, and the matter of roads is to the Americans at least an unsolved problem. The racers are armed, however, and Lieut. Koeppen of the German car said before he sailed that he knew something of Siberian roads and that they were generally good.

The members of the American car crew sailed in fine health and spirits.

"We will reach Paris first," said Capt. Hansen, "and when we do there will be a popping of corks that will be heard clear to Seattle."

PRAISES AMERICAN NAVY.

Sir William Henry White Ranks It Next to That of Great Britain.

BOSTON, April 21.—Sir William Henry White, who was for nearly twenty years up to 1902 the responsible designer of all British warships, commented to-day on recent criticisms of the American Navy. He declared that the criticisms were not founded on fact.

"You have naval architects as capable as any, in my judgment, in the world, because they have been properly trained, and besides they are picked men," he said. "Your shipbuilding yards are equal to any we have in their equipment and management and all that. They have come later, and they have the advantage of all the accumulated experience we have had to go upon.

"And there is American ingenuity at the back of all that on the mechanical side. The result is that you have a fleet that ship for ship is equal to anything the world contains. Next to the British Navy I think your navy is the best in the world."

MORE DEATHS IN TEXAS FLOOD

Democratic Candidate Is Drowned While on a Campaign Tour.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, April 21.—Four more deaths were reported to-day as the result of the Texas floods: J. F. Ainsworth, drowned in Concho River, while on a tour for the Democratic nomination for District Attorney; Harry Norris, 17 years old, drowned in Elm Creek; Henry Crockfort, 11 years old, drowned in White Rock Creek, at Dallas, and Dr. Wallace Rouse of the State Medical College at Galveston, killed by lightning while standing on a Gulf wharf.

The Trinity, Brazos, and Colorado Rivers are slowly falling.

Quebec Steamers to Run to Canada.

The Quebec Steamship Company, which has been running steamers from New York to Bermuda and the West Indies for the last quarter of a century, has decided to put on a Summer service from this port to Quebec, calling at Halifax and Charlottestown, Prince Edward Island, en route. The first trip will be made on July 4. On the second trip, July 18, the steamer will go direct to Quebec, arriving there on the morning of July 23, in time for the passengers to witness the ceremonies in celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of the city and a view of the fleet of British warships, under the command of the Prince of Wales.

42 Dead in Australian Wreck.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 21.—Forty-two bodies have been taken out of the wreckage caused by the collision on April 19, of two trains, from Ballarat and Bendigo respectively at Braybrook Junction, about eight miles from Melbourne. It is believed that several others are still buried under the débris. The number of persons injured is placed at eighty-eight.

SHAW LIBEL SUIT WITNESS.

He Says Lyman J. Gage Apologized for Charges Against Importing Firm.

Leslie M. Shaw, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, was called to the stand yesterday as a witness for the defense in the trial of the American Protective Tariff League, for criminal libel in suit brought by the Borgfeldt Importing Company, before Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday.

The charge is based on a passage appearing in an editorial of the American Economist, a publication of the league in 1905, which states that the George Borgfeldt Company, importers of glass and crockery "have succeeded, through manipulations, intimidations, threats, not to mention other methods, in controling the consular service, the entry division of the Custom House, and, as clearly appears, Lyman J. Gage, the Secretary of the Treasury."

Mr. Shaw gave testimony bearing solely on these "other methods." He said that he had talked with Wilbur F. Wakeman, former Appraiser, and the Secretary and Treasurer of the Protective Tariff League about certain alleged undervaluations of crockery imports by the Borgfeldt Company, and had learned that Lyman J. Gage had asked Mr. Wakeman to apologize to this company for certain statements charging such undervaluations.

Presumably to show alleged methods to influence Government officials, Mr. Shaw told of some hundred letters received from prominent business men asking him to abandon an investigation of the alleged undervaluations; and of a petition signed by five hundred prominent merchants, who said that they represented $138,000,000, protesting against an investigation where the witnesses were members of competing firms. The best-known houses in the country were represented in this petition, which spoke of the Borgfeldt Company as being above any attempt to cheat the Government.

Late in the afternoon Mr. Wakeman took the stand, and described the league as a corporation designed to further, through a protective tariff, the production of domestic goods. This morning he will again take the stand for the purpose of stating his knowledge of alleged undervaluations of the Borgfeldt Company.

SPIRITUALIST'S FUNERAL.

Members of Cult Honor Memory of the Son of the Famous Kate Fox.

Fifty members of the First Spiritualist Society of New York gathered last evening at the chapel of the Stephen Merritt Burial Company to attend the funeral services of Ferdinand Fox Jencken, who died Sunday.

Mr. Jencken, who was 38 years old, died in a sanitarium from consumption. He was the last surviving member of the famous Fox family, who founded Spiritualism in Rochester about sixty years ago.

The services were short and simple and centred around an "inspirational" address made by Mrs. Helen Temple Brigham of the Ethical Society.

Dr William Hale of Boston, publisher of the Herald of Truth, also spoke, as did Mrs. Mary A. Newton, President of the First Spiritual Society of New York.

This society has taken care of Mr. Jencken for some time, as he has been an invalid most of his life. He will be buried in Kensico Cemetery to-day.

Mr. Jencken was a son of Kate Fox, a famous medium in her day. When his mother was a little girl living at Rochester uncanny rappings were heard about the Fox house, which attracted the attention of the entire country. Kate, then a child, shaid that she was able to get answers from spirits and became a medium and clairvoyant. Her sisters Leah and Margaret followed her example, but she was the most successful of the three.

A Settlement Nursery Meeting.

The annual meeting of the People's Home Settlement Day Nursery, 545 East Eleventh Street, will be held this afternoon, and Mrs. Arthur Dodge will give a talk on nursery work. Other speakers will be Mrs. Isabella C. Davis, Miss Kate Bond, Mrs. H. W. Stewart, and Dr. F. M. North.

BINGHAM RAPPED BY THE ALDERMEN

They Knock Out His Appropriation for a Departmental Secret Service Corps.

SAY CRIME IS EVERYWHERE

"Little Tim" Sullivan Calls Him "a Bunko," "Four-Flusher," and "Bulldozing Bluffer."

A majority of the Board of Aldermen put an end to Police Commissioner Bingham's plan for a secret service corps in the Police Department yesterday by refusing to appropriate $25,000 for its establishment.

Two weeks ago the Commissioner appeared before the Finance Committee of the board, which had his application for $100,000, and the committee decided to give him $25,000. Yesterday the board refused to do even that.

When the report of the committee came up for adoption nearly every Alderman on the Tammany side had something to say. The chief complaint was that the Commissioner was not running the department properly. "Robbery runs riot," said one angry and alliterative Alderman. It became evident from the speeches that some of the Aldermen knew where crime was committed daily.

There were some speeches in favor of the appropriation. Alderman Dowling of Brooklyn said he was sure there would be another bomb outrage before very long. "Then you will see a part of some big building tumbling down and men and women will disappear," he declared. Alderman Sullivan, while speaking in favor of the appropriation, couldn't resist a few slaps at the Commissioner.

"What sort of a man is this Commissioner who gets up and says: 'I wish that forty of my Captains would drop dead?'" he asked. "What kind of a heart can such a man have?"

According to Sullivan the Commissioner is "a bunko," a "four-flusher," and a "bulldozing bluffer." However, Sullivan wanted the board to make the appropriation so that the Commissioner might fail to "make good" once more, and then perhaps the public would find him out. He voted "yea," but the resolution was lost 32 to 12.

A motion to reconsider was carried by the same vote, showing Sullivan's influence. Sullivan has been against the proposition from the first, and while he voted "yea" he engineered the defeat of the resolution.

FINED FOR LIBELING HARDEN.

Judge Declares That Berlin Editor Did Not Take a Bribe.

MUNICH, April 21.—A libel suit, which was a sequel to the notorious Harden-Von Eulenburg-Von Moltke case, resulted to-day in the conviction of Herr Stadele, editor of the Neue Freie Volkszeitung. A fine of $25 and costs were imposed upon him for stating that Harden had received $250,000 from Count Von Eulenburg to suppress evidence.

In passing judgment the court declared that the insinuation that Herr Harden had accepted a bribe was unfounded.

FIGHT STANDARD OIL.

Roumanian Government Proposes to Handicap the American Company.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, April 21.—The Roumanian Government has laid before the Chamber of Deputies a bill directed against the petroleum combination. This action is a result of the agitation against the Standard Oil Company which the Roumanian oil dealers have carried on for some time past. Several municipalities in which the Standard Company has attempted to establish oil tanks have made regulations, particularly in the matter of taxes, which have rendered it practically impossible for the Standard to conduct business.

Minister of Finance Costinescu, speaking in the Chamber in behalf of the proposed measure, said amid unanimous applause:

"The Americans say, America for the Americans; we will say, Roumania for the Roumanians."

The Chamber has approved the American-Roumanian Commercial Convention, which was signed April 16, but it made exception of the petroleum industry concerning which the Government reserved freedom of action.

CORONER ACRITELLI BANKRUPT, THEY SAY

Three Creditors of His Banking Concern File a Petition Against Him.

HE DENIES THE STATEMENT

Thinks Business Depression Due to Homegoing Italians, Who Took $400,000,000 Last Fall.

Three creditors of F. Acritelli & Son, bankers, brokers, and steamship agents at 239 Elizabeth Street, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday against Coroner Peter P. Acritelli, as head of the firm, alleging that he is insolvent and has made preferential payments to friends and allowed the city to obtain judgment for $109. They also charge that he transferred, concealed, or removed property worth more than $1,000.

Coroner Acritelli asserted last night that the petition is little more than blackmail. He declared that his firm was perfectly solvent and that it was prepared to pay every claim.

"Until February of this year," said the Coroner, "I had not been a member of the firm for four years. In that month my father died and I took hold of the affairs of the firm, which then consisted only of my brother Joseph, intending to close up the business.

"I found that the exodus of Italians from this country last Fall, followed by the financial panic, had hit the firm hard, but I managed to make partial payments, and since taking hold have paid off about $60,000 worth of deposits. The firm's securities are more than sufficient to pay off the other $40,000 of deposits, but we do not want to dispose of them at a sacrifice unless we are compelled to do so."

The Coroner said that a day or two ago a lawyer representing depositors having about $7,000 in the bank came to him with a proposition that he should deed over in trust his interest of about $12,000 in the property at 236 Elizabeth Street. Unless he did so, said the Coroner, the lawyer threatened to bring bankruptcy proceedings.

The Coroner said that the judgment of $109 obtained by the city had been against him personally as a property owner who had violated the tenement house law.

The Coroner said that Americans scarcely realized how great was the amount of money taken out of this country each year by homegoing Italians. He said that nearly $400,000,000 had been sent from this country to the Bank of Rome last Fall.

The Coroner said he would fight the bankruptcy petition.

HERCULES HALED TO COURT.

He and Comrade in "Amusement Co." Accused of Getting Money Unfairly.

Brayton Bentley and John Athos, otherwise "Hercules the Bullfighter," members of the European Amusement Company, were before Judge Rosalsky in the Court of General Sessions yesterday to answer to the charges of half a dozen young men who said that, being engaged as agents for this company, they had deposited sums ranging from $50 to $250, and had received no remuneration.

They answered advertisements to call at the office of the company, 608 Sixth Avenue. One Philip Dareing, the President, who cannot be found, had engaged them as actors, advance agents, and advertisers, sending them out on a circuit to engage theatres. Some went to New Rochelle, some to Bayonne, some to Sheepshead Bay. They got the theatres, but the amusement company never came, and they could not get their deposits back.

According to their letter head, the European Amusement Company is sole proprietor of "The Belle of Cairo," "From Sing Sing to Freedom," "The Lively Widow," and of Dareing the performer of the creations "Hung Alive" and "Shooting the Death Chute"—the only performer, says the letter head, who was ever decorated by Czar Nicholas II. at the Czarina Theatre in St. Petersburg, and King Edward VII. at the Palace Theatre in London.

The trial will be continued to-day.

POLICEMEN OUT ON BAIL.

Men Indicted for Accepting Bribes in Gambling Cases Set Free.

Two of the three policemen indicted for accepting bribes to protect the gambling house opened as a decoy by a newspaper, who were arrested on Monday night on bench warrants issued by Judge Crain in the Court of General Sessions, appeared yesterday and gave bonds of $5,000 each. They were Joseph De Cantillion, wardman and John Hughes of the Vice Squad.

Wardman John F. Lyons, who was arrested on a similar charge, was released on the same bail on Monday night. All three pleaded not guilty, with the privilege of withdrawal within the week.

When the two policemen were arraigned in court, Louis Marx, or "French Max," the keeper of the Arsenal Saloon, who, according to the newspaper, conducted negotiations with the police for immunity, was arraigned also on two indictments charging bribery. He is already on $3,000 bail for two previous indictments for keeping a gambling house. For the indictments on which he appeared yesterday $3,000 more was put up. It is believed he will turn State's evidence.

Decision in Morse Demurrer Filed.

The formal order of Judge Holt of the United States court sustaining the demurrer of Charles W. Morse to the petition on bankruptcy filed against him on March 13 by Charles W. Hanna as receiver of the National Bank of North America, Frank C. Pringle, and Edward D. Shotwell, was filed in the Clerk's office of the United States District Court yesterday. The petitioners have ten days from the date of the service of this order in which to file an amended petition.

Actors Indicted in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 21.—The Grand Jury to-day returned indictments against 142 actors, managers, and employes of local playhouses. The indictments are for violations last Sunday. The indicted men will be arrested and placed under bond. Similar cases were dropped from the docket on technical objections yesterday.

CITY COLLEGE DEDICATION.

Programme Completed for Exercises to Be Held on May 14.

The committee of the Trustees has practically completed the details of the programme for the dedication of the City College on May 14. The exercises begin about 9:30 A. M. with an academic procession about the grounds of the college, which will be led by the Seventh Regiment Band and participated in by the Trustees, Faculty, and guests. At the Plaza a National flag will be presented to the college by Edward Lauterbach, representing the Alumni Association. President McGowan of the Board of Aldermen will also present a handsome city flag. Then exercises will be held in the great hall, where addresses will be made by Edward M. Shepard, Chairman of the Trustees; Gov. Hughes, Mayor McClellan, President Eliot of Harvard, and Ambassador Bryce. After luncheon in the gymnasium the scientific buildings will be dedicated. In the evening the alumni will entertain the guests, Faculty, and Trustees at a dinner at which a number of notable men will speak.

The college buildings, which opened last Fall before they were completed, are now practically finished. The grounds and buildings cover four city blocks. The buildings, which are collegiate and Gothic in character and in general scheme, were designed by George B. Post & Son. They cost between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000.

The honor of winning these fellowships is highly prized aside from the financial help which they give.

ST. MARY'S ALUMNAE MEET.

Graduates of Jersey Girls' School Organize a Chapter.

Some sixty-three graduates of St. Mary's Hall, the Episcopal school for girls at Burlington, N. J., met yesterday at the Hotel Manhattan and decided to organize a chapter of all those graduates who live in New York City and vicinity.

The new chapter will have quarterly meetings, and once a year a dinner. The first formal meeting will be held next Fall. The New York chapter will be affiliated with the old school's Society of Graduates, which has a membership of over 1,000 in all parts of the United States. The chapter officers will be elected at the Fall meeting.

The Rev. John Fearnley, rector of the hall, and Mrs. Fearnley, its Principal, had luncheon with the graduates yesterday. Mr. Fearnley made an address, speaking of the past, present, and future of the famous old school for girls that was established in 1837 by Bishop George W. Doane, father of the present Bishop of Albany. He impressed upon the graduates the duty of keeping up their interest in their Alma Mater.

Among those present were Mrs. S. B. Nelson, Mrs. Wilson C. Bibb, Mrs. J. Henry Watson, Mrs. Charles Foster, Mrs. C. H. Hull, Mrs. Theodore Price, Mrs. Homer Reboul, Mrs. Robert McPherson, Mrs. Samuel Burr, and Miss Barrows.

CADET CORPS TO PARADE.

Hebrew Orphan Regiment Will Give Exhibition at 7th Regt. Armory.

The cadet corps and band of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum will give an exhibition drill on Saturday evening at the armory of the Seventh Regiment, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street. The battalion will be reviewed by Col. Daniel Appleton and his staff. The exhibition will include fancy drills by the entire regiment, special exhibitions by the field music and junior drum corps, and manoeuvres and tactics by a special picked company of cadets, in addition to the regular "evening parade of the United States Army."

Many city officials have accepted invitations to be present. Reviewing officers at similar exhibitions in the past have been Major Gen. Merritt, U. S. A.; Major Gen. Frederick D. Grant, U. S. A., and Gov. Charles E. Hughes.

The annual meeting of the asylum will take place on Sunday morning. The report of the Board of Trustees for the year will be read, and there will be an election of Trustees to fill vacancies on the board.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Owing to the many benefits now pending, E. H. Sothern has decided to postpone the benefit for the Actors' Fund he intended to organize in his May engagement at the Academy of Music. It will be given by Mr. Sothern in his engagement in the city next Autumn.

The company now playing "The Merry Widow" at the New Amsterdam Theatre will present the second act of the Viennese operetta at the Firemen's Fund benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House on May 1. This will be followed by Joe Weber's burlesque of the same act of the same piece.

William Abingdon and Bijou Fernandez have accepted by cable and offer to produce Edwin Arden's "Captain Velvet" in London the last week in June. They will sail on June 4, and will be away all Summer.

Dorothy Donnelly, last seen here in "The Movers," has been re-engaged by Henry B. Harris for next season and will play a leading role in one of Mr. Harris's new productions.

Jacques Cohen will be the official auctioneer for the sale of seats and boxes at the Metropolitan Opera House on Friday afternoon for the Firemen's Memorial Fund. Among his assistants are to be Peter F. Dailey, W. H. Crane, Charles J. Ross, Donald Brian, Lew Fields, Joe Weber, Marie Dressler, George M. Cohan, and John Slavin.

Frank Keenan, now appearing at the Belasco Theatre in "The Warrens of Virginia," and Ben Johnson of the "Paid in Full" company will offer a new sketch at the Friars' Festival on May 14. The press agent announces that the first page of the manuscript has been lost, so nobody knows the name of the author, but the piece came into Mr. Keenan's possession some three years ago.

NEW PLAY BY JONES AT ACTORS' BENEFIT

"The Goal," a One-Act Piece, Strains for an Effect Which Is Not Realized.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME

Receipts Amount to $1,700, but General Public Does Not Respond Freely as Might Have Been Expected.

THE GOAL, a play in one act by Henry Arthur Jones. Hudson.

Sir Stephen Famariss	Sidney Herbert
Daniel Famariss	Edwin Nicander
Sir Lydden Crane, M. D.	A. G. Andrews
Adams	Stephen Cornelius
Peggy Lovel	Oza Waldrop
Nurse Clandon	Isabel Richards

Although actors are always among the first to volunteer their services for private and public charities, no such overflow was noticeable at their own benefit at the Hudson Theatre yesterday afternoon as often appears at similar affairs. The audience consisted chiefly of the actors themselves and those in close touch with the profession.

The programme was an exceptionally attractive one, and about $1,700 was netted. The members of the Actors' Society of America, in whose interest the affair was given, were highly pleased with the result. But the fact remains that on many previous occasions more has been made with far less reason for response.

Interest was largely centred in the production of a new one-act play, "The Goal," by Henry Arthur Jones, who has frequently written to greater purpose.

Sir Stephen Famariss, programmed as "the great engineer," has quarreled with his son. The boy is as obstinate as his father, and refuses to admit that he is wrong about some girders of a bridge. Sir Stephen is not expected to live very long. His physician tells him that his is a case of angina pectoris, that he may live six days or six weeks, but on the other hand he may die at any moment. This fact, however, does not prevent Sir Stephen from insisting that a dance which is to be held in the house in honor of Miss Peggy Lovel shall not be postponed, and when Peggy comes in to see him for a moment, decked out in her finery, and considerably more disturbed about the question of long sleeves or short ones than by Sir Stephen's illness, he enters into the spirit of the moment and is actually on the point of insisting that the first dance shall be his.

When Peggy retires word is brought that Sir Phillip's son has arrived. The father calls to him through the door that he must not enter the room unless he will admit that he was in the wrong about the girders. The son is silent. And the father, after repeating the question several times, finally tells him to make the admission even if he must "tell a lie." Promptly thereupon the desired answer comes and the son enters. The father starts to outline a great plan he has for reducing the journey from England to America to four days by means of a bridge to be started at Milford Haven, and makes it clear that he wants his son to undertake the task he meant to be his own crowning labor. But he is suddenly stricken. The son, instead of rushing to his assistance, stands by helplessly inquiring what is the matter.

"I will die standing," shouts Sir Stephen, after which he promptly keels over and dies quite properly stretched out upon the floor.

The play is not without some happiness of dialogue and character, and there is an excellent little scene in which the sick man discusses his ideas of a funeral, recalling how his friend, the doctor, had spoiled a good story on a similar occasion. But moments that were obviously intended to provide dramatic climaxes failed in their effect. Nor were the actors to be blamed.

The best acting in the piece was provided by Miss Oza Waldrop, as the lighthearted little débutante, and by Mr. Andrews, as the doctor.

The remainder of the programme was in lighter vein. Augustus Thomas made the opening address and Otis Skinner another, while Ralph Delmore, President of the society, properly closed the proceedings. Others who appeared were Victor Moore, May Naudain, Tom Wise, Peter F. Dailey, Charles Rose, George Evans, Gertrude Hoffmann, and William Courtleigh. Victor Herbert conducted two numbers during the intermission.

PLAYS SCHOOLROOM MUSIC.

Harold Bauer's Last Recital Embraced Compositions Most Familiar to Students.

For his last piano recital of the season in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon Harold Bauer arranged a programme composed entirely of compositions of interest to students of the piano.

It was an experiment well worth while, and should have called forth a larger audience, for those who are learning to play rarely have the opportunity of hearing an artist's version of the familiar compositions of the schoolroom.

The programme commenced with Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique," included four Schumann compositions, some of the Bach preludes and fugues, Chopin's Polonaise in C sharp minor; impromptu in A flat, and scherzo in B minor; Schubert's impromptu, Opus 90; two of Mendelssohn's "Lieder ohne Wörter," and Weber's Rondo, Opus 62.

Mr. Bauer is most at home with the compositions of the romantic composers, and as these dominated the programme the afternoon afforded much pleasure. He played yesterday with a great deal of poetic distinction, and it seemed good to hear some of the melodious numbers which are often neglected nowadays by concert pianists.

MRS. LESLIE CARTER SALE.

Household Effects of the Actress Being Auctioned This Week.

The household effects, silver, gowns, and furs of Mrs. Leslie Carter Paine, the actress, are being sold this week at the Fifth Avenue Auction Rooms. The first lot of furniture sold yesterday afternoon for $4,875.

The prices were low, the highest, $130, being paid for a beautiful English oak sideboard. A mahogany cellarette went for $18, a reception room suite in gold for $80, and a handsome Charles II. armchair for $20.

The sale will continue throughout the week. An Adams bedroom suite which cost $5,000, will be among the pieces to go and a baby grand piano in a Vernis-Martin case. Antique jewelry belonging to the actress will also be sold.

Hippodrome Act Saved from the Sea.

Cliff Berzac and his performing animals were seen for the first time on the Hippodrome stage last night. Early yesterday Max Anderson of Shubert & Anderson, managers of the Hippodrome, learned that the troupe was aboard the Kronprinz, ready to sail. He rushed down to the dock in his automobile and induced the performer to remain. The act contains a number of performing ponies and a comedy mule. It is now expected that Onaip, who was unable to appear on Monday owing to an injury in rehearsal, will make his début the beginning of next week.

350 Girls Going to Charities Benefit.

An anonymous donor who bought tickets and two women who have sent checks to the United Hebrew Charities will enable 350 girls who have never heard an operatic concert or attended an opera to hear the concert of the United Hebrew Charities in the Metropolitan Opera House Sunday evening at which Mme. Gadski, Vladimir de Pachman, Miss Maud Powell, Miss May Mukle, and Miss Estelle Liebling will appear. Miss Mabel Taliaferro and her company will present the second act of "Polly of the Circus."

WILD WEST SHOW FILLS THE GARDEN

An Avalanche and Prairie Fire the New Features Provided This Year.

HORSE FOOTBALL A ROUSER

Indian Team Defeats the Cowboys in the First Game—Old-Time Thrillers Repeated.

Buffalo Bill is growing young again. If this is not literally true, at least, he does not appear to be getting any older. Never, in the memory of the oldest "wild-wester," did he seem more buoyant than last night at Madison Square Garden, riding on his Arabian steed at the head of his Congress of Rough Riders of the World.

When he doffed his sombrero in response to the applause of the audience which had come to see the latest version of the Wild West Show and filled the Garden from top to bottom, it seemed as though he cut a figure more imposing than on any similar occasion of the past.

Just as Col. Cody himself seems to have drunk of the spring of eternal youth so his creation, the Wild West Show, retains its youth by the continual addition of new features. Two of the new features last night were "The Mighty Avalanche," the and "Prairie Fire." More practice will improve these features. Last night a warmer favorite proved to be a game of football on horseback. This took the audience by storm.

The game is this: An immense ball is placed in the centre of the arena and two opposing teams of horsemen endeavor to push it to either end of the inclosure. To score a point it is necessary to push the ball between goal posts. Last night the game was between a team of cowboys and a team of Indians, who didn't come from Carlisle, but played the game with real Carlisle grit and audacity.

When, after many attempts, the Indians succeeded in making their first score against the cowboys, the audience rose to its feet to shout its delight. When, to the surprise of every one, the Indians scored a second time, leaving their opponents defeated, the applause was terrific. There was no doubt that the redskins had the sympathy all on their side.

In telling of the game, one should not forget to mention Maude. It was Maude who, after each goal, was called upon to put the ball in motion again. Her rider would back her up to the ball, and she would give it a kick creditable for an intercollegiate punter.

The older features of the entertainment all went with their accustomed vim. Johnny Baker, the marksman, did some of the best shooting on record; the Mexicans twirled their lassos with fine accuracy; the old Deadwood stage coach was again rescued from marauding Indians; the Cossacks and cavalrymen did their wildest riding, and the Zouaves went through their drill without a hitch.

The Battle of Summit Springs proved just as much of a sensation as when it was done a year ago. The encamping of the Indians, the arrival of the avenging cavalry, the rescue of the white prisoners, and all the fascinating details of the combat were re-enacted with all imaginable vigor and realism. This was the spectacle that reached the hearts of the audience. When the white men were finally victorious Buffalo Bill was a hero indeed not only to the youngsters in the audience but to the older people as well.

Major Gen. Carr, who actually commanded the troops on the occasion of this battle, one of the last real fights in American Indian warfare, sat in one of the boxes last night.

PAPER TRUST INQUIRY FORCED BY SPEAKER

House Republicans Obey Him and He Names Stanch Friends on the Committee.

PAPER MAKERS PLEASED

Democrats Unanimously Oppose the Plan to Prevent Repeal of the Duty on Wood Pulp.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Speaker Cannon put through the House to-day, by a vote of 184 to 110, under the crack of the party whip, his answer to the demand for removal of the tariff on wood pulp in the shape of his resolution for a general investigation of the Paper Trust and all the circumstances surrounding paper prices by a special committee of six. Immediately he appointed as the Republicans on the committee four of the stanchest supporters he has in the House. They are James R. Mann of Chicago, who heads the committee; James M. Miller of Kansas, William H. Stafford of Wisconsin, and Henry Bannon of Ohio.

All four have been doing the Speaker's bidding most industriously ever since they have been in Congress, and at least one of them, Miller, is having a hard time trying to beat the opposition to him in his district because of his subserviency to Cannon. Stafford comes from a constituency in which the paper manufacturers have very large interests. Bannon is a stand-patter of the truest type. Mann has long been known as the Speaker's handy man on the floor.

It is a committee put up to do exactly what the Speaker wants, and it is foreordained now that the report will declare the tariff to have nothing whatever to do with the increases in paper prices. The two Democrats are Sims of Tennessee and Ryan of New York, who will not cut the slightest figure in the proceedings of the committee.

Papermakers See Cannon.

The passage of the resolution was coincident with the arrival here of a strong delegation of papermakers, who came to see that the wood pulp duty was not disturbed. A committee from the delegation conferred with Speaker Cannon, Sereno E. Payne, and John Dalzell yesterday evening, and were charmed to learn of the action determined upon for to-day. Under the lead of John Sharp Williams, the Democrats fought the resolution unanimously.

Representative Dalzell made the opening speech in defense of the resolution. He said it was a matter of notoriety that the price of paper was higher than ever before, but that the same unanimity did not exist as to the cause of the high price.

"As to the tariff, that is now only 15 per cent., the lowest duty on paper since the tariff went into effect. But however that may be, with the report of the committee we shall be able to determine whether the high price is due to the tariff, to an unlawful combination, or to natural and legitimate causes."

A Whitewash, Says Williams.

"The high price," answered Mr. Williams, "is due to the tariff and to a combination; and the combination is due to the tariff. Therefore if the Speaker wishes to kill the combination he can easily recognize one of his Republican members who have bills now pending to put wood pulp on the free list. If there is a combination, the free listing of pulp will kill it, and if there is no combination, the change will do no harm.

"The situation now is that of a political criminal threatened with the halter who seeks for a continuance. This resolution provides a committee to continue the tariff, to whitewash it, to crush this man, Herman Ridder, whom they are beginning to speak of as the 'German devil.' There is already appropriated $750,000 for the prosecution of trusts, and now the Republicans are trying to appoint a select committee to do what their own executive has been unable to do."

Mr. Cushman of Washington poked fun at Mr. Williams. "I sometimes wonder," he said, "how I can cherish as warm a personal feeling for a gentleman whose political policies inspire me chiefly with apprehension and distrust." That remark set everybody to laughing.

President Losing Influence.

Mr. Fitzgerald of New York said he had received countless letters on the subject, but that he had told all his constituents to go after the Speaker, that the House was entirely in his hands.

"I told them not to ask help of the President," he said, "for in the last few days it has been demonstrated that the White House has lost influence."

Representative Sherman closed for the Republicans. He said that his party never assumed a person guilty before the guilt was proved and that the committee presented the only feasible way of showing the true working of the tariff on the Paper Trust and of the trust on its customers.

Chairman Mann of the select committee said to-night that the committee had not yet completed its organization. He declined to state what plan of action he intended to follow.

THE NEWSPAPERS PROTEST.

774 in The Associated Press Appeal to Congress Against Paper Trust.

The annual meeting of The Associated Press was held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel yesterday, with an exceptionally large attendance of members from every section of the country. Aside from the transaction of purely routine business affecting the organization, the most important action taken was the presentation and adoption of an address asking the President and Congress to "grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinations of papermakers."

The address as adopted, on the motion of Victor F. Lawson of The Chicago Daily News, is as follows:

"Representatives of 774 daily newspapers, gathered at the annual meeting of The Associated Press, respectfully ask the President and Congress to grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinations of papermakers. In September, 1907, and again in November, 1907, the attention of the authorities was directed to the excessive prices then demanded by the paper combination. Immediately upon the assembling of Congress twenty or more bills aiming to correct these conditions and to put paper and pulp on the free list were introduced and referred to the Ways and Means Committee. Persistent efforts to obtain a hearing have been refused. Dilatory tactics have been employed to prolong present conditions and to carry over to another session of Congress every proposition designed for relief. All newspapers here represented protest against delay.

"Attention is also directed to the false reports of news print paper prices which were recently furnished to Congress by the Director of the Census Bureau. The newspapers here represented use approximately 80 per cent. of the news print paper consumed in the United States. We denounce the quotations as submitted to Congress as misleading and unworthy of credence. The reiteration of the accuracy of these figures of the Director after the error had been called to public attention tends to shake public confidence and respect for statistics thus compiled."

The choice of Directors resulted in the re-election of these five, whose terms had expired: Charles H. Grasty, Baltimore Evening News; W. R. Nelson, Kansas City Star; W. L. McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin; George Thompson, St. Paul Dispatch, and Adolph S. Ochs, NEW YORK TIMES. No changes in the present regulations of the service were made.

The Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association will sit down to a joint banquet to-morrow night at the Waldorf-Astoria, at which William J. Bryan will be the chief speaker.

SENATE TO DO NOTHING.

Steering Committee Vainly Tries to Find Another Way Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Republican Steering Committee of the Senate began to-day to try to figure out how it could pull itself out of the hole into which its "do-nothing" programme for the session has put it, because of the Democratic tactics in the House. An informal meeting was held this morning, at which there was some pretty plain talking.

The net result of this discussion was that no change in the do-nothing programme will be made. Beveridge urged that Congress ought to remain in session at least until action could be taken on some of the President's recommendations. It was made clear to him, however, that there is not the slightest chance for action.

LOEB'S STOCK IN TRUST.

President's Secretary Explains His Holdings in Washington City Railways

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The references to Mr. Loeb, secretary to the President, in the House yesterday by Mr. Sims of Tennessee, in connection with his ownership of 4,700 shares of stock in the Washington Railway and Electric Company, called forth to-day a letter from Mr. Loeb to that gentleman, explaining how the stock came into his possession and suggesting to Mr. Sims that he should be most scrupulous in dealing with men's characters or reputations. Mr. Sims read the letter.

Explaining his possession of the stock, Mr. Loeb says:

"Forty-seven hundred shares of the common stock of the Washington Railway and Electric Company stand in my name on the books of the company. One hundred of these shares, enough to enable me to qualify as Director, are mine; 4,600 are holdings of friends of mine, for whom I simply acted as representative at the last annual meeting of the stockholders of the company, at which I was elected a Director, with the view of my possible election as President of the company if I decided to take up that line of work after leaving official life.

"This record has been, and still is, open to you or any other honest man at any time, and it clearly demonstrates that any insinuation that in any mysterious or unworthy way, or in any way whatever, I have accumulated such a considerable fortune as your speech implies is as unfair to me as it is unworthy of you."

Speaking of what he calls Mr. Sims's "intimation that I have improperly interfered in traction legislation," Mr. Loeb says:

"Immediately after my election as a Director of the company the Chairman of the House District Committee, Mr. Smith, called upon me and started to ask my advice as to certain bills affecting the traction companies pending before the committee. I at once informed him that while I occupied the position of secretary to the President I could not and would not discuss with any member of Congress any matters of legislation affecting the local public service corporations."

It was announced that the stock held by Senator Newlands came to him as trustee of the Sharon estate.

TO SIGN LIABILITY BILL.

Attorney General Tells the President It Is Constitutional.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—President Roosevelt practically has decided to sign the Employers' Liability bill. He received to-day from Attorney General Bonaparte a formal opinion that the measure as passed by Congress will stand the test of the courts. Earlier in the day, at the Cabinet meeting, the Attorney General advised the President to attach his signature.

LILLEY WANTS BOATS' COST.

Suggests That Electric Company Produce Production Records.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Representative George L. Lilley, under whose resolution the legislative methods of the Electric Boat Company are being investigated, suggested to-day to the committee that the Electric Boat Company be compelled to produce its records showing the cost of producing the Holland boat, and the prices charged the United States Government.

He also requested that President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, the builder of the boats, be required to present all records relating to contracts made between his company and the Electric Boat Company.

Post Office Deficiency Is $15,000,000.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Figuring on the basis furnished by the returns for the first two quarters, the deficiency in the Post Office Department for the current fiscal year will exceed $15,000,000. The net deficiency for the first six months of the current fiscal year is estimated at $7,616,545, against the deficiency for the corresponding period of the fiscal year of 1907 of $4,963,202. The postal receipts for the last quarter were $52,152,832, while the expenditures were $52,380,247. Postal officials attribute the deficit largely to the general increase in salaries allowed during the year in the service.

GUNBOAT DUBUQUE SENT TO VENEZUELA

State Department Hears from Minister Russell and Orders Him to Remain.

LA GUAYRA IS QUARANTINED

Government Admits the Presence of a Contagious Disease—Castro Again on Horseback.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Following receipt of both cable and mail advices from Venezuela to-day, the State Department decided that another American warship should be sent to Venezuelan waters at once. The request, accordingly, was made of the Navy Department, and cable instructions were forwarded to-night to the commanding officer of the gunboat Dubuque, now in Haitian waters, to proceed to Curaçao for further orders. It is likely the cruiser Des Moines, which also is at Port au Prince, will be dispatched southward within the next few days.

The State Department received a cable dispatch from Minister Russell to-day saying that La Guayra has been placed under a fortnight's quarantine, with the possibility of extension. Mr. Russell has been directed to remain at Caracas till further orders, which may depend upon the action expected to be taken by the Senate.

Mr. Russell's cablegram indicates that the situation at La Guayra is alarming. Business apparently is paralyzed and traffic is suspended on all railroads. This is thought by the State Department to account for the lack of communication from Mr. Russell the last two weeks.

CARACAS, Venezuela, April 19.—Via Willemstad, Curacao, April 21.—Although Minister Russell has intended to sail for New York on April 27, on his annual leave of absence long since granted by the State Department, the exigencies of the present very delicate diplomatic situation make his going inadvisable until Congress makes some definite decision as to what it is going to do with the Venezuelan question.

Lieut. Francis E. Ruggles, United States Cavalry, Military Attaché to the Legation, had intended to go to Bogota, and he is also accredited to the Legation there, but it is apparent that he is now going to remain in Caracas until the diplomatic atmosphere clears. Only recently he returned from a long trip into the interior of Venezuela, to Ciudad Bolivar, on the Orinoco River, from which point he returned to Caracas by way of Trinidad.

CARACAS, Sunday, April 12.—For the first time in nearly two years Gen. Castro was able to mount on horseback last week. Although for nearly a year he has been gradually recovering from the illness which nearly cost him his life, he never had completely recovered until his late protracted stay at Los Teques. He had been absent from the capital nearly two months, living at that health resort, and he has now returned, evidently very much benefited. His return was coincident with news from Washington giving the Calhoun report and the next day El Constitucional, the Government newspaper, made a bitter attack on the American Commissioner and against those conclusions which are adverse to Venezuela.

"Inasmuch as from whatever side one looks at the question, and no matter how much sophistry and subtlety of a pettyfoggy lawyer is invoked," it says, "the question only presents a juridic character and on all its faces it is a matter of mere law, we ask: In what courts does Judge Calhoun think the trial should be, in those of Venezuela or those of North America?

"Further, if the question is exclusively of law, to be decided by law courts, why is diplomacy invoked? What have the State Departments of one or the other country got to do with the matter? What is the reason for these notes, either reticent, unseasonable, or intemperate, but always unharmonious or aggressive, by means of which the American Government thinks it can maintain, before a conscientious and just Government like ours, the prestige of its moral authority, the reputation of its statesmen who try to mix up with a question not at all within their jurisdiction, and the good name of a people who are vain with the thought that they are standard bearers of justice and the paladins of liberty?

"Is it in this way that the Government believes it is supporting the justice of its citizens, by violently and arbitrarily transferring the question from the inviolable and clear bosom of the law to the discretional, fickle, artificial, and subtle grounds of diplomatic debate? Is it by maintaining such a leonine pretension of its own rights and those of the Latin-American republic that the United States can hope that Europe will consent that it be the guardian of justice in America?"

SENATE BATTLESHIP FIGHT.

President's Supporters to Carry on His Crusade for Four Big Armorclads.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—With Senator Beveridge as his mouthpiece, President Roosevelt served notice on Congress to-day that he intends to insist upon his demand for four battleships. The notice was given during discussion for the Naval Appropriation bill in the Senate. It will be followed to-morrow by an amendment providing for four big fighting craft, for which amendment Senator Piles has been chosen as sponsor. The absence of an appropriation in the bill for the construction of the two battleships it authorizes caused much surprise.

FUN FOR THE BLUEJACKETS.

Los Angeles Ports Keep Up Their Entertainment of Fleet.

LOS ANGELES, April 21.—Los Angeles continued to-day its programme of entertainment for the sailors and officers of the American battleship fleet. Thirty-five hundred bluejackets were in the landing parties which came ashore at the various ports where the four divisions of the fleet are anchored. The features of the day's entertainment for them were boxing bouts, barbecues, wild west shows, dancing, and shooting the chutes.

For the officers there were a number of social events, including a luncheon to the higher officers by Gen. Adna R. Chaffee at the California Club. To-night the Chamber of Commerce at Redondo, where the ships of the Fourth Division—the Alabama, Illinois, Kearsarge, and Kentucky—are anchored, gave a banquet at the Hotel Redondo for Rear Admiral Charles S. Sperry and other officers of the division. The entire city overlooking the sea was illuminated.

All of the port cities where the ships are stopping are carrying out elaborate entertainment plans each day, and thousands of persons visit the beaches and the warships

STRAUS ON CITIZENSHIP.

Secretary Says It Is a Shame That Privilege Is So Carelessly Given.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—"For many years I have felt that it was not only a shame but disgrace that citizenship in this country, which should be highly prized, because I consider it the most valuable possession that any country on the face of the earth gives for the protection of the individual, should be so carelessly given and often improperly given by our Government."

This declaration was made by Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor before the Assistant United States Attorneys, who are holding conferences with officials of the Department of Justice respecting naturalization, and who to-day called on Mr. Straus in a body.

"Your specific duty," said Mr. Straus to his visitors, "is the protection of the country against the abuse of the privilege of citizenship. Not only have you to take care that no one shall receive the high privilege of American citizenship who is not entitled to it under the law, but you have to detect and prosecute such as have acquired it in the past improperly and fraudulently, and therefore you have a double duty to perform, not only to shut the doors to fraudulent future citizenship, but to reach back and correct such frauds as have been committed in the past."

Secret Service Men "Loaned."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Hearings before the House Appropriations Committee on the Sundry Civil bill to-day brought forth the fact that not only have the detectives of the United States Secret Service been employed in trailing Government employes who have fallen under the suspicion of their chiefs, but that in one case, at least, they have been detailed, or "loaned," for detective work in gathering evidence for a divorce suit in navy circles.

The divorce case that followed evidence procured by Secret Service men was that of a Lieutenant in the navy, who suspected a midshipman at Annapolis. He obtained the aid of Secret Service men. The middy was expelled and the Lieutenant obtained his divorce.

Vero-form Liquid Soap.

The surprise when you first use this soap is to see how quickly and perfectly it does its work. Seems like magic. But the effectiveness comes from purity and a perfect blending of perfect soap ingredients. No alkali—nothing to make roughness or redness of the skin. It is a cleanser, a refresher, a soother—all that an ideal soap should be.

Try it for the shampoo. There's a test that you'll appreciate perhaps more than any other. See how quickly and yet how gently it works. Every bit of foreign substance goes—disappears. The scalp is left as nature meant it to be. The hair resumes its natural gloss and silkiness. It becomes vital with new life. One try will prove it.

PUBLICITY BILL REPORTED.

House Committee Yields to One of the Demands of Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The House Committee on Election of the President, Vice President, and Representatives in Congress to-day made a unanimous report in favor of the McCall Campaign Publicity bill. Such a report was one of the demands of the Democrats when they began their filibuster.

The measure, which repeatedly has been attacked by Republicans as unconstitutional, provides that all committees engaged in trying to influence elections in two or more States shall file with the Clerk of the House a complete account of all receipts and expenditures ten days before the elections and thirty days after. The names of the donors and recipients of the money shall accompany the account.

It did not require any undue exertion on the part of the Giants to take the third consecutive game from Brooklyn yesterday at Washington Park. Brooklyn worked two southpaws in the first two games, but they fell short of the mark, and as a last resource Manager Donovan worked Bell, whose pitching against New York last year entitled him to favorable consideration, but the result showed that unless he can improve greatly he will have a poor chance against the erstwhile National League champions.

For five innings there was little to choose between the teams, and visions of at least one victory encouraged the Brooklyn fans who turned out in fair numbers despite the chilly blasts and the previous two straight defeats. This illusion was dispelled in the sixth inning when the Giants lambasted the ball for keeps, and when the third man retired to the bench three tallies were hung up on the score board. Had the Giants not added to the score in the eighth and ninth innings this would have been sufficient, as the home team recorded but one tally during the contest.

Following up his Philadelphia victory, Wiltse showed that he is a power to be reckoned with during the coming season. His left-handed twisters completely mystified the Brooklyn batters, and when the general rush was made for the Fifth Avenue elevated trains his record for the afternoon showed that he had been hit safely but three times, twice by Jordan, for but one run.

The Giants scored in three innings. In the sixth, after Wiltse had filed to Maloney, Shannon lined a single over short. Tenney received a pass, and Donlin's hot smash to right scored Shannon. Seymour negotiated a single, which enabled Tenney and Donlin to cross the plate. Donlin added a run in the eighth inning on a hit and run play which was made possible by Pattee's fumble. In the ninth inning Bridwell pulled off a double, Wilste bunted safely, and Shannon singled, scoring Bridwell. Merkle sacrificed, and Wiltse added the sixth run on Seymour's infield hit.

Brooklyn's lone tally was made in the sixth inning. Pattee went to first on called balls. Bresnahan caught him napping, but Emslie declared the runner safe, and as the result of an over-vigorous kick Tenney was put out of the game, Merkle taking his place. Pattee went to second on Burch's out, and scored on Jordan's single to right. The score:

GIANTS AT POLO GROUNDS.

"Grandmothers" Will Pass Away To-day for Benefit of Precocious Youths.

The precocious office boy will enter his employer's sanctum this morning with tears in his eyes bigger than a Spalding baseball. He will pour out a tale of woe something like this:

"Say, boss; kin yer spare me ter-day? Me gran'mudder's struck out, an' I wants to help give her a big funeral."

The Boss: "Why, certainly, my boy; you always have loved your grandmother so much. But be careful of those foul balls, and here's the price. I was a boy myself once and had grandmas, too."

"Grandma" always "kicks the bucket" when the Giants open their season. They are "at home" to-day. The Giants have many friends. Although the Polo Grounds are large and the stands commodious, those who wish to be nearest "Muggsy," Mike, Spike, Cy, Roger, Matty, and the rest of them must get around early. For those who seek an early entrance there will be a big brass band, Coogan's goats, the soft cushion pest, and other interesting things to look at.

The gates will open at 2 o'clock; there will be music, a parade of the teams—the Giants and Brooklyns—in which each player will try to step differently from the other. At 4 o'clock, Umpires Emslie and Rudderham will confer with Capts. Donlin and Lumley about ground rules, and then the Giants will start to trim their cousins from across the bridge.

The batteries will be Mathewson and Bresnahan, and McIntyre and Bergen. "Play ball."

Phillies Weaken Toward End.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Boston to-day won the first game of the series here by 3 to 1. Lindaman and Richie had a pitchers' battle for six innings, but after that Boston mixed up hits with Richie's wildness and fielding and battery errors and won. The score:

Larned and Wrenn Tennis Winners.

By winning their match in the doubles William A. Larned, National champion, and George L. Wrenn, Jr., assured themselves of capturing the first prize of the round robin lawn tennis tournament on the court of the St. Nicholas Rink. They defeated Raymond D. Little and Theodore R. Pell two sets to one by the score of 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, and thereby have a record of two victories and no losses. The surprise of the day's play was furnished by the defeat of the old National championship pair, Holcombe Ward and Beals C. Wright. This pair made a game struggle against Malcolm D. Whitman and Edgar W. Leonard, who won, 8—6, 6—8, 6—4. This places Whitman and Leonard in second place to Larned and Wrenn, with the loss and win of a single match, while they have the play-off of their unfinished match with Larned and Wrenn to complete. Ward and Wright and Little and Pell each scored one win and two matches lost.

Three women's matches will hold the court to-day. The inter-city singles will begin at 12:30 P. M., Miss Phyllis Green, Philadelphia, meeting Miss Edna Wildey, New York; at 2 P. M. Miss Eleanor Sears, Boston, will meet Mrs. Barger-Wallach, Newport; at 3:30 P. M. the final of the women's doubles will be played, Mrs. Barger-Wallach and Miss Juliet Adee meeting the Misses Wildey.

New Motorboat Clubs Elected.

The Executive Committee of the American Power Boat Association met last night at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Three new clubs were elected to membership—the Belle Harbor Yacht Club, Long Island; the Holly Beach Yacht Club, Cape May, and the St. Augustine Power Boat Club, Florida. The methods of conducting the Gold Challenge Cup race, which will be held again this year in the Thousand Islands, were discussed at some length, the chief point at issue being the advisability of securing an improved course. The race last year was held off the Chippewa Bay Yacht Club. That club now holds the trophy, and has built Chip III. to defend the cup. The general plan for the proposed motorboat cruise in August from this city to the St. Lawrence was approved, and the indications are that a number of boats will make the long trip.

American Motor Show Here Again.

The American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association will hold another automobile show in the Grand Central Palace next Winter on dates to be announced within a short time. This decision was reached at a meeting of the Show Committee of the association, held at the association's headquarters yesterday. The show will be given this year without the aid of the Automobile Club of America, which has co-operated with the association for the past two years in the previous shows held. The Automobile Club of America recently decided that the association was now vigorous enough to fight its own battles and the club would no longer be a participant. The Motor and Accessory Manufacturers co-operate with the Manufacturers' Association.

New England to Swell Olympic Fund.

Secretary James E. Sullivan of the American Committee of the Olympic Games of 1908 spent Sunday and Monday in Boston in connection with the Marathon race of the Boston Athletic Association, and while there several conferences were held by the New England members of the American Olympic Committee in relation to the raising of funds in New England to send the American team of athletes to London. Lieut. Gov. Draper, who acted as honorary referee for the Marathon race, expressed himself very keenly on the subject of funds, and it is his intention to help out in every way possible. He will actively co-operate with the New England members and see that New England contributes a liberal sum to the fund.

Jay Gould in Olympic Games.

Jay Gould, who recently added to his laurels on the tennis court the possession of the Gold Racquet by his third victory in the Tuxedo tournament, will be among the men of the American Olympic team which will compete in the Olympic Games at London this Summer. He has sent his entry to James E. Sullivan, Secretary of the Olympic Committee.

Harvard to Row Navy To-day.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 21.—The final work was done by the midshipmen's crew this afternoon in preparation for their race to-morrow with the eight of Harvard University. The Harvard crew, which has been here since last week, also went out for practice, but will possibly go over the course again slowly to-morrow morning. The water this afternoon was too choppy for the visitors to do more than practice flying starts and a good bit of paddling. Coach Ray took the men out for about an hour of this sort of work over the protected waters of St. John's Creek.

CHAPULTEPEC WINS FROM RESTIGOUCHE

Three-Year-Olds Make a Sensational and Fast Race for the Sterling Stakes.

CLAIM OF FOUL DISMISSED

Best Backed Horses Take Majority of Aqueduct Prizes — Smoker and Arionette Beaten Choices.

Reduced by scratches to a two-horse race, the Sterling Stakes, the feature of the Aqueduct programme yesterday, gained by the loss of three entries named in the event, when the contest was brought down to a struggle between James R. Keene's Restigouche and Burlew & O'Neill's Chapultepec, the two most noted three-year-olds that have raced in the East this Spring.

The withdrawal of Oxford, Rifleman, and Rialto simply made a clear field for what amounted practically to a match between the more noted three-year-olds. The race that resulted was full of sensation, with the result in doubt even after Chapultepec had passed the winning post a length and a half before his opponent, for a jostle in plain view of the crowd gave cause for a claim of foul by Jockey Notter against the winner, and the Stewards debated for several minutes before the claim was dismissed and the horses placed as they finished. The rivals were rated exactly equal at 9 to 10 each at post time. The track was in excellent condition when the race was run, and the wind had abated to the point that there was almost a calm.

Nose and nose, with Restigouche on the rail, they left the post, and on even terms ran the first fifty yeards. Then Restigouche drew out a head in front, then a neck, and as they came to the first turn, his advantage in position took him clear of Chapultepec. The pace was fast from the first jump, and in the third furlong was the fastest of the race, Restigouche there trying to steal away, and Chapultepec promptly going after him. Coming to the last turn, Restigouche opened a gap of three lengths, and the crowd was acclaiming him the winner when, as they straightened out on the long stretch, Chapultepec settled down for his final run and swiftly began to close on the leader.

Coming to the last quarter pole, Chapultepec moved up beside the Keene gelding, and in the next few strides Notter was driven to the whip on Restigouche. In the next half dozen jumps Chapultepec, too, was under hard pressure, and the horses locked came to the final eighth pole, both tiring, with Restigouche on the rail, trying to bear out, and Chapultepec bearing in.

At the furlong pole, they came together, and a succession of jostles followed, Chapultepec, which was running the stronger at that point, then drawing out in front, and ridden out to the end, winning by a length and a half, though a cosiderable part of the advantage was conceded to him by the jockey on Restigouche, who pulled up at the end when he had no chance to win.

The time of the race, 1:39 4-5, was the fastest of the Spring, and a record for the stakes, the fractional time being 0.12, 4-5, 0:24, 0:35 3-5, 0:48 4-5, and 1:39 4-5. The Summaries:

The game between the Yankees and Senators yesterday at the American League Park was a travesty on the National game. Stupid playing, poor fielding, and weak pitching were the component parts that characterized the contest. In addition to a batting matinée, in which the players of both teams reveled, there was a continuity of misplays that would have disgraced an amateur nine. The fact that New York won does not reflect a whole lot of credit on the team, as the visitors made enough hits to win any ordinary game.

The Yankees scored ten runs in the first four innings, and settled the result. All the Washington pitchers were alike for the locals. Three men were tried in the box, but after the Yankees got started it was a question of how many runs would be piled up. In only one out of the eight innings did the home team fail to tally, and when the visitors had concluded their final effort the Yankees had amassed a total of sixteen runs, and incidentally fattened their batting averages. Fourteen Washington players participated in the mêlée, registering eleven hits for thirteen runs. The score:

Joss Outpitches Walsh.

CLEVELAND, April 21.—Cleveland took the first game of the series from Chicago. Joss was a puzzle, while Walsh was hit opportunely. Lajoie's base running and Turner's fielding were features. The score:

Yonkers to Honor Marathon Winner.

Special to The New York Times.

YONKERS, N. Y., April 21.—Tom P. Morrissey, the winner of the Boston Marathon Race, will be given a big reception when he returns home to-morrow evening. The Mercury A. C., accompanied by the different athletic associations in the city, will meet him at the station and escort him to the Orpheum Theatre, where Mayor Nathan A. Warren will make an address congratulating the young runner, who has won the honor of representing the United States in the Olympic Games to be held in London in June.

McKay and Smith Win.

In last night's game of the team three-cushion billiard tournament at Doyle's academy, Forty-second Street and Broadway, W. McKay and Alec Smith defeated H. Ross and W. Blumenthal by a score of 20 to 18 in forty-four innings.

STATE ENGINEER DEMANDS DEPOSIT

Briarcliff Race Officials to Give Bond for the Amount Required.

MEETING THIS MORNING

All Other Matters Are Held in Abeyance Pending the Settlement of the Repair Guarantee.

State Engineer Skene occupied the centre of the stage in the Briarcliff race arrangements yesterday. The State Engineer made a pronouncement on Saturday that the new State rules relative to the speeding of automobiles on the State highways would have to be observed by the Briarcliff race officials or there would be no race. The rules required a deposit of $200 a mile for the 30 odd miles of road covered by the race course to insure the repair of any damage done to the highways during the race. State Engineer Skene's proclamation was read with interest by the race officials, and Secretary Tom Moore smilingly declared that the requirements of the Engineer would be met.

The rules, however, required that the deposit be made at Albany three days before the race, and yesterday being three days before the race it had not been done.

Col. Robert Lee Morrell and Secretary Tom Moore accordingly left Briarcliff Manor early in the morning, after hearing of the actions, and spent the day in Wall Street, preparing bonds for the satisfaction of the State Engineer's demands, and yesterday afternoon at a late hour the bonds were signed and ready for delivery to the State Engineer. The State Engineer's office in Albany meantime had closed, and State Engineer Skene was on his way to New York to see that his instructions with respect to the race were carried out. A conference was immediately arranged at The Breslin for last night, and the race officials gathered in a body to await the arrival of the State Engineer. After a few uncomfortable hours spent in merely waiting, State Engineer Skene arrived, and a conference immediately began, which was still in session at late hour. They will meet again this morning, when the State Engineer will decide if a bond can be accepted.

All other matters concerning the race were meantime held in abeyance. The question of the entry of the Pope-Hartford car in the event with the unanimous consent of the other contestants is one of these. Whether or not the Pope has complied with the conditions, whether or not there is objection to its entry, whether or not it will be able to qualify before the technical board even Tom Moore does not know as yet. All these things will be settled this morning.

The report of the technical board on the other twenty-two cars entered awaits the arrival of the Chairman, Morrell, at Briarcliff, while the Chairman awaits the State Engineer. All the contestants in the race are at the course and do not seem greatly worried over the possibility of their not qualifying, but are going on with their training just the same. The Pope car is expected on the course to-day.

At the eleventh hour the Bianchi car has had to change drivers. Prossen's family objected so strenuously to his participating in the race that he had to withdraw. Percy Owen was fortunate enough to make a contract with Paul Sartori to supersede him.

Yesterday Sartori took the car around the course, studying the turns all day, and last night was satisfied he could do justice to himself, in spite of his lack of practice. It is hard lines for Owen and a big handicap to shoulder The fact that Cedrino was Sartori's mechanician in the first Vanderbilt Cup race will make the contest between these two rather interesting. They start one, two in the race.

POLO CHAMPIONSHIPS HERE.

Will Be Played at Van Cortlandt Park —Club Tournaments.

Polo in the metropolitan locality will be unusually active this season, for, besides alloting a number of open club tournaments for the local clubs, the delegates at the annual meeting of the Polo Association, held last night at the Riding Club, Fifty-eighth Street near Fifth Avenue, decided to hold the National championships at Van Cortlandt Park. This selection met with general favor, and the sentiment was that a large number of teams would be entered for both the senior and junior events. The tournament was held in Chicago last year.

A change was made in the method of scoring, making the regulation polo game hereafter one of ten periods of six minutes each. The former method has been four periods of fifteen minutes each. Under the new plan no time will be taken out after the making of goals, and only three minutes will be allowed between goals. Another rule adopted was the prohibition of blinkers or spurs with rowels, except on special occasions, and when properly sanctioned by the committee. At the close of the regular meeting the annual dinner was held, which was attended by delegates from over twenty-five clubs.

Dates were assigned for fourteen tournaments, including the championships, and several more will be added during the season. The list of tournaments follows:

May 18-23, Westchester; 25-30, Great Neck; June 2-20, Philadelphia Country Club, Bryn Mawr, Devon; June 22-July 3, Meadow Brook; July 4-18, Rockaway; 18-25, Rumson, 20-25, Southampton; July 29-Aug. 12, Point Judith; Aug. 3-22, Newport; 15-26, Saratoga; Sept. 2-9, Buffalo; 7-19, Myopia and Dedham; Aug. 29-Sept. 5, junior and senior championships, Van Cortlandt Park, N. Y.; Sept. 7-15, Squadron A at Van Cortlandt.

H. L. Herbert was re-elected Chairman for the coming year, and W. A. Hazard Secretary. The other members of the Executive Committee are August Belmont, R. L. Agasiz, John C. Grome, Joshua Crane, Charles H. Wheeler, Oliver W. Bird, and Sidney C. Lane.

CO. K WINS DUAL MEET.

Soldiers of Seventy-first Regiment Compete for Athletic Trophy.

A dual meet between Companies B and K of the Seventy-first Regiment in their armory last night furnished splendid sport for the soldier athletes and their friends. An interesting feature was a one-mile bicycle race, open to Military Athletic League contestants, in which Charles Nerent of the Seventy-first Regiment, with a handicap of 80 yards, defeated the crack cyclist, L. J. Weintz (scratch) of the Twenty-second Regiment. Although defeated, Weintz rode the fastest mile shown at any local track this season, covering the distance in 2:19 2-5.

Company K won the chief honors, scoring 40 points to Company B's 31, and will, therefore, receive the Delamater-Lyon Trophy. The summaries:

600-Yard Run.—Won by C. Haage, Company pany K; G. E. Flood, Company K, second; C. E. Dressing, Company K, third. Time—0:07.

Running High Jump.—Won by R. E. Harris, Company B, height 5 feet 2 inches; C. P. Ranges, F. K. Lovell, and J. H. Ranges, all of Company K, tied for second place at 5 feet 1 inch.

600-Yard Run.—Won by C. Hoage, Company B; R. Egan, Company B, second; J. Purcell, Company K, third. Time—1:21 2-5.

220-Yard Run.—Won by Charles A. Hoyt, Company K; G. E. Flood, Company K, second; J. Daly, Company K, third. Time—0:26 2-5.

One-Mile Bicycle Race, Scratch, Open to Military Athletic League.—Won by Charles Nerent, Seventy-first Regiment; L. J. Weintz, Twenty-second Regiment, second; William Van den Dries, Twenty-second Regiment third. Time—2:19 1-5.

One-Mile Run.—Won by R. Egan, Company B; J. Godsell, Jr., Company B, second; William Gieger, Company K, third. Time—4:52 4-5.

60-Yard Special Sack Race, Handicap.—Won by J. McCahill, Company E, (scratch;) J. Draddy, Company E, (12 feet,) second. Time—0:09.

220-Yard Low Hurdle Race.—Won by R. E. Harris, Company B; F. K. Lovell, Company K, second; G. E. Flood, Company K, third. Time—0:30.

600-Yard Run, Handicap, Open to Members of Seventy-first Regiment.—Won by G. Steurwald, Company G, (10 yards;) J. Reherman, Company E, (15 yards,) second; F. J. Wright, Company E, (10 yards,) third. Time—1:18 2-5.

176-Yard Special Sack Race.—Won by J. McCahill, Company E, (scratch.) Time—0:27 2-5.

12-Pound Shot-Put.—Won by C. P. Ranges, Company K, distance 35 feet; F. K. Lovell, Company K, distance 34 feet 8¼ inches, second; G. E. Flood, Company K, distance 33 feet, third.

One-Mile Relay Race.—Won by Company B team, composed of Harris, Ridgeway, Egan, Wright, and Haage; Company K team, composed of Hoyt, Purcell, Daly, Dressing, and Flood, second. Time—3:41 2-5.

HONORS FOR MISS BEDFORD.

Wins Three Firsts with Hildred and John Randolph at Durland's Show.

Miss Emily H. Bedford of Brooklyn was the star attraction of the first Horse Show of the season in metropolitan circles, held under the auspices of the Durland Company in the arena at 5 Sixty-sixth Street last night. The young woman was enthusiastically cheered when the blue ribbon was appended to the bridle of the imported chestnut mare Hildred, and the judges also adjudged that her entry in the novice saddle class and in the ladies' saddle class—John Randolph—was the best of the field exhibited.

Miss Bedford's victory with Hildred was over a field of formidable proportions. The conditions called for the best horse suitable to a gig, for a challenge cup valued at $200, offered by the Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Horse Company. Miss Bedford won the trophy with Hildred last year, and by annexing it last night the cup becomes her permanent property.

Much interest was manifested in the jumping class, in which Dick Donnelly, the famous rider of champion "stickers," was interested. Donnelly had the mount on Crackerjack, a chestnut gelding owned by J. W. Borst, and he did wonders with an incorrigible animal. The card called for the best performance over eight consecutive jumps, including a water jump surrounded by a handsome collection of Easter flowers, an unusual event indoors. The beauty of the flowers may have had something to do with the fractious jumpers, for few negotiated the jumps cleanly. Rufus C. Finch's horse Mercy Me could not be induced to go over the rails, while Donnelly's mount after much persuasion went over the bars imperfectly. At the water jump, however, Crackerjack made a clean record.

The academy was neatly decorated, and the first night's attendance was considered very encouraging. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Ladew of the Elsinore Farm of Glen Cove, L. I.; Miss Elsie Ladew, Miss Emily Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Elliott, Edward T. Bedford, William McGibbon and wife, Rufus L. Patterson, Judge W. H. Moore, owner of the famous hackney champion, Forest King; J. W. Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Newton, James McDonald and family, Fred Gerken, George C. Clausen, Mrs. Gordon Hughes, William Carr, Dr. T. C. Grenside, W. H. Collier, Miss Lillian A. Wiesner, Martin J. Aylward, and James Butler, Jr.

Shoulder Talks.

It is by the introduction and perfection of new ideas that the world progresses. The Wm. Vogel & Son shoulder marks the greatest progress in clothes-making—a shoulder that is hand moulded and hand finished, giving the coat just the proper balance.

Note this shoulder in our $25 Suits. Numerous models, closing with 2 or 3 buttons, in bright toned fabrics in all the new colors as well as blue and black.

TAFT INSTRUCTIONS VOTED DOWN.

The Nevada Republican Convention on Monday rejected by a vote of 84 to 26 a resolution instructing the delegates for TAFT. The platform, however, "indorsed the Administration of President ROOSEVELT."

In their Convention yesterday the Republicans of New Hampshire listened to an eloquent eulogy of Secretary TAFT from the lips of the venerable DAVID CROSS of Manchester. However, ex-Judge CROSS's modest resolution approving an uninstructed delegation, but declaring WILLIAM H. TAFT to be the embodiment of every element of a triumphant candidate, was rejected by a rising vote, only 25 out of 763 delegates voting for the resolution.

The platform of the New Hampshire Republicans, after declaring that in the judgment of the Resolutions Committee the interests of the party and its candidate will be best served by withholding specific or implied instructions, "indorses" the Administration of Mr. ROOSEVELT in these words:

> We recognize the untiring energy, exalted purpose, and ardent patriotism of THEODORE ROOSEVELT. To his abiding faith in the people and their continued confidence in him is due the great success of his leadership. We hereby express our cordial approval of his Administration.

We presume that the rejection of Taft instructions and the cordial indorsement of the Administration in New Hampshire, Nevada, and other States are mere coincidences, signifying nothing. It is natural that a Republican Convention should commend a Republican President. But it is evident that in a good many States influences are at work against the candidacy of Mr. TAFT. They appear to be organization influences. The delegates at Concord exhibited a good deal of admiration for the Secretary of War; his character, his abilities, and his record might be expected to commend him to the Republicans of New Hampshire. It is surprising that the Convention did not openly declare approval of his candidacy. The "influences" are evidently at work.

We know of no substantial ground for the suspicion that the third-term interest is actively opposing Mr. TAFT. If superserviceable friends of Mr. ROOSEVELT are doing this work, they must be doing it without his knowledge, consent, or approval. They ought to see that they are seeking to do his reputation the greatest possible injury. The nomination, however it might come to him, he could not safely or honorably accept. He forbids the Convention to consider his name, first by his repeated refusal to be a candidate, and, second, by his openly announced support of the nomination of Mr. TAFT. However spontaneously and by whatever impulse the nomination might be conferred upon him, it would be everywhere charged that the thing had been contrived from the beginning, that a monstrous deception had been practiced, and that the President of the United States had used his Secretary of War as a mask for his own personal designs. To this charge no reply could be made that would free men's minds from the suspicion that it was true. Intelligent friends of Mr. ROOSEVELT would hardly care to place him in that position.

THE SPANISH WAR VETERANS.

The proposition to amend the Constitution of the State by giving a 10 per cent. preference to Spanish war veterans in competition for positions in the civil service has passed the Senate. The same pressure that secured this result in the Senate will now naturally be brought to bear on the Committee on Rules in the Assembly, in order to obtain favorable action before the adjournment to-morrow.

We have already given the reasons why such a change in the constitutional regulation of appointments to the civil service appears to us undesirable. The radical defect in it is that it undertakes to reward military service by favoring the appointment of veterans to places in the civil service for which others have, by the constitutional tests, shown themselves to be better fitted. That is an injustice to the better competitors. It is a greater injustice to the people of the State, who are entitled to the best service attainable. Moreover, the favor shown to veterans is not confined to appointment over superior applicants. It extends to the methods of removal, and interferes with the exercise of that unhampered discretion on the part of appointing officers which is essential to the greatest efficiency and to the maintenance of thorough responsibility. Finally, there is an implication in such favor specially granted at the instance of veteran organizations that the patriotism manifested in military service was not as disinterested as it appeared. We think it will generally be conceded that the surviving soldiers of the civil war who have been most prominent in seeking office and in political activity do not in reality represent the highest type of citizenship engaged in that struggle. There is reason to think that this is also true in the case of the Spanish war veterans.

THE CURRENCY COMMISSION.

The Financial Chronicle regards Representative FOWLER's Currency Commission proposal as "fantastic," suggesting that there is no precedent for a body of that size and composition, and that we have already had Commissions enough upon this subject.

A spokesman for the Merchants' Association answers The Chronicle's criticism, citing several precedents for large and successful Currency Commissions. The Austrian Gold Resumption Commission consisted of thirty-six members; the British Gold and Silver Commission was also a large body, and the Mexican Commission of 1903 represented many classes interested in the topic in the manner proposed by Mr. FOWLER.

There is undeniable force in the suggestion that we have had Commissions enough, and that we do not need information. But we do need something which a representative and authoritative Commission could furnish—and that is an enlightened public sentiment, and an answer to the objections which have blocked the way to progress along the ideas represented best by Mr. FOWLER.

Only last week we were told that the currency proposals were for the benefit of "Wall Street," and that the banks, which were protesting against what it was planned to impose upon them, were really plotting something deep and dark. It is not enough to deride this idea. It should be made positively untenable. Mr. FOWLER's way of doing this is to propose that the Congressional membership of the Commission shall be supplemented by six distinguished financiers, and by groups from the Atlantic, Pacific, and Mississippi Valley regions, each group to include a banker, a farmer, a merchant, a manufacturer, and a spokesman of labor. Unanimity is not to be expected in a body of forty-three, but the dissentients would be compelled to defend their dissent, and nobody could allege that the majority was actuated by motives limited to a class, or inspired by self-interest.

SIX MONTHS' DEVELOPMENTS.

It is an even half year to-day since the Knickerbocker Trust Company suspended. In that interval it has so rearranged its affairs that it has begun a new career, the promise of which is at the moment brighter than its prospects in its early life. As a prediction this would have taxed credulity only a few weeks ago, and yet it but in part states facts within the knowledge of every observer of financial events. The Knickerbocker is only one of a class of institutions which have been criticised as among the causes of our reaction, and which under the strain of the crisis developed a strength and stability which have surprised their critics.

And yet it is a cause of impatience to some that the progress of recuperation is slow. It must be admitted that much labor is unemployed. It is undeniable that railway earnings have shown a decline for each week of the year, and that the latest week is among the worst. It is true that the iron trade is as dull just now as it has been at any time since the collapse. Nevertheless a great deal more has been gained in the last six months than the mere strengthening of the banking situation. The piling up of liquid capital, and the ample supply of labor willing to work efficiently, together with a crop outlook better than usual, and an unprecedented credit balance of foreign trade—these are uncommonly favorable factors, and yet would count for little if it were doubtful that the profits of enterprise would be realized. This doubt as much as any one other factor precipitated the panic. It is true that capital was scarce, but it was more easily to be had at a price then than now, for all its present abundance. Certainly it will not be contended at a time when bank deposits are at their maximum, and reserves are approaching a maximum, that there is not enough cash to finance anything yielding a sure profit. Economic risks will be taken, but what is necessary is security from worrying by those who should be the guardians of industry and enterprise.

Of this happily there is a prospect which improves with the progress of events since the Knickerbocker embarrassment. Before that it was not generally perceived—although sufficiently plain to many who were unheeded—that attacks upon corporations would lessen their ability to pay wages and supply bills. No popular leaders are now proposing to attack corporations as such, apart from their conduct, and if any such proposal of the accustomed sort were to be made they would find opposition instead of applause. Capitalists and wage earners now see that their fortunes are alike in this respect. Even the President's temper has changed, if not his policies, as is attested by the contrast between his January message, which was among the most violent of his official expressions, and his more recent utterances, whose poise and calmness have won general approval, accompanied with regret that they were so tardy.

Best of all is the disclosure that the Supreme Court is unmoved by the clamor of the partisans or the Socialists. The assumption of Southern States to regulate railways in confiscatory manner has been stopped. The right of railways to resist the orders of unions against the employment of non-unionists has been established. The tyranny of the labor boycott has been weakened. The doors to the Supreme Court swing inward still, despite the efforts of Legislatures to close them.

THE LIGHT OF EXPERIENCE.

One passage in the Grand Jury's statement concerning the management and condition of the Metropolitan Street Railway properties is notably full of meaning. It is this:

> While much has appeared in methods and expenditures, which in the light of experience sound business judgment would not sanction, and there were disbursements deserving severe condemnation, yet, after a prolonged and careful investigation, the Grand Jury has not been able to obtain any evidence showing the commission of a crime on which it could act.

Whoever wrote the statement succeeded here in picturing forth vividly the operation of the jury's mind. The Grand Jury is made up of business men, experienced, intelligent, soberminded. They know that many practices which would not now be tolerated were only a few years ago common enough in corporation management—the making of campaign contributions, for instance. To declare these now abandoned practices criminal and to base an indictment upon them would be to begin a series of prosecutions that would have no ending.

The words "in the light of experience" are weighty. Guided by that light, and by its own judgment of what its duty, the law, considerations of justice, and the public interest demanded, and after patient inquiry into the facts the jury reached the conclusion which Mr. JEROME has been very much criticised for reaching in his official capacity, that the evidence before it did not show the commission of a crime upon which it could act.

MR. TAFT'S ABSENCES.

We do not think that the Secretary of War need feel conscience-stricken because of his absences from Washington. Undoubtedly they have been considerable and probably greater than those of any other member of the Cabinet. But several things are to be borne in mind in connection with them. One is the purpose of the absences; another is the way in which the work of his office is done, despite them; a third, and not the least important, is the general service Mr. TAFT has rendered to the Government and to the people.

According to the published tabulated statement Mr. TAFT was away from Washington nineteen times in a little over thirteen months previous to April 18, 1908, and the total time of absence was 255 days. That looks impressive. But 120 days were given to the long journey to the Philippines and return by a roundabout way, begun in August of last year. We do not think that any intelligent student of the record of that journey will think it was time wasted. In addition to this prolonged absence there was a month spent in the West Indies and a vacation of six weeks, leaving barely two months used in occasional trips.

Since the opening of the present year a certain amount of the time of absence has undoubtedly been devoted to what may be considered political activity. Most of it has been used in journeys for the purpose of public speaking in part on political subjects. Have the people lost anything by this? We think not. It seems to us a perfectly proper use of the time of an important and responsible official who is also an acknowledged candidate for the nomination as President. As the representative of the Administration and as a candidate for nomination, his appearance before the public is necessarily a means of enlightenment for the public judgment in matters of the greatest consequence. Pending a party campaign the Prime Minister of Great Britain, the working head of the legislative as well as the executive branches of the most extensive empire in the world, gives practically all his time to public discussion of current issues. Why not? Under a Government depending on opinion, why should opinion not be informed in all possible ways?

Meanwhile, so far as our knowledge goes, the work of the War Office has been done carefully and efficiently.

THE EASTER HATS.

The only comfort to be derived from the contemplation of the new Easter hats of the women is the reflection that hats cannot be uglier or more disturbing to the peace of others. To their wearers they are disturbing, too, in a way, for only the most piquantly good-looking woman can look well under the shadow of one of these huge confections of wire, felt, straw, silk and feathers, and artificial vegetation. Mere man, gazing at a multitude of his sisters thus becapped, wonders where the legend of the beauty of American women originated, and if the purpose of the romancer who invented it was benevolent or malicious.

The hats cannot last. This will be a quickly fading fashion. The minds of the milliners have become temporarily abnormal. But millinery, as a general thing, is an art that makes for beauty; a suitable hat will often lend charm to a plain woman; and we may be sure the milliners will come to their senses and right the great wrong they have done.

We venture to predict that the hats of the Autumn will be small, and that with the monstrosities of head gear the hydrocephalic coiffure will vanish. A swelled head is not beautiful. Normal human proportions cannot be improved upon. That is the reason why we remain cheerful, in face of the present affliction, and refuse to give way to ill-temper in contemplating the Easter hats.

Assemblyman WARD thinks, as do all good citizens, that the Penal Code could well be improved by making it apply to persons who organize under names resembling the names of charitable societies, with intent thereby to secure advantage and private profit. Hitherto it has been difficult to find specific instances, in which the public has been misled, sufficient to convict these counterfeit organizations. Without requiring such proof, the Ward bill makes it a misdemeanor, subject to an injunction, for them to continue in business under their hypocritical titles. The measure has been passed by the State Senate, and is reported for passage in the Assembly.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Home-Owning Attacked and Defended.

Denunciations of the "craze" for owning a home are not, to put it moderately, common, even in this day when almost anybody or anything can get himself or itself denounced while he waits. As a matter of fact, it is generally accepted as true that there is a special joy and safety, as well as a special virtue, in owning the house one lives in and the ground one lives on, and literally innumerable orators and writers have lauded as something almost or quite sacred the ambition which practically everybody expresses, whatever may be the practice, to have "a home of his own." The phrase as used assumes off-hand that only the house to which a man holds a deed is really a home, the hired dwelling place and the boarding house being called home only by reluctant courtesy and with a feeling which often rises from the subliminal to full consciousness that the word is misused when applied to either of them.

Therefore did we, and we are sure many other people, read with much attention the letter, printed yesterday, in which one AUGUST VAN DYCK boldly attacked the whole idea of the owned home as full of illusions and delusions, and warned one and all, particularly the young native and the foreign-born citizen, that he who owns a house is seriously handicapped by the locking up of his money and by a decrease in the mobility upon which, in American life, the prompt seizing of opportunity and consequent success depend. The queer thing about this surprising, not to say shocking, contention is that there's a good deal of truth in it.

The young man or the newly arrived immigrant really would do well to avoid the anchoring effect of a house of his own—would, that is, if he wants to "get on" as rapidly as possible, and his notion of "getting on" consists wholly, or even chiefly, in the acquiring of money. Usually, too, it is as cheap to rent as to own, and often it is much cheaper. But—oh! there are so many "buts"!

Even in the matter of economy the rented house is cheaper only because the impulse to improve, to preserve, to change into adaptation to personal tastes and needs is lacking. The renter saves by doing without, and even when he cannot think of anything more he wants in the hired house or on the hired place, it is only a negative contentment, and he takes no real interest in his immediate surroundings. In other words, they are not his, and he is but a nominal master of house and grounds, and ever deep in his mind is the thought of an enforced removal.

In other words, what Mr. VAN DYCK advised against was having, not owning, a home, for the hired house is at best only an approximation to a home and at worst it is little better than a place in which to stay over night. And then about "getting on"—a thing of so many, many definitions! Everything considered, we hold Mr. VAN DYCK half right and wholly wrong, his advice half good and wholly bad. As he says, Americans are nomadic, but they are steadily becoming less so, and there is nothing in the history or condition of the nomad nations to make them regret the change.

Dueling as It Is Now Down South.

Never, that we recall, did the "innocent spectator" suffer as severely and as numerously from a little private argument with pistols between two earnest Southerners as was the case when C. J. MORTON descended from a train at Bernice, La., and at once met up with W. F. BARHAM. The latter, for reasons unstated but presumably sufficient—in Bernice, La.—promptly opened fire with a revolver. Mr. MORTON showed no reluctance in returning the salute, and immediately such part of the town's population as happened to be out of range began telephoning to neighboring cities for all the surgeons and undertakers they could spare.

There was need at least for several, for the combat had hardly begun before Mr. BARHAM's little boy fell, mortally wounded. The next victim was one T. C. CLARK, who was shot dead. THOMAS R. IVES escaped with a bullet in the thigh, while the conductor of the train on which Mr. MORTON arrived was only "painfully wounded," and no doubt counted himself lucky. Incidentally Messrs. MORTON and BARHAM were both hit a few times, but their injuries were too trivial to deserve detailed description.

The duel—our dispatch from Bernice, La., called it a duel—ceased at last, presumably because the ammunition of the combatants gave out. No mention of arrests was made in the dispatch, but it is safe to assume that the two men were held for trial—on the charge of bad marksmanship if on no other. At least in that respect they deserved criticism. The fire-eating Southron could, as well as did, shoot, but the mere firing of revolvers is not shooting; it is not even exercise.

The American duel used to be a thing which, though highly reprehensible, was not ridiculous or careless, and the participants killed each other, instead of the interested spectators, so that little real harm was often done. The Morton-Barham style of encounter is even less admirable than the French duel, which is only absurd and hurts nobody, and its suppression seems to us to be desirable.

They Fly to No Purpose.

OCTAVE CHANUTE, the well-known Chicago engineer, says that in September of 1905, to his own knowledge, the WRIGHT brothers made flights in their heavier-than-air machine of 11, 17, 20, 22, and 24 miles, out in Ohio, and that once one of them remained in the air thirty-seven minutes. Something of this Mr. CHANUTE saw with his own eyes, so it can be taken as settled that the WRIGHTS have solved the problem of flight, and that their achievements have far surpassed anything that has been done in France.

What a pity is it, therefore, that their policy of secrecy and silence has robbed themselves and their country of the glory both would have had if they had not been so desperately anxious to sell their invention before anybody had a chance to copy it! So far as known, they have not effected a sale here or abroad, and meanwhile other experimenters have gone about the work in full publicity and are winning, as well as earning, a vast amount of credit for a far smaller degree of success than the WRIGHTS are credibly said to have achieved.

Inventors have usually been lacking in business ability. These men seem to have had too much of it, though of a decidedly poor kind.

JAPAN'S VOTES AND TAXES.

Taxes Better Distributed, Votes More Numerous, Than Supposed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That Mr. Thomas F. Millard states the number of voters at less than half their present number, the inclosed clipping from a Japanese paper will show:

> When the Japanese National Diet was first called in 1891, the total number of voters was 450,637. Fourteen years later, at the ninth session, the suffrage extended to 762,445. This year's general election will enroll a total vote of 1,676,000, if every voter will exercise his right. This shows that the suffrage in Japan is slowly increasing.

That the Japanese are at present very heavily taxed is indeed true. But it is not so hard upon the laborers as upon the people with incomes. The income tax is 10 per cent. Nor is the case at all as it is in Italy, where the peasant is the chief sufferer. On the other hand, from the Emperor downward, among the aristocracy there is more patriotic service and patriotic giving by far than obtains in this country. Those who are interested in keeping down Japanese securities and hampering Japanese business are back of much of this cry about overtaxation. Then, too, there are Socialistic tendencies in Japan as elsewhere in the civilized world, but among the people as yet they have scarcely affected at all the reverence for the person and authority of the Emperor—than whom there is not a wiser and more benevolent ruler anywhere—or the unity of all the influential classes wherever the vital interests of the country are at stake.

Japan, like the United States, is spending far too much on its navy. But we are to blame for it, since for the next decade, at least, they have no aggressive force besides ours to fear, and since, alas! they are having reason to distrust us—more reason than we have to distrust them.

MORE PARADES NEEDED.

National Guard Should Display Its Uniforms and Attract Recruits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a private citizen interested in the welfare of the National Guard of the State of New York and cognizant of the increasing difficulties in keeping the military organizations up to their required enlisted strength, I suggest the following method of increasing both the public's and the guardsman's interest in the service and of attracting desirable recruits:

1. That the National Guard organizations be paraded in public not less than twice a year and on as many more occasions as feasible.

2. That the parades, so far as circumstances permit, be through or near the crowded business section or sections, easy of access, where they may encourage enlistments among a desirable class of prospective recruits. In this connection it would seem desirable that the Memorial Day parade in this city be held on lower Fifth Avenue, as formerly, or on some other prominent thoroughfare on which the temporary suspension of traffic would not cause serious inconvenience, instead of on Riverside Drive, to which the public has access with difficulty and which is not frequented by that class of young men to which the National Guard appeals.

3. That on occasions of importance, as on Memorial Day, the various military organizations be so uniformed and equipped as to make the display both as interesting and as instructive as possible to the spectators. In this city, for instance, the parade would have much additional value if the Seventh and Seventy-first Regiments of Infantry and Squadron A paraded in their distinctive full-dress uniforms, and the Eighth and Ninth Artillery Corps, the Twenty-second Regiment of Engineers, and the Twelfth and Sixty-ninth Regiments of Infantry be paraded in the full dress, dress, olive-drab (including both the garrison and field service outfits) and the khaki uniforms, which form the present regulation equipment, including in the case of one regiment the campaign outfit in full or in part. With the distinctive features of the Signal Corps, field battery, and field hospital, such a spectacle would have a far greater interest than have the parades of the past few years, when the organizations have been uniformed in the olive-drab exclusively, and the route has been through unfrequented and remote districts.

These suggestions reflect the opinions of many citizens and militiamen with whom the writer has conferred. They are submitted with the belief that their adoption would not only win favor with both the public and the guardsmen, but that they would help solve some of the problems with which the officers are contending—and at slight or no additional cost.

During the past few years the equipment, organization, and drill regulations of the militia have been radically changed to conform to those of the United States Army, to which it is now in the relation of a reserve force. Why not remove this more efficient National Guard from the comparative obscurity into which it has fallen by introducing it oftener and more favorably to the public which supports it—a policy which has been a highly important factor in maintaining the prestige of the armies of England and Europe?

Traffic Regulation of Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We already restrict children on bicycles to certain portions of our parkways; we restrict children on horseback to certain other portions. Why should not children in perambulators be restricted to their own territory and there enjoy themselves at will?

I recently saw a nursemaid attempt to force issues with a trolley car. A few days previous I saw one disputing the right of way with a coal cart. If Miss Sheldon's eminently wise ideas were carried out such entanglements would not occur.

HEINRICH CONRIED FOR NEW THEATRE

A NATIONAL COMPANY

How, by Seasonal Additions, Bills Could Be Varied Nightly to Meet Public's Insatiable Interest.

NEW YORK, April 21.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The need of a great model playhouse in this country, similar—so far as local conditions may allow—to such world-famous theatres as the Comédie Française of Paris and the Burg Theater of Vienna, has long been evident.

On landing in New York, a stranger, thirty years ago, one of the first things which I observed, with much surprise, was the absence here of even one subsidized or artistic theatre, such as existed in every capital and in many less important cities of Continental Europe.

In my own fatherland, and in every part of the Continent, I had been accustomed to seeing the stage acknowledged and respected, side by side with the Church and the school, as an uplifting, civilizing, and educational influence. Here, to my amazement, I found that it was regarded merely as a means of entertainment and amusement. To speak of the "mission" of the stage—of its uses as an improver of morals or a reformer of manners—was to invite ridicule. There are still many, even now and in this city, who are skeptical as to the true value and usefulness of the stage.

Before long, however, it became one of my most cherished dreams that I might some day find it possible to promote the foundation of an artistic theatre in the new land which I had made my home.

At first I had to content myself with dreaming. Later, after I had grown familiar with American habits and American thought, I became convinced that the realization of my hopes was not only desirable, but also possible, and that the organization of an institution comparable to the national or State-aided theatres of Europe could be effected, even without subsidization in the usual sense of the word, with both artistic and financial success.

For fifteen years or more, whenever the occasion offered, I lectured in the American universities on the need of a National theatre in this country.

I pointed out that, if founded and organized according to my suggestions, it could in a short time be made to support itself. In order to assure the establishment and prosperity of such a playhouse it was essential, in the first place, that an appropriate, dignified, and handsome building should be erected and equipped with a stock (or, as they say in Germany, a "fundus") of costumes, scenery, and "properties," sufficient to allow of the artistic productions of, say, ten or fifteen standard plays.

The theatre would have to be built on the most careful plan, advantage being taken, both in the designing of the auditorium and in the construction of the stage, workshops, and storehouses, of the most admirable examples of the modern playhouses of Europe and America. Comfort, safety, and the pleasure of the audience in the "front" of the house, besides safety, mechanical perfection, and the promotion of theatrical illusion behind the curtain, would all have to be considered. The proportions of the stage and of the auditorium would be determined by the purposes of the productions. For practical reasons, the auditorium would have to be large enough to seat as many persons as could plainly see and hear the actors—and no larger.

Spacious stairways, lounges, promenades, and other adjuncts of the great European playhouses were not to be omitted from the ideal theatre.

In many informal talks, as in more formal addresses, I expressed my belief that a National theatre would be welcomed here, not only by all who were professionally interested in education, but also by all parents who had the education of their children at heart.

I also showed that the projected playhouse would be accepted as the standard with regard to the pronunciation of English and foreign words, costuming, scenery, archaeology, and manners.

From the very outset, and before the opening of the institution which I had in my mind, it would be indispensable that the community at large, and playgoers in particular, should have the certainty that whatever they might hear or see in the National theatre would be absolutely as it should be.

To make this possible, I suggested the formation of committees, recruited from among the authorities and specialists of the world, including professors of universities, critics, painters, sculptors, and others, whose mission it would be to assist the director of the theatre by deciding vexed questions as to pronunciation and emphasis, manners, costuming, &c., and who would act in an advisory capacity.

I laid stress on the importance, and, indeed, necessity, of vesting the supreme and final responsibility of management in the hands of one man, guided by the recommendations of the Executive Committees.

Then, turning to the vital question of the principles which should be adopted in the composition of the repertory, I suggested that the first aim of an educational theatre should be to make our playgoers familiar with the most famous standard plays of all times and nations, from the tragedies of ancient Greece to the dramas and comedies of the golden ages of Spain, France, England, Italy, and Germany, and so on to the great works of our own day, no matter whether they might be due to the genius of Norwegians or Germans or Americans.

By the production of the best standard works of the whole world, in my belief, taste would be improved, the invention of American writers would be stimulated, and before long an American drama, in the high sense of the word, would be called into existence—plays would be invented which, besides being representative of the National life and character, would have permanent literary value.

Here, as in the countries of the Old World, one great object of a National theatre would be the creation and interpretation of a National drama.

I proposed to build up a repertory which should include Sophocles and Calderon, Molière and Shakespeare, Goethe and Schiller, Sheridan and perhaps Ibsen, Maeterlinck, Sudermann, and Hauptmann.

Once the National theatre, (it had not yet been renamed the New Theatre,) that is to say, the building, had been erected and properly equipped, I estimated that it would take five years to compose a repertory which would make it possible to vary the programmes every evening.

Long runs—the curse of the American stage—would be abolished.

Assuming that the annual season would last thirty weeks, say, from October till May, I suggested that ten plays, of permanent literary and dramatic value, should be produced in the first year.

The actors in the National theatre company would be engaged, at the outset, for periods of from three to five years. It would thus be possible each season to add ten plays to the repertory. On the conclusion of the fifth season, there would be fifty standard plays to draw upon, while, if it became desirable, the bills could be varied from night to night, indefinitely.

To quicken the activities of American dramatists, I advised that a prize should be offered for the best play of literary merit and dramatic significance by an American. A committee would select three or more of the most hopeful works sent in. Special performances of all these would then be given, and the one which seemed to the committee most worthy would receive the prize. The committee would decide whether the winning play should or should not be added to the permanent repertory.

The composition of the company, not the last of the difficulties incident to the scheme, would be left entirely to the Director of the theatre. His aim would be to organize a body of intelligent and accomplished players, capable of assuming many different parts, and working unselfishly for the general good, the honest and artistic interpretation of the play, and the pleasure of the audience. Anything that reminded one of the star system was to be discountenanced, and the honor of forming part of the National theatre company was to be set higher than mere notoriety or ephemeral prominence.

The actors would not be required to travel, and, gradually, those of them who remained in the company would be admitted to the benefits of a pension fund. Thanks to these inducements and to the prestige which would be gained by appearing in the projected theatre, I had no doubt whatever that an admirable aggregation of actors would be formed.

A school of acting was, in my scheme, to be the logical complement of the theatre.

Lastly—and this point cost me a great deal of anxious thought—I suggested a way by which theatregoers, even with modest resources at their disposal, might be enabled to enjoy the educational advantages offered by the National theatre, and, by steadily supporting it, help to perpetuate its prosperity.

Ten new plays, as has already been stated, would be produced each year, one every three weeks. I proposed that subscribers should be allowed to reserve an entire box for one performance of each novelty (in all ten performances) for $250. Orchestra seats, also for one performance of each novelty, would be obtainable for $25, ($2.50 for one performance every three weeks.) Other seats, in the balconies and gallery, or family circle, would be obtainable, by subscription, for sums ranging from $2.50 to $5, $7.50, $10, $15, $20, and $25 for the series of ten performances. That is to say, for an outlay of from 25 cents to $2.50 per performance it would be possible to enjoy the entire repertory and become acquainted with the dramatic literature of the whole world.

I am as certain now as I was long years ago that the plan which I have outlined is reasonable and practicable.

There are countless actors of intelligence in America and in England waiting to be discovered and molded into artists. There are many American and English writers of great natural gifts hungering for the opportunity of proving that they have dramatic as well as literary ability.

The interest of the American public in drama is insatiable. It needs only guiding to be diverted from the trivialities of the moment to more serious and uplifting objects.

It matters little whether the playhouse of which I dreamt long years ago be known as the "National" or as the "New" Theatre. What matters is that it should be built and used for the promotion of taste and the refinement of manners.

It should be not merely a place of amusement, but also and chiefly an educational institution.

UNWANTED DOMESTIC ANIMALS.

Their Sufferings at Moving Time Can Be Obviated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During moving time, about the first of May of each year, families vacating premises often leave behind small animals—cats and kittens—locked in vacant rooms or houses. This also occurs when families close their homes and leave the city for the Summer. As a result of this, which is due more to carelessness than cruelty, it often happens that the poor animals remain for several days without proper food or water until their condition and whereabouts are discoverd by humane persons, who liberate the animals or notify this society.

If persons contemplating moving or closing their houses for the Summer, who have unwanted small animals on their hands, will notify the society, we will send for and take the animals away, thereby preventing distressing acts of cruelty and suffering. The society's headquarters at Twenty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, are open, with officers on duty, day and night, to receive notices and complaints relative to animals.

Small animals can also be sent to headquarters, to the shelter at 102d Street and East River, and to 111 East Twenty-second Street, in the Borough of Manhattan; to Malbone Street and Nostrand Avenue and to 13 Willoughby Street, Borough of Brooklyn, where they will be received, cared for, placed in good homes, or humanely destroyed.

The society's telephone calls are as follows: New York office, 2130 or 2131 Madison Square; Brooklyn office, 1322 Main.

FARCE FOR CHARITY FILLS HOTEL PLAZA

"Neurasthenia" a Lively Sort of Mixture of Frolic, Songs, and Dances.

PLOT SOMEWHAT TANGLED

What There Is of It, but Everybody Who Could Sing or Dance in the Cast Had a Chance and Used It.

The vaudeville performance and farce given for the benefit of the Downtown Day Nursery drew a large audience to the Plaza last night. The vaudeville preceded the play and consisted of a piano solo, "Theme and Symphonic Studies" by Schumann, played by Miss Rosamond Street, followed by an elaborate clog dance done by the Messrs. Breese, sons of James L. Breese; George Spink sang several of his songs, ending up with "Bill Simmons" and "At the Waldorf" as encores.

Then after an intermission came the farce, "Neurasthenia," by "P. Dormer Chesterfield," otherwise Frank W. Crowninshield, with the announcement that it was the "first, last, and only" performance of the satire. The scene is laid at a "fashionable Long Island rest cure," where all sorts of nervous ills are cured by "hypnosis and mental therapeutics." Here is found Mr. Daniel Dunham, Room 79, with "bundles of money" and a desire to break into society, particularly "Slopsburg." Accordingly Room 79 is cultivating a stray English Duke. Daphne, the daughter in the case, doesn't care for "Slopsburg." She has been to Palm Beach, and met lots of nice people there, and as for the "naval hop" at Newport, it didn't seem so very "classy."

Daphne is for Dick, who is a "gentleman from his necktie to his cigarettes," but who, when he went to the club at Tuxedo, did not know even Brooks, the doorman. However, Dick sends a telegram, 61 cents due, planning an elopement.

Here the other patients at the rest cure interfere. The kleptomaniac appears in the act of carrying off the silverware. She explains that if she is a klepto she came from a "real tastey home," for mamma was a society dressmaker and papa kept a garage. She is persuaded to retire and "manicure her nails in a subliminal manner."

At this moment No. 79 demands ice water and lots of it. He then develops a "psychic chill," which he banishes by means of the flask. The Duke is having his own troubles; he wants to leave this place where the beet is the only thing à la mode, but, as he owes for his board, Dempsey, the Bouncer in Ordinary, keeps a close watch on him. Dempsey is left in charge, and then another one of the patients wanders in. She is the professional beauty, who has recently had her picture taken thirty-two times, and wishes to recover her girlish naïveté by osteopathy. The mention of a Duke within shot, however, revives her fainting enthusiasm.

Dempsey's next trouble is the soubrette who "just loves her art" so that she dances in her sleep. The one quiet night she has had in months was when she dreamed she was a wax figure in the Eden Musée. Dempsey diagnoses her case as "spinal merry widow," and suggests as a cure the song and dance:

"Isn't it delightful to discover an affinity,"

It's in this way that kindred souls are brought into proximity."

This little song and dance, done by Mrs. and Mr. E. Roscoe Matthews, was quite the hit of the evening.

But Dempsey's work is not over. The next case is the bridge whist fiend, who plays in her sleep and would have lost $60 in a dream the night before if she hadn't forgotten her purse. Dempsey suggests that poetry might aid her suffering soul, but she can only murmur:

"I would not love no trumps so much, loved I not honors more."

Finally, all these slight obstacles being removed, Dick, the hero, appears to rescue Daphne from the Duke, who "looks like a picture out of Punch." The Duke is found skipping his board bill. Then the stern parent, Dunham, Room 79, comes in search of more ice water. Even when Dick affirms that he, too, has made stacks of money and has a brand-new auto, the father still refuses his consent and orders the hero out. Then Dick announces that he has already bought the rest cure house. This hasn't the desired effect, so Dick plays trumps. He displays his invitation to a week-end at Slopsburg. At this proof of the social electness of his future son-in-law, Dunham gives them his blessing.

The curtain fell amid continued applause. The cast was:

Daphne	Mrs. James B. Eustis
Delia	Miss Margaret C. Dix
Mrs. Dubbin	Miss Katherine Atterbury

TABLEAUS NET $2,200.

Women in Society Pose as Operatic Characters for Charity.

The operatic tableaux and musicale arranged by Mrs. Herbert Shipman, wife of the rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, for the benefit of the fresh air fund of the church at the Plaza yesterday afternoon, netted $2,200, which goes to the support of a Summer home at Copake.

The operatic tableaux were posed by Ben Ali Haggin, the portrait painter, and the operatic selections appropriate to each character were played by Kurt Schindler of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The operatic characters were all portrayed by well-known young girls and women in society. Miss Ione Page was Juliet; Miss Marjorie Curtis, Marguerite; Miss Nathalie Howland was Aida, and Miss Edith Pulitzer was Amneris; Miss Olivia Hitchcock was Elisabeth, in "Tannhäuser;" Miss Eleanor Crosby was Brünnhilde, Mrs. Henry S. Kip was Manon Lescaut, Miss Frances Alexander was Mme. Butterfly, Miss Josephine S. Crosby was La Tosca, Miss Dorothy Tuckerman was Carmen, Miss Edith Kane was Mélisande, and Mrs. Richard Stevens was Thaïs.

The tableaux vivants were followed by two songs by Gustave Borde, Dubois's "Abeln-Hamet" and Hahn's "La Bonne Chanson." Then came La Veillée Bretonne, by Edmund Missa, in which a group of girls and women sang Breton folksongs. Those taking part were the Misses Dorothy Crosby, Dorothea Draper, Nancy Whitman, Maria Moran, Eileen Tone, Eleanor Erving, Mrs. Alonzo Potter, Mrs. Thornton Chard, Mrs. E. Walker, and Mrs. Gordon Knox Bell. Mr. Borden conducted. Mrs. Hugh Nesbitt Camp, Jr., gave a fancy dance, and Mrs. Adele Baldwin and Mr. Borde sang a duo from Saint-Saëns's "Samson et Delilah."

The patronesses and those present were Mrs. August Belmont, Jr., Mrs. Howard Page, Mrs. H. M. Tilford, Mrs. Benjamin Lathrop, Mrs. D. Parker Morgan, Mrs. Schuyler Schieffelin, Mrs. Stowe Phelps, Mrs. S. N. Benjamin, Mrs. Francis D. Winslow, Mrs. Holbrook Curtis, Mrs. Grenville Kane, Mrs. William Wright, Mrs. C. W. Cooper, Mrs. E. A. Hurry, Mrs. William Alexander, Mrs. C. B. Alexander, Mrs. Paul Tuckerman, Mrs. E. H. Crosby, Mrs. H. A. Crosby, Mrs. Foxhall Keene, Miss Anzonella Kane, and Mrs. Herbert Shipman.

MRS. PRUYN IN FOLK SONGS.

She Gives a Recital in Costume at the Garden Theatre.

Miss Marianna Thurber, who as Mrs. Francis L. Pruyn played the maid in "Mrs. Van Vechten's Divorce Dance" with Mrs. George Jay Gould and Kyrle Bellew last Winter, gave a recital yesterday afternoon in the Garden Theatre. The audience was composed of the many friends of Mrs. Pruyn. Mrs. George Jay Gould, Mrs. Edward W. Breitung, Mrs. Seth Barton French, Frederick Townsend Martin, William Courtney, and Rutger Jewett sat in boxes.

Mrs. Pruyn had arranged the programme with a view to displaying her gifts as a light chanteuse, and by the breadth and variety of her songs in costume she was able to suggest a striking versatility. As a Breton peasant, with sabots and a crinkled cap, warbling the folk songs of Brittany, she appeared at her best. In a spangled ballet gown she also gave a series of gay French songs. Her third set was Spanish, and with a mantilla and an embroidered and encircling shawl she gave some characteristic songs of Spain. The entertainment was completed with a bolero, which Mrs. Pruyn danced in characteristic fashion. She was assisted by Ernest Perrin, who gave monologues in French and imitations of Coquelin and Mounet-Sully.

Before the recital Frederick Townsend Martin gave a luncheon at Sherry's in honor of Mrs. Pruyn.

YOUNG RECEPTION GUEST.

Entertainment Follows the Christening of Little Miss Sylvia Jean Stuart.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stuart gave a reception yesterday in their apartment at the Gotham for their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jesse P. Whiton Stuart. The reception followed the christening of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse P. W. Stuart, now eighteen months old, who was named Sylvia Jean by the Rev. Harris Ely Adriance.

After the reception a buffet luncheon was served. Among the guests were Mrs. Henry Hall, Miss E. N. Hall, Mrs. Jacob Wendell, Mrs. Leopold Schmidt, Mrs. Killaen Van Rensselaer, Miss Helen Clarkson, Mrs. Arthur Turnbull, the Misses Juliette and Helen Adee, Mrs. Newbold Edgar, Mrs. Augustus Juilliard, Mrs. Daniel Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Potter, Jr., and Mrs. John Ogden.

FOR THE WORK HORSE PARADE.

Stranger Gives Mrs. Speyer $100, and Many Send Smaller Contributions.

Subscriptions in aid of the Work Horse Parade, which the Woman's Auxiliary of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has arranged for May 30, are coming in with gratifying regularity to the treasurer, Mrs. James Speyer, of 257 Madison Avenue. Mrs. Speyer has just returned from Hot Springs, and while there a woman who was a stranger to Mrs. Speyer gave her a check for $100 to aid the work.

"I have read of the project," she said, "and I want to help the horses."

The latest contribution received yesterday was from Mrs. J. R. Marshall, of Palmerton, Penn., who sent in a registered letter a new $50 bill to be applied to the prizes and expenses of the parade. Many $5 subscriptions are coming in, and it is this class of helpers Mrs. Speyer and the ladies associated with her are most anxious to interest. Thomas McCarthy, manager of the parade is in daily receipt of new entries from drivers and owners eager to show the care they bestow upon their horses.

COL. ROEBLING WEDS.

Brooklyn Bridge Builder Takes Mrs. Farrow as His Bride.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 21.—Mrs. Cornelia Wetzell Farrow of Charleston, S. C., and Col. Washington A. Roebling of Trenton, N. J., were married in Dalton at noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Crane by the Rev. Herbert Spencer Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church of Boston. Easter lilies and American Beauty roses were the decorations. A string orchestra played the wedding music. Col. Roebling and his bride were unattended.

Mrs. Farrow wore a gown of blue satin, trimmed with ribbon and old Irish lace. Her only jewel was a diamond pendant, a gift of the bridegroom. She wore a large hat to match her gown and carried lilies of the valley. The traveling gown of the bride was of gray cloth.

At the close of the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast. Later Col. and Mrs. Roebling left for New York. Mrs. Roebling is a member of the Wetzell family of Charleston, and married eighteen years ago John B. Farrow of Charleston, who died three years later. She is 40 years old.

Col. Roebling, who is 70 years old, has been for five years a widower. He was the engineer of the Brooklyn Bridge and is the head of the Roebling plant in Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Roebling, the former the son of the bridegroom, and Paul and Siegfried Roebling of Trenton attended the ceremony.

MISS MATTHISON'S READING.

Actress to be Heard in Prof. Murray's "Version of "Electra."

Miss Edith Wynne Matthison is to give a reading from Prof. Gilbert Murray's translation of the Electra of Euripides in the Chapel of Packer Institute, 170 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn, on April 29, at 3 P. M. Miss Matthison, before leaving England, obtained Prof. Murray's permission to use his translation in response to a request from the committee of the Packer Alumnae, under the auspices of which the lecture by Henry James was given in Brooklyn three years ago. She is enabled to give the reading by the courtesy of Henry Miller.

"Electra" was produced at the Court Theatre in London last year, and Miss Matthison played the title rôle. The opportunity to hear her interpretation of the play is one that should be widely appreciated.

MR. HALLGARTEN'S CHARITIES.

Although an American Citizen, He Held Offices in German City.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 21.—Charles L. Hallgarten, the old-time German resident of New York, who died in Frankfort-on-Main yesterday, went to America in 1849 and remained until 1875. During his later residence in Germany he was prominently identified with public charities and the leadership of the Alliance Israelite Universelle. Although he retained his American citizenship and maintained active connections with New York's financial and social life, he frequently served the municipality of Frankfort-on-Main in the Public Charities Department.

Emile Gebhardt.

A View of THEODORE ROOSEVELT At the Nation's Business

Much has been written about the President.

No such vivid, realistic, and in some respects astonishing picture of him has ever been given as that which The Times will publish next Sunday.

In the preparation of it Mr. WILLIAM BAYARD HALE spent a week in the President's office at the White House watching the most wonderful scene in the world. His story will appear in

THE TIMES NEXT SUNDAY

Short Term Notes
Yielding about
6% to 8%
Short Term Notes are direct obligations of the issuing railroads or other corporations. They represent a temporary method of financing. Sometimes they are secured by pledge of collateral. Some few issues are guaranteed either as to both principal and interest, or as to principal only. Our ten-page circular describes practically all of important Short Term Notes now upon the market.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Dull and Strong—Call Money Rates, 1½@2 Per Cent.

HEAVY BOND ISSUES COMING

Pennsylvania's Financing Helps Sentiment—Exchange Up, with Large Gold Reservations.

There was no feature to the trading in stocks yesterday outside of the moderate recovery from the heavy tendency of the previous day, until late in the session, when there was published in Wall Street the announcement of the Pennsylvania Railroad's arrangement for the sale of $40,000,000 of long-term bonds. Weakness in the shares of several of the independent steel and iron concerns revived reports regarding an approaching termination of the present price agreement, but these were speedily dismissed when the Steel stocks assumed the place of prominence in the dealings and advanced a point or more. Some little attention was likewise paid to the batch of rather unfavorable earnings statements submitted during the day, including those of the Kansas City Southern for the month of March showing a loss of $78,000 gross and $76,000 net, and the Chicago Great Western's return to the Inter-State Commerce Commission, with its loss of practically $100,000 in net for February as compared with the January returns. As a whole, the stock market paid very little attention to the further striking movements on both cotton and grain markets. In Chicago there was a maximum advance of 2 cents a bushel in wheat prices, largely as a result of professional operations, while on the local Cotton Exchange prices in at least one option fell below 8½ cents a pound upon the announcement of the temporary embarrassment of a cotton house.

With the announcement of the Pennsylvania bond sale, lacking in detail as this was, the market came quickly out of its earlier mood of indifference, and, gathering strength, rose steadily to the end of the day. The announcement was liked for a number of reasons. In the first place, its making at this time carried the inference that the bankers concerned liked the outlook in the investment field. Again, the rate of interest is relatively low, which seems to show that for the standard roads, at least, the era of high interest charges has come to a close, while, finally, in a broader sense, it was believed that in obtaining large sums of money through advantageous bond issues at this time the railroads will be able to benefit the industrial and commercial worlds through liquidation of long-standing obligations and the inception of new undertakings. The pace may seem fast with a $40,000,000 Pennsylvania issue, one of $24,000,000 by the New York Central, and $2,000,000 by the Chesapeake & Ohio, in the same day, but it must be remembered that there is now a surplus of idle money in the banks of this city almost without precedent.

No further engagements of gold for export were announced before the close of business, but in foreign exchange circles it was the general belief that the day's advance in demand sterling was based upon tentative arrangements for the shipment of between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 later in the week. Both Paris and Berlin appear anxious to get gold; each was bidding eagerly for it in this market yesterday. No word has yet come from the Treasury Department regarding its attitude toward withdrawals of United States deposits, but the growing deficit will undoubtedly force some action in this respect at an early day.

Time money loaned at 2¼ per cent. for sixty days, 2¾ per cent. for ninety days, 3 per cent. for four months, 3½@3¾ per cent. for five and six months, and 4¼@4¾ per cent. for a year.

Mercantile paper rates, 4½@5 per cent. for four to six months' indorsed bills receivable, 4¾@5¼ per cent. for choice four and six months' single names, and 5½ per cent. for others.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $209,077,001; balances, $9,245,129; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $1,967,234.

The local banks have gained $1,713,000 since Friday, as compared with a gain of $2,926,000 in the same time last week.

Sterling exchange closed firm, with demand quoted at $4.8740@$4.8745, sixty days at $4.85@$4.8505, and cables at $4.8775@$4.8785.

Continental bills were quoted as follows: Francs, 5.18⅛ less 1-16, and 5.15⅝ less 1-32; reichsmarks, 94 9-16 and 95 9-16 less 1-64; guilders, 40¼ less 3-64.

Exchange on New York at Boston was quoted at 20c discount; Chicago, 45c premium; St. Paul, 65c premium; St. Louis, 65c premium; New Orleans, commercial, 50c discount; bank, 25c discount; San Francisco, 75c premium.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was quoted in London at 25 3-16d per ounce and in New York at 54⅝c. Mexican dollars were 47c.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee trade yesterday aggregated 69,500 bags, but a considerable portion of this consisted of further exchanges from May to later months. The opening was irregular, at a decline of 5 points to an advance of 5 points, and the market closed steady. The French market closed at a net decline of ¼ to ½ franc, as compared with last prices of the previous week, while Hamburg was net unchanged to ¼ pfennig lower. Neither of the Brazilian markets reported any change, and receipts were moderate. The two ports had 18,000 bags, against 10,000 two years ago, and Jundiahy receipts were 7,000 bags, against 6,000 two years ago. For the last several days the two ports have been running pretty close to the figures of 1906, a fact which bears out statements of interior exhaustion, and which may point to a yield this season of less than 10,500,000 bags. Two years ago the Brazilian crop was 10,227,000 bags.

Spot coffee was quiet, 6c for Rio No. 7. The range of contract prices was as follows:

Trading Dull on the Curb, with Prices Generally Lower at Close.

PRICE CHANGES NOMINAL

Copper and Gold Stocks Weak, with Little Activity Even in the Specialties—Standard Oil Higher.

A continuance of sluggish trading on the Curb yesterday left the mining issues, more especially the coppers, fractionally lower. Transactions were in limited volume even in the specialties, and the fluctuations of quotations confined to the narrowest limits. Standard Oil rose 9 points above Monday's close, to 583, but after transactions of sixty-eight shares was back again to the opening figure, 575. There was some activity in the new Illinois Central rights in which transactions of 2,358, between 2⅝ and 2 7-16, were reported. The close was at 2½.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—The Kansas drought having been relieved, rain in Nebraska is alone needed to make crop conditions seasonable and satisfactory. Prices advanced early yesterday on an apparently bullish weather map, but the actual users did not follow the rise, and toward the close trade became active with declining prices, the final aspect being irregular. Liverpool cables reopened at an advance of 1½ to 1¾d over Thursday's close, and told of a growing concern abroad over a rapid decrease in supplies. Exporters took five loads, and cash wheat in New York closed firm. No. 2 red, $1.08¾ in elevator and $1.08⅝ free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.11⅝, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.09⅞ free on board, afloat.

CORN—The market was decidedly more active and generally strong yesterday. Offerings and the country movement were alike small. Exporters took no corn. Cash corn in New York closed firm at 72c for No. 2, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 72c, free on board, afloat.

Withdrawals Close Wauseon (O.) Bank

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 21.—The Bank of Wauseon, at Wauseon, Ohio, closed its doors to-day because of heavy withdrawals. E. L. Barber, known all over the country because of his connection with the Independent Telephone Company, and at the head of the New Home Plant Building in Chicago, is President of the concern. The capital stock is $50,000 and it had deposits of $250,000. Judge Tayler of the United States court appointed George W. Close and H. C. Rorick receivers. The bank will pay all obligations.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Price Fluctuations Narrow.

While there were enough variations in prices in yesterday's market to give the semblance of comparatively wide fluctuation, there was little change in the general speculative routine. It has been the custom of late for the market either to develop weakness at the opening and close strong, with an interval of absolute apathy or to open strong and react before the end of the session. Several days of this procedure—in fact, several weeks of it—have resulted in little net change from any given day. Nevertheless, there are the usual outbursts of enthusiasm on each advance and expressions of pessimism on the reaction. Nothing in any of the price movements of late has been distinctly interesting. Without question, the professional element has been dominant, and those who are the closest observers of conditions see nothing to inspire the belief that there will be any change in the dominance of the price fluctuations. Brokers are conservative in their advice, the nearest approach to a definite opinion being that purchases can be made on material reactions. There is a saving clause in that suggestion, inasmuch as it rests with the individual to determine how material a reaction is or ought to be before the suggestion is effective.

⁂

Gunning for a Bear.

In the early trading yesterday gossip was circulated to the effect that the influencing factor in the market of the previous day, and particularly in the late recession, was the selling by a certain operator who made a reputation on the bear side of the market in the last year. Just to show that this wonderful reputation has not sufficed to inspire confidence in any position that this individual may take, it may be said that the gossip was circulated with the idea that it was really a bullish influence. One way of reasoning was that the general professional element was more or less opposed to this particular trader, and that reprisals would be in order if his position could be accurately determined and verified. Possibly such verification was obtained, but if it was it meant that he was willing that it should be known, or his brokers were indiscreet, and the latter is highly improbable. Just one conclusion seemed to be possible and that was the market was wholly professional.

⁂

Pennsylvania New Loan.

Just what influence the announcement of the Pennsylvania borrowing had on the market was difficult to determine. In view of the fact that at about the time the probability of such borrowing was suggested the general market was strong, it might be supposed that it was favorable. Those who regarded it in that fashion pointed out that it indicated that the Directors believed that investors were looking for good securities, and that there was plenty of idle money in the market. Furthermore, it was pointed out that if half of the issue were sold abroad it would be a good influence so far as the international situation is concerned. Those who took the reverse view asserted that there would be little logic in the maintenance of the present dividend at a time when the company is in the market for necessary funds. Only general details, entirely unofficial, were available before the close of the market. Presumably, when the speculative fraternity learns all the data it will have a chance to determine the real effect.

⁂

Shorts and Pools.

Two factors in the market which are not clearly defined are the extent of the short interest and the exact condition of the pools. There is a difference of opinion with regard to the shorts, some holding that there is a heavy short interest, while other indications point to a limited one. Those who watch the loan crowd for clues do not get much information, but what they do get would seem to indicate rather a limited commitment on the short side of the account. So far as pools are concerned, there is not much question as to their existence in a dozen stocks, and presumably in view of the general advance since the beginning of the year the position is a fair one. Whether they are responsible for any activity at present is a question, but one usually answered in the negative. The market is too narrow just now to waste much effort, and the results which could be accomplished would scarcely warrant the beginning of operations. Bobtail pools are formed every little while in this or that stock, but they do not account for much.

⁂

Finding a Lost Relative.

One of the members of a bond house which does business with investors in every part of the country and advertises from time to time securities it has for sale, told yesterday of an odd incident that occurred on Monday. He attends to the correspondence in the matter of certain issues. His secretary is a girl who has been in her present place about six months. It is his custom to dictate the answer and then hand the letter over to the girl, from which she takes the address and subsequently attends to the filing. On Monday, after transcribing the answers, she brought one of the letters to him and asked his permission to take it home that night. The letter itself was merely a request for specific information regarding a certain inactive bond. He assented, but asked the reason for her desiring to do so. She said that three years before her brother, who was then in Chicago, had disappeared from view, and they had not heard from him since. The name signed to the letter was the same as that of her brother, and the writing to her mind was identical, but she wished her mother to look at it, as she could more easily verify it. The next day she brought the letter back and told her employer that it was her brother's writing. She is now preparing to go to San Francisco, from which place the letter was dated.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Local stocks were dull and firm, without any special feature. Cambria Steel followed United States Steel on the latter's advance. The tractions were firm, as were the mining stocks. Total sales, 20,976 shares.

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day at London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 21.—Money was in fair demand to meet the call for £1,000,000 of the Canadian Pacific issue. Discounts were quiet, and the Continent secured the bulk of the £500,000 in gold available.

Trading on the Stock Exchange reopened in idle mood. Gilt-edged securities were neglected in anticipation of fresh issues, and home rails were weak in the belief that the bad weather will affect traffic returns.

American securities were idle in the forenoon, the effect of the good bank statement being more than offset by the poor trade reports and prospective new issues, and values drooped below parity. New York supported the market in the afternoon, especially Steel and Union Pacific, and the market closed firm. Grand Trunk was easy on unsatisfactory traffic reports.

Bar silver steady, 25 3-16d per ounce.

Money, 2@2¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2½@2⅝ per cent.; for three months' bills 2⅝ per cent.

PARIS, April 21.—The tone on the Bourse to-day was dull and heavy after the holiday.

Three per cent. rentes, 96f 52½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 12½c for checks.

BERLIN, April 21.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were slightly weaker, but improved later. Trading was very light.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 44 pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 4 per cent.; three months' bills, 4⅛ per cent.

PROPOSALS.

OFFER OF $5,875,000 PHILADELPHIA CITY loan. Office of the Mayor, Philadelphia, March 23, 1908.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at the office of the Mayor, Room No. 202, City Hall, Philadelphia, until twelve o'clock noon, April 27, 1908, for Five million eight hundred and seventy-five thousand (5,875,000) dollars of the new City loans on conditions as follows:

Four million eight hundred and seventy-five thousand (4,875,000) dollars authorized by ordinance of City Councils approved February 9, 1907, entitled "An Ordinance to authorize the creation of a loan or loans by the City of Philadelphia for the sum of Thirteen million five hundred thousand (13,500,000) dollars, for the redemption of temporary loan, for the purchase and repair of pumps and machinery in the Bureau of Water, the improvement, extension, and filtration of the water supply; the repaving with improved pavement of streets not occupied by passenger railway companies; the construction of main and branch sewers and new bridges; the removal of grade crossings in the Southern section of the City; the purchase and improvement of small parks; the purchase and improvement of wharves and widening of Delaware Avenue; the purchase of lots and erection of buildings for police, fire, and bath purposes; the grading of streets and paving of intersections; the completion of City Hall; the purchase and laying of water pipes; the completion of South Broad Street Boulevard; the construction of a sewage disposal system for the Home of the Indigent, House of Correction, and other municipal institutions near Torresdale, and the continuation of high pressure fire main service." As amended by an Ordinance approved May 10, 1907, increasing the rate of interest to four per cent., and increasing the annual tax from five and three-quarters per cent. to six and one-quarter per cent.

Also One million (1,000,000) dollars out of Four million (4,000,000) dollars authorized by Ordinance of City Councils approved October 1, 1906, entitled "An Ordinance to authorize the creation of a loan or loans by the City of Philadelphia for so much of the sum of Four million (4,000,000) dollars as may be necessary to remove grade crossings along the line of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway, from Spring Garden Street to Wayne Junction, and along the Richmond branch of the said Philadelphia and Reading Railway, from Front Street to Richmond Street." As amended by an Ordinance approved May 10, 1907, increasing the rate of interest to four per cent., and increasing the annual tax from five and three-quarters per cent. to six and one-quarter per cent.

The principal of said loans of Four million eight hundred and seventy-five thousand (4,875,000) dollars and of one million (1,000,000) dollars, authorized as above, will be payable thirty years after date of issue of the certificates. The rate of interest shall not exceed four (4) per centum per annum, and shall be payable at the office of the fiscal agent in the City of Philadelphia, half-yearly, on the first day of the months of January and July.

Bidders are advised that under the ordinance certificates of loan will be issued in such amounts as the lender may require, in the sums of One hundred dollars and its multiples, of the registered form, and shall be made "payable in lawful money of the United States, free from all taxes."

Proposals must be made upon the prescribed form of blanks, which may be obtained upon application at the office of the Mayor.

No bid will be considered unless accompanied by certified check or a certificate of deposit, drawn to the order of the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia for five per centum of the amount of the loan for which the bid is made.

Checks or certificates accompanying bids not accepted will be returned to the bidders within forty-eight hours after the opening of the bids. Deposits of successful bidders will be applied in partial payment of the amount of the loan awarded them. It is distinctly announced, however, that no allowance will be made for interest on deposits from the time of opening bids to the time of settlement. Should there be more than one proposal at the same price a pro rata award may be made.

Settlement in full for the loan awarded must be made with the City Treasurer on or before May 4, 1908.

The Mayor reserves to himself the right to reject any or all proposals or to award only a portion of the loan for which bids were received, as he may deem best, for the interests of the City of Philadelphia.

JOHN E. REYBURN,
Mayor of Philadelphia.

ELECTRIC LIGHTING FOR THE CITY OF Hudson, N. Y.—Sealed bids in the form required by the conditions and specifications for lighting the streets and City Hall Building of the City of Hudson, N. Y., for a term of three (3) years and for a term of five (5) years, commencing September 15th, 1908, will be received by the City Clerk of said city at his office in the City Hall Building, in said city, until May 12th, 1908, at 5:00 o'clock P. M., and at 8:00 o'clock on the evening of said day the Common Council of said city will meet to open said bids.

Conditions and specifications are on file in the office of said City Clerk, where they may be examined and copies thereof obtained.

All bids must be enclosed in a plain, sealed envelope, bearing the following marking, but no other:

"To the Common Council of the City of Hudson, N. Y.:
"Bids for Electric Lighting."

The right is reserved by the city to reject any or all bids. WM. WORTMAN, City Clerk.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGton, D. C., March 20, 1908. Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent of this Department until 2 o'clock P. M., May 11, 1908, for furnishing Package Boxes and Combination Letter and Package Boxes, as they may be ordered for the use of the Postal Service from time to time during the four years beginning July 1, 1908, and ending June 30, 1912. Blanks for proposals, with specifications and instructions to bidders, will be furnished upon application to the Purchasing Agent for the Post Office Department, Washington, D. C. G. v. L. MEYER, Postmaster General.

WAR DEPARTMENT, GENERAL DEPOT of the Quartermaster's Department, Washington, D. C.—Sealed proposals in triplicate, subject to usual conditions, will be received in this office until 11 o'clock A. M., Saturday, April the 25th, 1908, and then publicly opened, for constructing granite monument on Crab Island, Lake Champlain, New York. Specifications with further information can be obtained upon application to the Depot Quartermaster, Washington, D. C., M. GRAY ZALINSKI, Major and Quartermaster, U. S. Army.

LONDON TUBE PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Speyer & Co. to Furnish Needed Cash by Buying $5,000,000 Prior Lien Bonds.

NOTEHOLDERS GET BONDS

The Company's Bankers to Furnish $1,500,000 Additional Cash if It Is Required.

Details of the plans for the readjustment of the finances of the London Underground Electric Railways, which was placed in the hands of a receiver last week, were made public here yesterday. The appointment of a receiver was a step taken to insure the success of the plan which calls for the raising of fresh capital for the company's requirements and for the exchange of new securities for those now outstanding. The readjustment will be effected under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement act, which will prevent the plan being frustrated by any dissentient minority stockholding interest. The present voting trust will be dissolved.

No assessment is to be levied on the holders of the existing $25,000,000 capital stock, which remains intact, and all the cash requirements are to be met through the sale to Speyer & Co. and their associates of $5,000,000 12-year 5 per cent. prior lien bonds, the bankers also agreeing to provide up to $1,500,000 additional cash for any possible deficiency in fixed charges during the further development of the enterprise.

The plan provides that against the pledge of a total of $72,500,000 face value of securities the company will issue $5,000,000 prior lien 5 per cent. bonds, the issue which Speyer & Co. are to purchase, $15,000,000 4½ per cent. bonds due 1933 and $26,000,000 6 per cent. income bonds due 1948.

The present noteholders are to receive 40 per cent. in 4½ per cent. bonds and 70 per cent. in 6 per cent. income bonds, giving them $1,100 in bonds for each thousand-dollar note. In case the earnings of the properties develop sufficiently to enable the company to pay the full interest on the income bonds, the noteholders will get more than 5 per cent. interest per annum, the rate which the notes carry now. The noteholders will, by accepting the income bonds, also have the controlling voice in the management, as the income bonds will be entitled to vote. Deposits of notes are to be made in New York with the Guaranty Trust Company and in London with the London and Westminster Bank, Limited.

The proceeds of the prior lien bonds sold to Messrs. Speyer & Co. and their friends will be used to pay the company's temporary secured notes and outstanding commitments for construction, &c., while the $1,500,000 special interest fund is expected to be more than sufficient to make up any deficiency in the earnings to meet fixed charges up to July 1, 1912, after which date, if not before, the Directors are of the opinion that the surplus income of the company will be sufficient for that purpose.

The plan is recommended by the noteholders' committees formed in London and Amsterdam.

The earnings of the three tube railways owned by the London Underground, the last of which has just been completed, show a steady increase, the Baker Street and Waterloo and the Piccadilly lines already earning a surplus over fixed charges. About 119,000,000 passengers were carried on the system during the last six months of 1907, and the first few months of 1908 showed further increases.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 21.—Trading in the local copper shares to-day was comparatively light and price changes were without significance. Trading was well distributed, but light in volume, the market closing steady at some recession from the early high prices.

ANOTHER FAILURE IN COTTON.

Longshore & Co., Members of the Exchange Here, Suspend—Cotton Weak.

The suspension of the Cotton Exchange house of Longshore & Co. was announced yesterday, making the second failure on the Exchange within a few days.

The firm is a New Orleans house, though the New York branch is conducted under a separate organization. It was said at the office of the firm that the trouble had been due to the failure of a remittance of $20,000 to arrive yesterday from New Orleans.

In the absence of any member of the firm the office force was reluctant to make any statement of assets and liabilities, but a representative of the concern said that the firm would undoubtedly clear its sheets at once and resume within the ten days of grace permitted under the by laws of the Exchange. He said the firm was solvent. The members of the firm are E. A. Longshore, A. C. Ahrens, W. L. Wright, and J. W. Beer.

The cotton market declined sharply on the news of the suspension, but made some recovery, closing at a net loss of from 6 to 10 points. At the low points of the day, 8.46 for May and 8.62 for June, new low records for the season were made. Cotton has been declining steadily since early in February, when May and June options sold around 11.22 and 11.03 respectively.

The commercial agencies say that the company's credit was good and their rating between $300,000 and $500,000.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—In a statement issued here to-day Longshore & Co. announced their suspension in New York, owing to the failure of customers to meet margins. It is stated that the firm will continue to do business in New Orleans.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New Low Records with One Rally—Closes 6 to 10 Points Down.

Cotton made new low records again yesterday, the low prices being scored during the early session, following which the market had quite a sharp rally, but broke again during the afternoon under the announcement of the suspension of a prominent New Orleans-New York house. The close was steady at a net decline of 6@10 points. Sales were estimated at 300,000 bales.

The market opened easy at a decline of 6@9 points. Offerings became lighter toward midday. Foreign advices concerning trade conditions continued very pessimistic, and it is rumored that the recent failures at Barcelona and unsettled conditions in the South American trade have caused English houses considerable losses. There was further light rain in the belt, but reports of washouts are little credited.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Mon. Close.
April	....	....	8.48@8.52	8.55
May	8.65	8.46	8.54@8.55	8.61

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 10 points higher, at 10c for middling upland and 10.25c for middling Gulf.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Mobile—Easy, unchanged, at 10c; sales, 25 bales. Savannah—Dull, unchanged, at 9⅞c; sales, 165 bales. Charleston—Nominal. Wilmington—Steady, unchanged, at 9¾c. Norfolk—Dull, unchanged, at 10¼c; sales, 127 bales. Augusta—Dull, ⅛c lower, at 10⅛c; sales, 849 bales. St. Louis—Dull, unchanged, at 10¼c; sales, 300 bales. New Orleans—Quiet, unchanged, at 10¼c; sales, 800 bales. Memphis—Quiet, unchanged, at 10⅛c; sales, 600 bales. Houston and Galveston—Holiday.

Batopilas Mining Co. Report.

The report of the Batopilas Mining Company for 1907 shows net earnings of $291,808 (Mexican) against $752,550 (Mexican) in the previous year. Net income was $210,164 (Mexican,) against $663,931 (Mexican) in 1906. The total surplus is now $701,735. Col. Dudley Evans, George Rowland, and W. L. Frost were elected Directors to succeed H. B. Parsons, Jefferson M. Levy, and George B. Janes. The other Directors were re-elected.

DUTIES ON FEATHER BOAS.

Importers Object to the Imposition of a 50 Per Cent. Tariff.

The three Judges of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals of this district have before them a test case to decide the classification under the Dingley tariff on feather boas.

There is no specific provision in the law for feather boas, although "feathers" are enumerated, and are made dutiable at the rate of 50 per cent. The Government bases its exaction of the 50 per cent. rate on the ground that Section 7 of the act specifies that on "articles not enumerated the duty shall be assessed at the highest rate at which the same would be chargeable if composed wholly of the component material thereof of chief value." The chief component material of the boas is feathers.

J. G. Duffy, attorney for the importers, holds that the clause quoted from Section 7 is applicable only to articles in which the several components each has a value of some significance, however slight. J. Osgood Nichols, Assistant United States District Attorney, asked the court to affirm the correctness of the higher duty. Decision was reserved.

BRONX VALLEY BONDS BEGGING

Only Two Trifling Bids for Million-Dollar Issue for a Sewer.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 21.—There were only two bids made for the $1,000,000 Bronx Valley Sewer bonds which were to have been sold, and no bids were accepted by the Commissioners. The bidders were: Abraham Deyo, Ellenville, N. Y., who bid par for only one bond for $1,000, and E. H. Lyon of New York City, whose bid of 101 and interest covered only four bonds for $4,000. The Commissioners rejected both bids as not being favorable.

The poor bids are attributed to the fact that the rate of interest was fixed at only 4 per cent. It was stated by bond buyers at the meeting that practically no county bonds are now being sold at such a low rate. The Commissioners will probably increase the interest to 4½ per cent. and readvertise the sale for May 5.

CHESAPEAKE & OHIO LOAN.

Company to Issue $2,500,000 Notes and 2,000,000 in Bonds.

The Directors of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway have authorized an issue of $2,500,000 notes, which are understood to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent., of which $1,500,000 are to be sold now and the balance held in the treasury. In addition the road expects to sell $2,000,000 consolidated mortgage 5 per cent. bonds to provide for a little over $2,000,000 series A and B 6 per cent. mortgage bonds, which fall due July 1.

The proceeds of the note issue will be used to care for $1,200,000 of existing notes which mature at the end of June, and in addition to supply the company with about $300,000 fresh cash. This financing is expected to be done with the co-operation of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

G. M. CUMMINGS GOING ABROAD

Banker's Ill-Health Required That He Give Up Business Cares.

George M. Cumming, who has resigned the Presidency of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company on account of ill-health, is expected by his friends to leave shortly for a European trip.

Vice President John W. Platten said yesterday that Mr. Cumming, finding his physical condition not improved, has communicated his request that at the ensuing regular annual election of officers to be held on April 30 he be not considered for re-election.

INTERBORO BANK MERGER.

Guardian Trust Company Likely to Take Over Institution.

What is looked upon in Wall Street as the first step in the virtual merger of the Interboro Bank of 49 Wall Street with another institution was announced by the cashier of the bank yesterday in a circular to depositors, which stated that President A. E. G. Goodridge had been elected a Vice President of the Guardian Trust Company, and that William Carpender, Otto Sartorius, and Howel H. Barnes, Directors of the bank, had also been elected Directors of the trust company.

The officers of the Interboro Bank refused to admit yesterday that the elections signified the establishment of a closer relationship between the two institutions, or that the bank would eventually be liquidated, but it was said on authority that since the law did not permit of the merger of a bank and a trust company, except indirectly through the liquidation of one or the other and the transfer of its assets, the business of the Interboro Bank would go through this process.

Mr. Goodridge succeeds Charles L. Robinson in the Vice Presidency of the trust company.

The Interboro Bank, though founded in 1904, has only been in the financial district proper for two years. In February, 1906, the banks' capital was increased from $100,000 to $200,000. F. A. Heinze and Stanley Gifford entered the Directorate about a year ago, but the officers of the bank have always held that the institution was never connected with the Heinze financial schemes. Both Heinze and Gifford resigned at the time of the many troubles last Fall.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Ground Corundum Ore Is Not Free of Duty—Other Decisions.

It has been decided by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this district that pulverized corundum ore must stand duty at the rate of 1 cent per pound under paragraph 419 of the tariff by similitude to emery.

F. W. Myers & Co., maintained both before the Board of Appraisers and the Federal Circuit Court that the commodity should be admitted free of duty as "manufactured sand." This contention, however, both of the lower tribunals failed to uphold. A similar view is now taken by the Appellate Court, which affirms the assessment of duty made by the Customs authorities.

Teh Board of General Appraisers overruled yesterday protests filed by Jed Frye & Co., and others of New York regarding the rate of duty applicable to fish in packages containing less than one-half barrel. The fish were assessed for duty at 30 per cent. whereas the protestants averred that the duty should be one-fourth of one cent per pound under the tariff provision for "herrings." The decision of the Collector is affirmed.

AFTER LEHIGH VALLEY STOCK.

Syndicate Forming to Bid for the Lake Shore's Holdings.

A Director of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway, discussing the New York Central's policy in reference to the Lake Shore's holdings of Lehigh Valley stock, said yesterday that the road's management was disposed to sell its Lehigh Valley stock, amounting to about 114,000 shares, but that so far none of the stock had been sold. He denied specifically the report circulated in the financial district yesterday that 50,000 shares of this stock had been sold to a group of investors who are already large holders of Lehigh Valley stock.

In banking circles it was stated that tentative proposals have been made looking to the formation of a syndicate to bid for the Lake Shore's holdings of Lehigh Valley stock, but that the matter had not taken any definite shape.

THE WEST PROSPEROUS.

B. B. Thayer Says the Recovery Has Been Remarkable and General.

B. B. Thayer, assistant to President H. H. Rogers of the Amalgamated Copper Company, who has just returned from a trip to the company's mines in Montana, said yesterday that he had found a remarkable degree of prosperity in the West. Nowhere, he said, had he seen any evidence of the effects of the recent closing of the company's mines at Butte. These have now been reopened about a month. Mr. Thayer said:

"One would hardly realize in making a tour through Montana that the citizens had just gone through a period of serious financial depression. On every hand there is evidence of great prosperity. The cattle and wool businesses are in the most prosperous condition."

OPPOSES MEXICAN MERGER.

Counsel for Minority Bondholders a Little Late with Objections.

In a communication to Mexican Minister of Finance Limantour, made public yesterday by Edward L. Andrews, counsel for several holders of Mexican Central income bonds, he voices dissatisfaction with the proposed plan of merger of the Mexican Central and the National Railroad of Mexico.

This plan, however, bankers pointed out yesterday, has already received the approval of the Mexican Government, and the terms of exchange of the new company's securities for those now outstanding, which, so far as they concern the income bondholders, Mr. Andrews, as counsel, regards as unacceptable, have been agreed upon.

Mr. Andrews says that the offer of exchange "cannot be regarded seriously."

CITY BANK RAISES DIVIDEND.

The Advance Is from an 8 to a 10 Per Cent. Basis.

The National City Bank, which has paid dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. annually on its $25,000,000 capital since May, 1903, declared a semi-annual dividend yesterday of 5 per cent., payable May 1, which puts the shares on a 10 per cent. basis. The bank increased its capital from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000 in 1902.

During all the period when the capital stood at $10,000,000 the dividend rate was maintained at 6 per cent. annually. Like all of the big banking institutions the profits of the National City Bank were swelled by the high money rates which prevailed during 1906 and 1907, and in common with a number of the stronger banks the money flurry of last Fall brought it gains where other institutions made losses.

Brill Car Company Cuts Dividends.

The declaration of a quarterly dividend of ½ per cent. by the Directors of the J. G. Brill Company was telegraphed to Wall Street from Philadelphia yesterday, indicating a cut of 2 per cent. annually in the rate, which during the previous four quarters was 1 per cent. quarterly. The regular disbursement of 1¾ per cent. on the preferred stock for the quarter was also declared.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

THE MACFARLANE COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the MacFarlane Company, publisher of post cards, 29 West Thirty-second Street, by these creditors: Sinsel & Co., $6,926; Carl Garte, $5,662, and H. F. Jutte, $4,800, all for printing and engraving done for the company and William G. MacFarlane, its predecessor, which bills were assumed by the company. It was alleged that the company was insolvent and made an assignment yesterday to Charles A. Daly, temporary Secretary and Treasurer of the company. The assignment was filed ten minutes before the bankruptcy petition. Mr. MacFarlane started the business in March, 1907, and incorporated the company in November, 1907, with a capital stock of $175,000. The company has a branch at Toronto.

AMERICAN SHEFFIELD SILVER COMPANY.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the American Sheffield Silver Company, manufacturer of silver-plated ware, First Avenue, corner of Twenty-eighth Street, by Charles E. Miller, President, $1,300 for salary; Joseph J. Zeiger, $27 merchandise, and Herman R. Boissier, $55 merchandise. It was alleged that the company was insolvent and on April 1 removed all the raw materials, valued at $1,000, and left the machinery, molds, and fixtures, on which there is a chattel mortgage for $6,000. Mr. Miller was unable to ascertain where the materials were removed to. The place has been closed ever since, but he believes some of the goods were transferred to Maurice Zuckerman, a creditor. The company was incorporated in 1908, with a capital stock of $300,000, and its predecessor was the Charles E. Miller Company, against which a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Jan. 7, 1908, and was dismissed shortly afterward.

HARRY BLITZER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Harry Blitzer, dealer in men's and women's furnishing goods, 705 East Fifth Street, by these creditors: Michael Nathan, $342; Abraham Labash, $92, and Bernhard Leon, $97. It is alleged that he is insolvent, removed and concealed assets of $1,000. Judge Hough appointed Harry Osterman receiver. It was stated that Mr. Blitzer had disposed of his stock to an auctioneer. He was formerly in business in Passaic, and began in this city in March, 1905.

BARNET ROSENBERG.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Barnet Rosenberg, shoe dealer, 133 Park Row, by these creditors: Louis M. Taylor, $300; Levy & Lapinsky, $357, and Israel Kirchner, $190. It is alleged that he is insolvent, and disposed of the greater part of his assets on April 18. Judge Hough appointed William Lesser receiver. It was stated that his entire stock, valued at $2,500, was removed from the store on Saturday morning. He had been in business ten years.

FRANK & CRYSTAL.—Benjamin Frank and Moses J. Crystal, composing the firm of Frank & Crystal, manufacturers of skirts, 24 West Twentieth Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $5,827, and assets of $3,620, consisting of stock, $1,200; fixtures, $700; accounts, $1,200; cash in bank, $20, and an unliquidated claim of $500. They began business on Jan. 10, 1907, with a claimed capital of $3,150.

SOLOMON PFEFFER.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Solomon Pfeffer, cloak manufacturer, 6 East Fourteenth Street, show liabilities of $21,309 and nominal assets $7,884, consisting of accounts $4,334, stock $3,000, and fixtures $550. Among the creditors are the State Bank, $3,275, secured; First National Bank of Jersey City, $1,050; American Woolen Company, $3,235, and Max Amsterdam $2,500, secured.

IDEAL EMBROIDERY WORKS.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Ideal Embroidery Works, 40 West Thirteenth Street, show liabilities of $6,744 and assets consisting of equity in assigned accounts, $400; stock at cost, $1,500, and machinery at cost, $2,500, both of which have been sold by the receiver, the amount realized not given.

S. DORMAN & SON.—Judge Hough has appointed E. N. Robinson receiver in bankruptcy for S. Dorman & Son, wholesale furs and skins, 41 East Thirteenth Street. The assets consist of stock $4,000 and the same equity in outstanding accounts to the amount of $5,000 which have been assigned to W. H. Fleet & Co.

REISIG & SCHWARZBART.—Judge Hough has appointed John Gruenberg receiver in bankruptcy for Reisig & Schwarzbart, clothing manufacturers, 166 Greene Street. Assets are estimated at $750.

THE GEORGE H. NEWHALL STEAM LAUNDRY COMPANY.—Judge Hough has appointed Alfred C. Coxe, Jr., receiver in bankruptcy for the George H. Newhall Steam Laundry, 543 East 116th Street; bond, $2,000. Liabilities exceed $10,000 and assets $5,500, of which $3,500 is machinery and $2,000 accounts, &c.

THE JOHN V. SIGNELL COMPANY.—Judge Hough of the United States District Court has dismissed the petition in bankruptcy filed on Sept. 16, 1907, against the John V. Signell Company, builders, 143d Street and Broadway, on the ground that it was not engaged principally in manufacturing, trading, printing, publishing, mining, or mercantile pursuits, according to Section 4, Chapter 3 of the Bankruptcy act. The company claimed that it could not be adjudged bankrupt, as it was organized to purchase, mortgage, improve, and deal in real estate, and its sole business has been the purchase of lots, erection of buildings, &c. Judge Hough sustained the contention.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of KINGSLAND BRICK COMPANY, Bankrupt.—No. 9,974.

To the creditors of the above-named bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that the personal property belonging to the estate of the above-named bankrupt will be sold under the direction of Benjamin F. Foster, trustee, at public auction, by Charles Shongood, United States Auctioneer, at Kingsland, New Jersey, on the 4th day of May, 1908, at one o'clock in the afternoon. A general description of the property to be sold is as follows:

Entire plant and leasehold of the Kingsland Brick Company, a modern, up-to-date, stiff-mud brick plant, with an auxiliary soft-mud outfit, capacity 40,000 per day, consisting in part of 150 H. P. (Houston, Stanwood & Gamble) boiler; 125 H. P. (Houston, Stanwood & Gamble) engine; E. M. Freese auger machine with automatic cut-off, cutting 24 brick; American Clay Machine Company soft-mud machine, 40M. capacity; 10 tunnel track dryers, 200 rack cars, with pallets complete for each car, (48 pallets each;) 10 (round) down-draft kilns, with a total capacity of 1,250,000; 3 dry pans, "American," "Stevenson," "Frost"; 1 Lambert cableway; 1 pair Sturtevant centrifugal crushing rolls, all in first-class working order, with tools, picks, shovels, wheel-barrows, oils, dynamite, &c.; also 330 tons coal. The trustee reserves the right to withdraw any of the said property from sale unless it shall bring at least 75 per centum of the appraised value.

The property may be inspected on any day prior to sale.

Take D., L. & W. R. R., foot of Christopher or Barclay Street, at 10:20 A. M., or 12:20 P. M.

The description of the aforementioned assets is in no wise guaranteed to be correct, but it is set forth solely to describe the same generally to prospective purchasers, from the best information available.

Dated New York, April 18th, 1908.

SEAMAN MILLER,
Referee in Bankruptcy.

For further particulars apply to Messrs. THOMAS & OPPENHEIMER, Attorneys for Trustee, 60 Wall Street, New York.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHern District of New York.—In the matter of FREDERICK BENNETT, doing business under the style of "THE STAR CAFE," Bankrupt.—Take notice that the personal property of the above-named bankrupt is offered for sale. The same consists of the bars, mirrors, tables, chairs, and other fixtures, utensils, stock, &c., situate at the cafe at premises Number 3 West 22d Street and 172 Fifth Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York; also all the right title, and interest of the receiver in and to the good will of said cafe and the lease thereof, for an unexpired period of about five years, which lease and the terms thereof can be examined at the office of the receiver. The property may be inspected any week day between the hours of 9 A. M. and 6 P. M. at said cafe. Bids for the entire of said property and assets, including said lease and good will of said business, will be received by the receiver at his office, No. 68 William Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, up to and including April 24th, 1908, at twelve noon, when all bids will be opened. All bids must be accompanied by cash or certified check to the extent of ten per cent. of the amount of bid. The receiver reserves the right to reject any and all bids. Should the receiver reject all bids, the said assets of the bankrupt herein will then be sold at public auction by Charles Shongood, official auctioneer, on April 25, 1908, at 10:30 A. M., at the premises of said bankrupt, No. 3 West 22d Street, in said Borough and City. For further information concerning said property and sale, apply to WILLIAM HAUPT, Receiver, No. 68 William Street, Manhattan Borough, New York City, or HERMAN GETTNER, Attorney for Receiver, No. 320 Broadway, Manhattan Borough, New York City.

HOMAN, SARAH BOURNE.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to ALICE NELSON and ERNEST WAKEFIELD, the heirs and next of kin of SARAH BOURNE HOMAN, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas Russell Homan of Lake Cushman, Mason County, Washington, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, dated the 13th day of July, 1884, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Sarah Bourne Homan, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 8th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eight, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Charles H. Beckett, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 9th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight. [L. S.]

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—MINNIE A. BLANCHARD, plaintiff, against WILLIAM ROSENZWEIG REALTY OPERATING COMPANY et al., defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 9th day of April, 1908, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey St., in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 14th day of May, 1908, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots of land situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Bronx, City, County, and State of New York, designated as Lots Numbers 12, 13, 14, and 15 on a certain map entitled "Map of Bruner Estate, at Jerome Avenue and Gun Hill Road, in the Borough of the Bronx, owned by Century Realty Co.," dated New York, September 30th, 1905, surveyed by Geo. C. Hollerith, 146 Broadway, New York City, and filed November 9th, 1905, in the office of the Register of the County of New York, as Map Number 1,105, excepting all land lying in the bed of the streets, roads, and avenues adjacent thereto.

Said premises being subject, however, to restrictive covenants contained in deed made by Century Realty Company to William Rosenzweig Realty Operating Company hereto.

Being the same premises conveyed to William Rosenzweig Realty Operating Company by Century Realty Company by deed delivered and intended to be recorded simultaneously with this said mortgage, which was given to secure part of the consideration or purchase price for said premises.

The sale will be conducted in such manner that the premises will be first offered for sale in separate lots as shown on the map of the Bruner estate, and after all the lots have been so offered for sale, then the entire four lots will be offered for sale in one parcel, and if the bid for the one parcel shall exceed the aggregate bids of the separate parcels the property to be sold to the person bidding for the one parcel, otherwise to be sold to the highest bidder for each individual lot.

Dated New York, April 21st, 1908.

MAYOR WOULD PROVE BALLOTS WERE LOST

Some Evidence Yesterday Indicates Boxes and Contents Were Disturbed After 1905.

BALLOT STUBS ARE MISSING

Hearst Men with Police Friendly to Them the Only Watchers—Voorhis Says Boxes Are Intact.

It was made plain yesterday in the hearing of the case of the People vs. George B. McClellan, with W. R. Hearst impleading, that the attorneys for the people and Mr. Hearst are trying to prove that the ballot boxes used in the election of 1905 are in exactly the same condition to-day that they were when the votes were counted on the night of election and the boxes sealed. On the other hand, Mr. Richards and the attorneys for Mayor McClellan are trying to show that owing to the way the boxes were carted from place to place after the election, finally to find a resting place in the Manhattan Storage Warehouse, there is reasonable ground to suppose that the boxes and their contents may have been more or less damaged and some of the ballots perhaps lost.

John R. Voorhis, ex-President of the Board of Elections, was recalled to the stand when court convened. Mr. Richards for the Mayor questioned Mr. Voorhis at length, but Mr. Voorhis had an answer for every question.

Mr. Richards produced a copy of the order issued by Justice Gaynor on Nov. 9, 1905, which directed the police to turn the ballot boxes over to the Board of Elections. He was anxious to find out the care with which the boxes had been preserved after they were received by the Board of Elections. He also wanted to know why the Hearst watchers were allowed to assist the police in watching the boxes while the other parties in the election had not been represented.

"Were there any watchers there in addition to the police and those of Mr. Hearst?" he asked.

"No."

"Do you know of any authority of law permitting these men to be in those places where the boxes were kept?"

"No."

Mr. Richards got the witness to admit that there were about 1,000 keys to the election boxes and that of these keys many may have been in police stations on election day. Then Mr. Richards turned to the labels that are supposed to be pasted across the holes in the ballot boxes through which the ballots are dropped.

"Have you ever seen any of these labels that were torn?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever see any of these police watchers asleep?"

"No."

"Did you ever complain to Chief Inspector Cortright that the police both slept and smoked on duty?"

"I think I complained about the smoking, but not about their sleeping."

"Now, were not the packages of protested ballots torn?"

"I do not believe so."

"Will you swear that they were not?"

"I will swear that I never saw any torn package."

Mr. Richards questioned Mr. Voorhis about the places where the ballots were stored after the board was directed to receive them, paying particular attention to the fact brought out that the only watchers present in addition to the police were Hearst men.

Mr. Voorhis said that the policemen and the Hearst watchers were apparently on very friendly terms. He described the various places in the different boroughs where the ballot boxes were stored, and said that he frequently visited all of them.

"When you went to Richmond, did you find all the locks intact?" asked Mr. Richards.

"They appeared to be."

Mr. Voorhis testified that he saw all of the Brooklyn boxes that were stored in the Eagle Warehouse, and that while in some cases the seals were loose, where the mucilage had failed to hold, he had in no instance seen the seals loose over the joints of a box.

"Concerning these watchers, who told you who they were?"

"Max Ihmsen certified them."

"What right did you have to permit those men to be there?"

"In order to give them assurance that the Board of Elections desired to act fair and square in the matter."

"Were any other candidates represented like Mr. Hearst was?"

"None of the others asked to be represented."

Ex-Deputy Attorney General Dolson, in his redirect examination, questioned the witness with the purpose of proving that all necessary precautions had been taken by the Board of Elections to insure the safety of the ballot boxes.

"You saw all of the boxes as they were piled up in Manhattan, did you?" Mr. Dolson asked.

"I did."

"And none of the seals was sufficiently detached so that the slot in the boxes could be reached?"

"No."

William T. Flannigan, a clerk in the Board of Elections in the Bronx, who was the next witness, said that he had observed the boxes in a general way, but he did not remember having seen any broken seals. Questioned about the stubs that are supposed to be kept, he admitted that many of these boxes of stubs were missing. He did not remember that any of the ballot boxes had been broken.

Policeman Everett T. Reed described the precautions taken to guard the boxes, and said that in removing them to the warehouse he saw no broken boxes or seals. He said once when he was on guard a man had said he was going to break into the room, but he prevented him from doing so. Inspector Schmittberger explained how the ballot box testified about by Mr. Voorhis on Monday was broken. He said there was a collision between two wagons and that three boxes fell to the street, but that only one was broken.

George Van Dusen of the Board of Elections office in Brooklyn testified about missing stubs and said that the books showed that a great many packages of these stubs were missing. In one Assembly district only four out of twenty-six election districts accounted for their stubs, while in another, with twenty-nine election districts, no stub packages at all were accounted for.

The case will be resumed before Justice Lambert at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

DEMAND DEUEL'S REMOVAL.

Legal Fight Against Him Is Argued in the Appellate Court.

The legal fight made by District Attorney Jerome, James W. Osborne, and Edward M. Shepard, as private citizens, to have Justice Joseph M. Deuel of the Court of Special Sessions removed from office was renewed yesterday before the Appellate Division, when the motion to confirm the report of Referee Martin L. Stover, who was appointed to take the testimony in the case, came up for argument.

Mr. Stover found there was nothing in the evidence adduced against Justice Deuel to warrant his removal. A second motion asking for the Justice's removal was argued also at the same time. Decision on both was reserved.

The charges arose out of the criminal libel suit brought by Col. W. D. Mann, proprietor of Town Topics, against Norman F. Hapgood, editor of Collier's Weekly, and were based on the allegation that Justice Deuel violated the law by being engaged in other business while sitting as a Justice. Howard S. Gans opposed the confirmation of the referee's report. He said that Justice Deuel had been carrying on the business of publishing, thereby violating the law regulating his conduct in office.

"The character of the publication," said Mr. Gans, "was such that no decent man should voluntarily have associated himself with it. The respondent's special function was to keep the publication on the safe side of the danger line and to minimize the risk of prosecution for libel. The respondent's untrustworthiness as a witness renders it impossible to accept his testimony where it is in conflict with that of reputable witnesses."

Mr. Gans said that Justice Deuel had denied his responsibility for the publication, but there were before them facts which could not be disputed. He said that Justice Deuel was a stockholder and Vice President of the company owning the paper, and, besides receiving a salary of $1,200 a year, had received a bonus of $1,000 for past services.

"I say it is a serious situation," said Mr. Gans, "when a judicial officer sets at naught a statute. If the business was decent, if it was a decent publication, then it would be with reluctance that I should come here to have this man removed, but, taking into consideration the character of the publication, a man connected with it is not fitted to sit on the life, liberty, or property of a person."

Replying for Justice Deuel, Frederick Allis said there was only one charge worthy of consideration, that of carrying on business in violation of the law. He held that the Greater New York charter merely prohibits a Justice from carrying on any business that interfered with his giving his full time and capacity, so far as the public interest demanded, to his judicial duties.

MESSENGER PAWNS SEALSKIN

Police Look for Boy Who Got $50 on $700 Coat and Disappeared.

A general alarm was sent out by the police last evening for Roswell Owen, a Western Union messenger boy, who disappeared yesterday afternoon after he had pawned the $700 sealskin coat, the police allege, of Mrs. B. West of 245 West Fifty-fifth Street, for $50 in a Seventh Avenue pawnshop.

Owen was attached to the branch office at 1,348 Broadway, and lived at 433 West Thirty-seventh Street. He was sent out yesterday noon with a woman who said she was Mrs. E. West, and who, the police say, desired the services of a messenger to carry her sealskin coat, which she intended to pawn in order to have it properly cared for during the Summer and at the same time realize some money upon it. The coat was taken to several pawnshops, but was not accepted in any of them as a pledge for the amount she required. Finally Owen was ordered to carry the coat back to her home. Detectives Conklin and Farrel of the Central Office, who were assigned to the case, say that the messenger went instead to the Seventh Avenue pawnshop and there obtained a $50 loan on the coat and then disappeared.

Civic Federation to Meet in May.

Officers of the National Civic Federation announced yesterday that they would hold a meeting Monday and Tuesday, May 11 and 12, in Washington, one session to be devoted to the completion of the organization of a Woman's National Committee to co-operate with the Industrial Welfare Department. Another session will be devoted to the discussion of the needs of public employes.

Baby of 3 Has Appendicitis.

Therese Reinmer, 3 years old, daughter of Atul Reinmer of 592 East 141st Street, will undergo an operation for appendicitis at the Lincoln Hospital, the Bronx. In spite of the fact that an ailment of this nature is rare in so young a child, Dr. Hartwell, attending physician at the hospital, has diagnosed the case as appendicitis and has received the father's permission to have the operation witnessed by many physicians.
